Lines,

[By Request.]

Composed by Mrs. Gordon on the death of Anna Platt, for Mrs. Dolly Chalker.

Encircled in the arms of death,
A fond young mother lay;
In meekness she resigned her breath
To the grim monster's prey.

Upon each cold and lifeless arm,
Her lovely twins were placed;
Within the coffin safe from harm,
They sleep in death's embrace.

Oh! they have found a brighter home,
A blissful, happier clime;
Beyond the silent, peaceful tomb
Where dazzling glories shine.

A widowed mother deep will mourn
The loss of each dear one,
That death has from her bosom torn,
While absent from her home.

Dear mother, there is soothing balm
In Jesus' love for you;
They bloom in Eden's brilliant bower,
Where all is pure and true.

There sweetly sheltered from the storm
Of sorrows dark and drear;
In blissful joys each lovely form
Will shout that love is dear.

Agricultural & Horticultural.

Susq. County Agricultural Society.

The Society met on Wednesday evening, April 21st, the President in the Chair.

A Committee appointed at a previous meeting on the subject of enclosing grounds for the Fair, reported that they had selected an acre and a half of ground on David Post's land, adjoining Judge Jessup's farm, and recommended its enclosure by the Society. The Report was adopted, and a Committee appointed to carry it into effect.

The time for receiving reports and awarding premiums for grain crops was changed to the time of the Annual Cattle Show. Mr. S. A. Newton delivered an address on the importance of Agricultural Societies, for which on motion of W. J. Turrell, the thanks of the Society was voted.

The Dairy Farmers of the County were requested to furnish the Society the yield in milk and of butter per day of some of their best cows; giving the weight and measure of the milk for one or two weeks together in June, August, and September, and a general description of the cow, her size, breed, &c.

Adjourned to meet on Wednesday evening, the first week of August Court.

Currants and Gooseberries.

It is to be presumed that not one in a hundred understands the simple process of cultivating either currants or gooseberries, although it has been detailed in all the horticultural books with which the world abounds. Thousands of persons, with every appliance for success, are still content to live without a plentiful supply of these delicious, cheap and healthy luxuries, merely because they have not thought of the matter. They have a few stinted bushes, set in the grass, with three fourths of the stocks, dead and then wonder why they do hot bear in abundance.

There is not a more beautiful shrub growing than the currant, properly propogated; and the same may be said of the gooseberry. Cultivators who pay any attention to the subject, never allow the root to make but one stock, or as the English say, "Make them stand on one leg"—thus forming a beautiful miniature tree.

To do this you must take sprouts of last year's growth, and cut all the eyes, or buds in the wood, leaving only two or three at the top; then push them about half the length of the cutting, into mellow ground, where they will root, and run up a single stock, forming a beautiful symmetrical head. If you wish it higher, cut the eyes out again the second year. I have one six feet high. This places your fruit out of the way of hens, and prevents the gooseberry from mildewing, which often happens when the fruit lies on or near the ground, and is shaded by a superabundance of leaves and sprouts. It changes an unsightly bush, which cumbers and disfigures your garden, into an ornamental dwarf tree. The fruit is larger and ripens better, and will last on the bushes, by growing in perfection, until late in the fall.

The mass of people suppose that the roots make out from the lower buds. It is not so—they start from between the bark and wood, at the place where it is cut from the parent root.—Ft. Chronicle.

A Beautiful Picture.—The man who stands upon his own soil, who feels that by the laws of the land in which he lives—by the laws of civilized nations—he is the rightful and exclusive owner of the land which he tills, is by the constitution of our nature under a wholesome influence not easily imbibed from any other source. He feels—other things being equal—more strongly than another the character of a man is the lord of an inanimate world. Of this great and wonderful sphere, which fashioned by the hand of God, and upheld by his power, is rolling through the heavens, a part is his—his from the centre to the sky. It is the space on which the generation before him moved in its round of duties, and he feels himself connected by a visible link with those who follow him, and to whom he is to transmit a home. Perhaps his farm has come down to him from his fathers. They have gone to their last home; but he can trace their footsteps over the scenes of his daily labors. The roof which shelters him was reared by those to whom he owes his being. Some interesting domestic tradition is connected with every inclosure. The favorite fruit tree was planted by his father's hand.—He sported in boyhood beside the brook which still winds through the meadow. Through the fields lies the path to the village school of earlier days. He still hears from his window the voice of the Sabbath bell which called his fathers to the house of God; and near at hand is the spot where his parents laid down to rest, and when his time has come, he shall be laid by his children. These are the feelings of the owners of the soil.—Words can not paint them—gold can not buy them; they flow out of the deepest fountains of the heart—they are life-springs of a fresh, healthy and generous national character.

Burning out Stumps.—Where there are but few stumps in the field, the stump machine cannot always be used advantageously, and the expense of applying it would exceed the advantages. I have found (says one who knows) that stumps which it is not practicable to remove by ordinary means, may very easily be got rid of by the following simple process.—After a period of dry weather, when the exposed portions of the stump are dry and tindery, cover it with a quantity of dry combustible matter, such as shavings, small slicks of wood, rubbish of any kind, and sprinkle over and through the mass a few pounds of rosin, or a bucketful of tar. Over this place a close and compact layer of turf, grass side in, in the same manner as the covering is applied to a coal pit, and ignite the wood through an opening at the base—a hole being left at the top to produce the requisite draught till the fire is fairly kindled. Manage just as you would were you burning a coal-kiln, and let the burning continue till the stump and its roots are completeconsumed. The ashes will make a good top dressing for the adjacent soil, and the obstacles be removed effectually and at a small cost. An hour's labor will do it.

