

that mere legislation, however wise, will give property to a community... While the legislation may restrain its progress, no matter what the labor industry, it will not deprive the people of their property. The legislature can only afford opportunity for the legitimate rewards of nature's resources developed by unembarrassed labor. There is, perhaps, no more dangerous political heresy taught in our land than that true prosperity of the country is to be created by its legislation. A just policy can only guard and protect the legitimate means of production, the means of production, the devices of the cunning and wicked. The people should not rely on their own individual efforts, rather on the measures of government for success. Legislation should give to all citizens an equal opportunity of enjoying the natural advantages which surround them. Corporate power and special privileges too often produce the reverse result, and should therefore only be granted to facilitate the accomplishment of great public purposes, not to the reach of individual means. Capital and labor, co-operating in a proper relative labor, have made and will continue to make our country prosperous and happy. The rights of the latter should never be sacrificed to the interests of the former. Special legislation too frequently has this tendency. Capital can always command employment and profit, less able to command either, should receive the watchful care of government. It is to be met by my fellow citizens, to meet you in present capacity, at a peace when our common country is at peace with all the world and prosperous to an eminent degree. The dangerous conflict touching the subject of slavery, which for a time seemed to menace the stability of the National Government, has been most fortunately, and I trust, permanently adjusted through the medium of what are generally called "Compromise Measures." The general acquiescence of the several States in this adjustment gives assurance of continued peace of the country and permanence to the Union—permanence to that Union, the formation of which gave our Nation early influence and dignity of position with the other powers of the earth. Her rights have, consequently, been respected by all, and her wishes heard with profound regard. In the late, she has gained high honors for military prowess, and she secured the confidence of all ranks. The justice and liberality of her institutions has constrained the oppressed of every land to seek an asylum within her limits, and enjoy under the ample folds of her National flag, political and religious freedom. The continuance of these unequalled blessings is dependent entirely upon the perpetuity of this great national compact, and this can only be secured by a faithful observance of the terms of the constitution under which it was formed. The Union and the constitution are one and indivisible. The former cannot exist without the latter, and the latter had no purpose but to perfect and sustain the former. He, therefore, who is not in favor of the constitution, is against the Union; and he who would strike at either, would commit political sacrilege against the great fabric sanctioned by a faithful and patriotic people. The Federal constitution should be maintained and executed in all its parts. It is the paramount law of each State, and it is the imperative duty of their respective governments, to assist in the just and full administration of all its provisions. To Congress undoubtedly belongs, in the first instance, the duty of making provision to carry into execution the intent of this instrument; but it is the right and duty of the States, moving within the limits of their reserved rights, to co-operate with the general government in this legitimate work. They should certainly never attempt, by means of their legislation, to embarrass the administration of the constitution. Such interference cannot fail to engender hostile feelings between the different sections of the Union, and if persisted in, lead to a separation of the States. So far as legislation of this kind can be found on the statute book of the State, it should be speedily repealed. Of this character, I regard the great portion of the law of 1847, prohibiting the use of our State prisons for the detention of fugitives from labor while awaiting trial. In that work I shall also aid, as far as I may properly do so, to suppress all attempts to resist the execution of the laws of Congress, whether providing for the rendition of fugitives from labor, or for any other constitutional purpose. The necessity for such action is fully demonstrated by the fatal consequences resulting from such an attempt, recently occurring within our own borders. The loyalty of Pennsylvania to the national Union cannot be doubted. She is now as she ever has been, for the constitution and its compromises. She will maintain and execute, in letter and spirit, the general adjustment measures as passed by the late Congress, on the subject of slavery. She regards these measures as a permanent settlement of this dangerous geographical conflict, and will discountenance, to the full extent of her influence, all attempts at future agitation of the questions settled by them. She has planned herself on the constitution, and guided by its wise provisions, will seek to do justice to all sections of the country, and endeavor to strengthen the bonds of Union, by cherishing relations of amity and fraternal affection between all its members. I need say no more, my fellow-citizens, of the importance of the Union—You are, I am