Importance of Ventilation.

anliness, and draining, for the preservation of the health of domestic animals

Brute animals, like the human race, are ject to sickness, and this often to such a al extent as to the cause great loss to inviduals. This difference, however, exists, at human subjects generally recognize their ments on the slightest premonitions, and thus often led to a timely withdrawal m the sources of mischief, or the adoption means for arresting its further progress, hilst dumb animals, when they ouce show eir sickness, are generally in very despeto conditions. Hence the very large prortion of those attacked with sickness, that , and the greatest necessity of removing causes and preventing the occurrence of Lime for Grass.

A New Jersey correspondent of a Philadelphia newspaper bays :- " Seeing in your paper you receive experiments in agriculture, and as it is desideratum among the farmers to gain the greatest amount of profit from the least amount of expenditure, I will give you some experiments I have made on clay soil with lime for grass. I plowed an old sward deep in the fall, hartowed and spread on from thrity to forty bushels of lime per acre, harrowed again and sowed clover and timothy seed. The following summer I mowed two tons of hav per acre, and obtained considerable pasture in the fall, and so con- same. tinued mowing and pasturing for five successive years, the ground yielding an average of. two tons of hay per scre, at which time I plowed and limed and seeded as before and fit has vielded an equal burden for the last two years, and I think will continue to yield man, are equally so to the inferior animals, with similar treatment, except a less number

Ladies and Gentlemen: WISH to call your attention to the arrange ment I have made, which is intended for your benefit as well as my own. On account of the increase in watch repairing I am unable to do it all myself, and as I intend to spend more of my time in trade, I have engaged a workman of the first in New York to spend his time with me, after ahout the first of April. In speaking of his capa-bilities I cannot say that he has worked in Lives-POOL until his dancing days are over and is obliged to go into the country and do jobs at half price in order to get a living, but I can say that he comes recommended by the first workmen in our own country, and for his good operating I alone am responsible; so let us hear from you whenever there is occasion and you shall be satisfied to a T, if your wants are as numerous as the sands on the shore.