How to Judge Cattle.—In all domestic animals, the skin, or hide forms one of the best means by which to estimate their fattening properties. In the handling of oxen, if the hide be found soft and silky to the touch, it affords a proof of tendency to take on flesh. A beast having a perfect touch, will have a thick loose skin, floating as it were on a layer of soft fat, yielding to the slightest pressure, and springing back towards the finger like a piece of soft leather. Such a skin will be usually covered with an abundance of soft glossy hair, feeling like a bed of moss—and hence termed a mossy skin. But a thick-set, hard hair, always handles hard, and indicates a hard feeder.

General Winfield Scott.

The Cincinnati Chronicle makes the following statement of the age and services of the illustrious conqueror of Mexico:

Winfield Scott was born on the 15th of January, 1786, and was therefore 06 on the 15th of last January.

Admitted to the bar in 1806, and practised a few months in the Petersburg (Va.) Circuit.

Appointed Captain of Light Infantry in May 1808.

Appointed Lieutenant Colonel of the Second Artillery, in July, 1812.

Fought the battle of Queenstown, and was taken prisoner 12th October, 1812.

Appointed Brigadier General in March 1814.

Fought the battle of Chippewa, July 5th, 1814.

Commanded the main body of Brown's Army in the battle of Niagara, (Lundy's Lane,) July 25th 1814.

Maintains peace in the patriot troubles, in the affair of the Caroline, 1837.

Aids in the pacification of the Maine Boundary in 1836.

Captures Vera Cruz, 23d March 1847.

Wins the battle of Cerro Gordo, April 18, 1847.

Wins the battle of Contreras, August 20th 1847.

Wins the battle of Churubusco, August 20th 1847.

Stormed Chapultepec on the 13th September 1847.

Entered the city of Mexico on the morning of the 14th September, 1847.

Thus has Winfield Scott been forty two years in the service of his country, having made some of the most brilliant campaigns on record, and never failed in any undertaking.

Temperance on the Erie Railroad.—The Erie Railroad Company have laid their hands on rum drinking upon the line of their road after the fashion of the Maine Law. At a meeting of the directors, held on the 31st day of March, they passed the following ordinance:

First, That no person shall be retained in their employment in any department, who is known to be in the habit of using intoxicating drinks.

Second, That the selling or disposing of intoxicating drinks in any Depot or building belonging to the Company is positively forbidden, and that the violation of this resolution shall be considered a sufficient reason for removing the party from the use of the Depot for the sale of refreshments, and that this resolution form part of every agreement for renting of the Company.

Third, That the Directors, intending themselves to do all in their power to enforce these resolutions, earnestly call on every one in their employment to aid them, and they request the friends of order on the line, or persons passing over the road, to inform them promptly of any violation of these Resolutions.

This is taking the bull by the horns, and if these regulations be carried out it will be a great benefit to the employees of the Company, and to the travelling public.—Honesdale Democrat.

Scott in Kentucky.

The following is an extract of a letter, published in the Louisville Courier, written from the 6th Congressional District of that State:

"The Whigs of this district will rally upon either Fillmore or Webster as the nominee, but it is useless to try to conceal the fact, they would go into the battle with double the assurance of victory under the banner of Gen. Scott! Besides he would get many Democratic votes in this District, that Fillmore or Webster could not get."

Erie Railroad.—The business of the Erie Railroad is increasing even more rapidly than the most sanguine friends of the road have anticipated.—The receipts for March, 1852, were as follows:

From Passengers and Mail,	$94,420 35
" Freight,	156,749 99
Total,	251,170 74
Same month, 1851,	163,400 59

"His most remarkable features are his eyes. Around them are many curious lines, indicative almost of cunning. They are of no particular color are almost vacant of speculation, and those who know him best represent him as the most impenetrable of men. The great Hobbs himself could not unlock him."

Deaths.

In Summersville, New Milford, April 18th, of injuries received while at work in a saw mill, after an illness of three days, Calvin Summers, in the 67th year of his age.

In Franklin, March 2d, Theophilus Merriman, aged 88 years. He removed from Cheshire, Conn. to this county (then an almost unbroken wilderness) in 1801, and by a uniform life of industry and integrity, gained and retained the respect and esteem of all who knew him. After a life protracted far beyond the period usually alloted to man, he has "come to his grave in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in his season."—[Com.

In Franklin, April 4th, Archi Marsh, aged 58 years. He retired to rest at night in the enjoyment of his usual health, "fell asleep" so peacefully that his companion slumbering by his side was not disturbed, and awoke (we doubt not) in heaven. For nearly thirty years he had been a consistent and devoted member of the church of Christ, ever ready to labor where duty called. His family mourn a kind and affectionate husband and father, and the church a most active and efficient member. "Bles-ed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them."—[Com.