confident, abundantly impressed with its magnitude. Without union our liberties never could have been achieved, without it they cannot be maintained. With the dissolution of this national compact would fall the hopes of the world for republicanism—the cause of political and religious liberty—the peace and prosperity of our people. To the end, then, that its great blessings may be preserved, and its advantages extended to posterity, it becomes the duty of all to yield patriotic submission to the laws constitutionally adopted, and cherish feelings of affectionate intercourse between the several members of our glorious Union. Admonished so to do by the immortal Washington, let the injunction be regarded by each and all of us with a Christian's devotion. Let our habits of acting, thinking and speaking of the Union be as though we were indeed the Fatherland of our political safety, and prosperity, and standing for its preservation with jealous anxiety, discountenancing whatever may suggest such a suspicion that it can in any event be abandoned, and indignantly opposing the first dawn of any attempt to frown any portion of our country from the rest, or to enfeeble the sacred ties which now link together the various parts. Then shall we have performed our whole duty—duty to ourselves, to our sister States, and to the cause of republicanism throughout the world. WILLIAM BIGLER. Letter from Washington. Washington, Jan. 20, 1852. Mr. Giddings of Ohio, made one of those movements today for which he has gained so unenviable a notoriety. He led off in an attack upon Gen. Taylor, of the Scioto District, who, on account of his support of the Compromise measures, including the Fugitive Slave Law, is particularly obnoxious to the arch agitator of the Ashubula District. Among the petitions presented to-day were several by C. E. Fryer, of Ohio, who remarks in a recent issue of the most attentive and obliging members of the House. One of these was from John H. Parker and others, citizens of Pennsylvania, for a law to prohibit the banishment, deportation, or immigration from foreign countries to the United States of all convicts, felons and paupers; another from Samuel W. Jones, Charles Macalaster, and the Philadelphia asking Congress to pass a law providing for the speedy payment of the claims against the Government for French Spains prior to the year 1801; another from E. A. Souder & Co., and others, asking for appropriations for the erection of piers and harbors in the Delaware river and bay. They were referred to the appropriate committee. Col. Hendrick B. Wright, whose ambition to represent the Eleventh Congressional District of Pennsylvania, whether elected as such by the good people of that district, or not, prompts him to contest the seat of the Hon. Henry M. Fuller, the duly elected representative, is still here and anxiously awaiting the action of the Committee having charge of the subject. The committee will, however, not take up the subject for investigation until Mr. Fuller's return, which will probably be the latter part of this week. The correspondent of a northern journal, who is a member of the same party to which Col. Wright belongs, gives the following excellent account of an interview between the Colonel and one of his Lococo acquaintances, which is, as he truly observes, too good to be lost, and need therefore, offer no apology for inserting it. There are two or three cases of contested seats this session, and among them is that of Col. Henry M. Fuller, of Luzerne, the contestant being Col. Hendrick B. Wright, of Luzerne, and the Democrat. The contest at Baltimore at the same time, the third race was established. Van Buren threw overboard and Mr. Polk nominated. The District Col. Fuller represents is from thirty to thirty-five hundred Democratic, yet, in a fair fight, he beat Col. Wright fifty-nine votes. But the anecdote tells its own story. About the commencement of the present session an old Democratic acquaintance met Col. W. at the National, when the following colloquy took place: "Ah, Col. how do you get along with your time?" "Well, replied the Colonel, "I can't say how long—I'm contesting Fuller's seat." "Ah, yes, I remember—you run against him; did any other candidate run?" "No." "But, Fuller's a Whig." "Let me see, your district is composed of Luzerne, Columbia, Monroe, and Wyoming—all pretty strongly Democratic, if I remember rightly." "Yes, that's true." "Colonel, how much majority did Luzerne give the Democrats last election?" "Fourteen hundred and fifty." "Columbia?" "Ten hundred and twelve." "Monroe?" "Five hundred and ten." "And Wyoming?" "Two hundred and twenty-five." "Let's see; thirty-one hundred and upward; and only one Fuller ran?" "Only two; why?" "Why, it strikes me, Colonel, that if it were my case, I shouldn't contest that seat."—Daily News. Notices. VIRGILL, lathers his professional services to the citizens of Montrose and vicinity, designing a permanent residence in the city, and an exclusive devotion of several years to the study and practice of Dentistry, encourages the hope of giving entire satisfaction in every department of the highly useful and delicate art of Dentistry. Nine tenths of the anguish attending, which renders the nervous and the teeth and writings of a sleepless night, might have been prevented by a series of artificial teeth, which a method has been recently discovered by which a tooth that has been a long time painful may be filled and saved, for doubtless, a number of years, yet it is the wisest course to get it plugged before it is decayed.
