From the Lancaster Farm Journal. green and a total Limes.

The use of lime as a fertilizing substance for land, has long been known, and in many parts of the country has been brought to great perfection. There is, however, great difficulty in the practical use of this valuable manure, as no universal rule can be adopted for its application. For instance, the quantity must be graduated, according to the character of the soil, and the neglect of this fact alone has produced the great difficulty. Deep soil, filled with vegetable matter, will take three times more lime, than should be applied to thin soil, containing a much more limited quantity. Then again, wet land will bear a much larger proportion than dry .-The enty safe rule to adopt is, for every man to experiment for himself, and after understanding fully the nature of lime and the character of his soil, he cannot go astray .-It is very common to hear farmers, who have been induced to use lime, say that their land has received no benefit from it. The problem is easily solved—they did not know how

I have tried upon my land, for severral ford, Lenox and Dundaff. years, various experiments, and have constantly become wiser in the mode of using it I have never failed to find that my land was most materially benefitted by it, and I feel great confidence in recommending it to others. I shall proceed very briefly, to give my views of the character and efficacy of lime, as a manure. I will state in the first place, that the use of this manure is so imperfectly understood, as well as the office which it performs, that, it is proper to place it in a prac- of customers. tical form.

Lime forms a constituent part of some grains, such as wheat and rye, as is ascertaint, New ed by dhemical analysis; and where no lime exists in the soil, the crops become sickly and imperfect. But in most vegetables it is a mere decomposer of the vegetable matter, in the soil, furnishing by this means a constant nutriment to the plant. This at once explains the reason why light soil, containing but little vegetable matter requires less lime than that which is more strongly impregnated. I have tested this in various ways, and on a variety of soils, and every experiment confirms its truth. If I were to put one hundred bushels of lime upon an acre of poor there would not be sufficient vegetable matter for the lime to act upon, and to use a common expression it would burn the land. Before it could be available, it would be necessary for the lime to become neutralized in the soil, and the additional aid of successive vegetation, such as might grow, to remedy the difficulty. After this process shall have taken place, it will produce in abundance .--Twenty or thirty bushels to the acre, for the first dressing, is sufficient. It plainly follows from what has been said, that a different soil, deeply impregnated with vegetable mould, such land, one hundred bushels to the acra is that quantity upon any land, but for the first opposite the Mansion House. L. S. LENHEIM. one hundred, according to the nature of the soil.

Now as to the mode of its application. heaps, spread, and afterwards ploughed unterend Shoes, Women's and Misses ditto-also of liming. I regard this as a most pernicious mode lime gets too deep to act successfully upon the vegetable matter in the soil—consequently its beneficial effect is fost. Lime is heavy, and its tendency is to take. The great object is to keep it as near the surface as possible. For several years I have adopted the method of spreading it upon the sod, and this furnishes the most successful mode of renovating an old meadow. It is spread from the wagon, and it requires but little experience to graduate the quantity according to your wish. In a short time the lime sinks into the spungy sod, and decomposes all dead vegetable matters, which at the same time nourishes the roots of the grass and causes the blades to spring up with extraordinary vigor. I have had old meadows with double their usual quantity of hay the first year after this process.

Then again, when you desire to plough the same meadow, the lime having sunk into the sod is still upon the surface, and ready to act as a decomposer of the sod and manure, in case the land should require it. If the ground should be left in meadow, it will be found that successive crops of grass will be greatly increased.

I might extend this communication to a much greater length, but as you will often brevity. LUTHER KIDDER. Wilkesbarre April 19, 1851.

TOBACCO DUST VS INFECTS.—We last year procured from a snuff mill a barrel of dir but damaged snuff flour, and prepared drudging boxes, covened with a fine bolting cloth, with which we sifted it over the surface of any plants attacked by insects, and with most signal success. The snuff should be applied, if practicable, while the plant is wet with dew, and repeated every shower .-If the boxes are properly made, (like a common flour drudge,) and the spuff is perfectly fine and dry, but little time is necessary to go over an acre of plants Even the rosc-bug, cabbage-louse, thrips on grape vines, &c., all yield to the influence of snuff, the most del-icate plant of the hot house is not injured by its application.
