

mine from the confused and conflicting published accounts it seems that the Hungarians were at the least accounts occupying the line of the Tisza and that they still maintained their position at Seregelys. Gorgy is supposed to be somewhere about Tokay, but there is no authentic account of his precise position. The same uncertainty prevails respecting Bem, in Transylvania, of whose operations there are a great variety of reports.

The London Daily News gives currency to the following, on the strength of a correspondent, who says that a courier from Galatz brought the news.

The Austrian and Russian army, 50,000 strong, after occupying Hermanstadt, and Cronstadt, and other small places advanced to Sarteau. Bem collected 4,000 men, and charged against them. The battle ended in a complete defeat of the Imperials. They fled precipitately, leaving 10,000 dead and wounded, nearly all their artillery, and 8,000 prisoners, among whom is Gen. Halenberg. Bem took possession of Hermanstadt and Cronstadt.

The Alleged Outrage on the American Flag at Rome. It is stated in the Washington Republic, in reference to the alleged outrage on the American flag at Rome, that Mr. Brown, the American Consul, called in person and made a representation of the facts of the case to General Oudinot. The General-in-Chief received him with courtesy, and listened to his statement with due attention, accompanied with all proper expressions of regret, and, in conclusion, directed the chief of the staff to return with Mr. Brown to the consulate, to collect from witnesses of the scene full information in regard to it. The next day a military court was called, which sat for nine hours eliciting the facts of the case, with all the minuteness which distinguishes the French tribunals. In the course of this examination it appeared that two of Mr. Brown's servants (Italians) had repeatedly, during the day insulted the French soldiers in passing. At the time in question an individual belonging to a large crowd of Italians, which in defiance of a general order of the day previous, was assembled to the number of a hundred or a hundred and fifty at the consul's house had drawn a pointer upon the guard. A patrol, passing at the time, entered the house, and made prisoner of the individual in question, and of another who was recognized as a deserter from the French army. They then withdrew with the prisoners. It was in evidence upon oath that the patrol deported themselves without menace, and were uninformed of the character of the premises until they were on the point of retiring.

Mr. Brown left the city with his family while this examination was in progress, leaving Mr. Freeman (our consul at Ancona) in the temporary discharge of the duties of Mr. Brown's absence, and under the impression that the consulate was left without an agent we understand that Gen. Oudinot addressed a communication to Mr. Cass, our charge d'affaires in which he recapitulated the result of the examination, substantially as we have given it above, and expressed the profound regret which he had experienced at the error that had been committed, which had been previously expressed in person to the American consul and vice consul. He also renewed to Mr. Cass the assurance that no one in the French army had harbored the design of disregarding the rights of his country or questioning the inviolability of demoral of diplomatic functionaries.

General Oudinot further stated, we understand, that the two prisoners had been released, and expressed the hope that the communication which had been made would be a sufficient satisfaction for the error which had been committed, and which should not occur again.
