Grand Banquet to the Potato. hat highly respectd vegetable, the Potato. ing now, it is hoped, thoroughly re-establed in health it was determined by a few ding members of the Vegetable Kingdom offer a banquet to the worthy and convant root on his happy recovery. The arments for the dinner were on a scale of i liberality, and the guests included all principal vegetables. The invitations had in carried out by an efficient corps of scarrunners, and the Onion occupied the chair. was supported on his right by the head the Asparagus family, while salad occurda bowl at the other end of the table and dressed in his usual manner. The Onion had in fact excited many those present to tears, and the celery, who t next to the Horseradish, hung down his ad in an agony of sensibility. When the ering had subsided, the Potato rose, but at was only a signal for renewed enthusim: and it was some minutes before silence s restored. At length the Ptoato proceed nearly as follows:—

A Valuable Hint for Farmers.

The celebrated Robert Bakewell, of Diabley. cestershire, and the founder of the new encester sheep, used to tell an anecdote with e olden school but of the olden times. his farmer who owned and occupied 1000 es of land, had three daughters. When narter of his land for her portion, but no poney; and he found by a little more speed d a little better management, the produce his farm did not decrease. When his secnd daughser married, he gave her one third the remaining land for her portion, but no nev. He then set to work and began to hat he called the poor dry furze land, even hen the furze covered in some close nearly alf the land. After giving half his land aay to two of his daughters, to his great sur-rise he found that the produce increased; e made more money because his new broBOOKS & PAPER.—Writing, Wall & Curtain dead fallow. But the great advantage was that he had got the same money to manage 500 acres he had to manage 1000 acres therefore he laid out double the money upon the land. When his third and last daughter was married he gave her 250 acres, or half what remained, for her portion and no money He then found that he had the same money to farm one quarter of the land as he had at first to farm the whole. He began to ask himself a few questions, and set his wits to 29-6m Nos. 252, 254, 256, and 258 Pearl st., N.Y. work how he was to make as much of 250 as he had done of 1000 acres. He then paid off his bailiff, who weighed twenty stone! rose with the larks in the long days and went to bed with the lamb; he got as much more work done for his money; he made his servants, laborers, and horses, move faster broke them from their snails pace; and found that the eye of the master quickened the pace of the servant. He saw the beginning of everything and to his servants and laborers, instead of saying, "go and do it," he said to them, "let us go; my boys, and do it." Between come and go he soon found out a very great difference. He grubbed up the whole of his poor grass land, and converted a great deal of corn into ment for the sake of manure, and he preserved his blank water, (the essence of manure;) cut his hedges down, which had not been plashed forty or fifty years, straig itened his zig-zag fences; cut his water courses straight, and gained a deal of land by doing so; made dams and sluices, and and rrighted all the land he could; he grubbed up many of his hedges and borders, borders covered with bushes, in some more of his small closes, some not wider than streets and threw three, four, five, and six closes inwhite thorn hedges and hews to feed foreign birds in the winter, he could grow food for man instead of migratory birds. After all this improvement he grew more and made more of 250 acres than he did from 1000, at the very same time he found out that half of England at that time was not cultivated from the wants of means to cultivate it with. I let him rams and sold him long horned bulls, (said R. Bakewell and told him the real value of labor both in doors and out and what ought to be done with a certain number of men, oxen, and horses, within a given time. I taught him to sow less & plow better; that there were limits & measures in all things; & that the husbandman ought to be stronger than the farm; I told him how to make hot land colder, and cold land hotter, light land stiffer, and stiff land lighter. I soon caused him to shake off all his old deep-rooted preudicies, and I grafted new ones in their places. I told him not to breed inferior cattle, sheep or horses, but the best of each kind, for the best consumed no more than the worst. My friend became a new man in his old age, and died rich. + Gardener's Chroni-

He says he has attended two medical schools, and practical for different years! M. Now the truth is, he never practiced medicine a day in his life! Such writin, sicked misrepresentation looks itself to the character and veracty of the man. I wish most sincerely, he had never made those statements of himself or for me. When will men learn to be honestand truth, ful in all their dealings and intercourse, with their followmen! He applied to one Ruel Clapp to assist him in manufacturing his infixture, stating the large sums be would make, as an inducement to embart in the business. These men have beet insulting and libelling me in all possible forms, in order to impress the public with the belief that the Old Doctor's Earsparrilla was not the genuine, or strained Suramparilla, made from the Old Doctor's Original Respict. HEALING POWER.

HEALING POWER.

This GRAND AND UNEQUALIED PREPARATION is manufactured on the largest scale, and it called for throughout the length and breadth of the land, especially as it is found incapable of decemeration or leterioration.

Unlike young S. P. Townsend's it improves with age, and nover changes but for the better, because it is prepared on scientific principles by a scientific man. The highest knowledge of Chemistry, and the latest, discoveries of the art, have all been brought into requisition in the manufacture of the Old Dr's Sarsparilla. The Sarsparilla root, it is well known to medical men, contains many medicinal properties, and some properties which art here or useless, and others, which if retwined in paparing it for use, produce fermentation and acid, which is injurious to the system, Some of the proporties of Sarsparalla are so calculic that they entirely evaporate and ar lost in the preparation, if they are not preserved by a scientific process, known only to those experienced in an unanificture. Moreover, these relable principles, which fixed in vapor, on as an exhalation, tinder heat, are the very essential medical properties of the root, which give to it at its value.

Any person can boil or stew the lost till they get a dark colored liquid, which is more from the coloring matter in the root than from anything olse; they can then strain this insipid or vapid liquid, sweeten with sour molasses, and then call it "SARSAPARILA ENTRACT or SYRUP."

But such is not the article known as the insipil or vapid liquid, sweeten with sour molasses, and then call in "SARSAPARILA ENTRACT or SYRUP." But such is not the article known as the GENUINE OLD DR JACOB TOWNSEND'S SARSAPARILLA.

This is so prepared that all the inert properties of the Sarsaparilla mot are first removed, everything causable of becoming acid or fermentation is extracted and rejected; then every particle of medical virtee is secured in a pure and concentrated form; and thus it is rendered incapable of losing any of its valuable and hading properties. Prepared in this way, it is made the most powerful agent in the Cure of immunerable. Diseases.

Hence the reason why we hear equinnendations on every side in its favor by men, wimen, and children. We figal it doing wonders in the cure of CONSUMPTION, DYSPEPSIA, and LIVER-COMPLAINT, and in RHELIMATISM, SCROP. ULA, PHLES, COSTIVENESS, all CUTANE. OUS ERUPTIONS. and yet he seculd fain have it understood that Old Dr. Jacob Townsend's Gensine Original Sersaparila, is an IMITATION of his inferior preparation! I leaven forbid that we should shell in an article which would hear the most distant resemblance to, S. P. Townsend's article?

We wish it understood, because i is the absolute trail, that S. P. Townsend's article and old Dr. Jacob Townsend's Assaparilla are hearen-teries opart and infinitely dessimilar; that they are unlike in every particular, having not one single thing in common.

As S. P. Townsend is no doctor, and never was, is no chemist, no pharmacoutist—knows so more of medicine or disease than any other common, unsignified, unpressional man, what guarantee can the public have that they are receiving a genuine scientific medicine, containing all the virtues of the stricles used in preparing it, and which are incapable of changes which might reader them the AGENTS of Disease instead of health?

But what else should be expected from one who knows nothing comparatively of medicine of disease! It requires a person of some experience to cook and serve up even a common decent man.] How much more important is it that the persons who manufacture medicine designed for IWEAK STOMACHS AND ENFERENCE SYSTEMS, should know well the medical properties of plants; the best manuacy of secturing and concentrating their sealing virtues, also an extensive knowledge of the various diseases which affect the human system, and how to salapt remedies to the output of the properties to be output of the properties of plants; the best manuacy of secturing and concentrating their sealing virtues, also an extensive knowledge of the various diseases.
