

All kinds of Paragraphs.

Sectarianism is a miserable short-sighted prejudice. It makes you hate your neighbor because he eats his oysters roasted, when you prefer them in the shell.

Many have ever been so good and so great, or have raised themselves so high as to be above the reach of trouble. Our Lord was "man of sorrow."

It was not the magnitude of the Greek's strength, but the moral strength of Achilles' leader, that conquered Troy, but ten years' perseverance.

Useful knowledge can have no enemies except the ignorant; it cherishes youth, delights the aged, it is an ornament to prosperity, and yields comfort in adversity.

Delicate Flattery.—Mrs. Bloomer (wife of President Fillmore's Postmaster at Seneca Falls, and investress of the new style of dress for ladies) appeared at the late Temperance Convention in Rochester, in a silver grey trowsers, and turban, which latter she changed in the street to a white beaver hat.

Can you tell me Bill how it is that the character always keeps his feathers so sleek and smooth? "No," "Well, I'll tell you. He always carries his comb with him."

The Knickerbocker is responsible for the following: The voters on election night fell into an open drain; what were their politics?—They were Secured men.

Vive L'Emperer.—The details of the coronation of the Black Emperor of Hayti, are exceedingly amusing, as described by some of our countrymen who had the good fortune to witness it. Faustina the First went through the business with as good a grace as any white man could do. It is Louis Napoleon's turn next.

A man on getting out of an omnibus a few days ago, made use of two rows of knees as banisters to steady himself, at which the ladies took offence, and one of them cried aloud, "A perfect savage." "True," said a way inside, "he belongs to the Paw-Knee tribe."

Charley C.—took a field to plant at halves. At harvest time the owner came for his share of the produce; but the wicked way told him very coolly that he was sorry there was nothing for him, as the land did not yield but half a crop, which he had taken as his half.

The Irishman who wrote to his friend informing him of the devoted attention of his young wife during his sickness, could not find a national tendency to wagery, as he added—"Ah, Dennis my boy, I'm more than ever convinced of the truth of the poet's remark, that the whole world is nothing to a man, if his wife be a widow."

At Peoria, Illinois, on the 12th ult., Rev. Mr. Pierce married Mr. Henry W. Stone to Miss Maria Ellen Herz. The bride was but fifteen. This is fulfilling the juvenile adage, that children should be seen and not heard.

MEMORABLE EVENTS.—The subjugation of the greater part of Europe under Charlemagne, in the 8th century. 2. The Crusades in 1096. 3. The invention of printing in the 15th century, the discovery of America in 1492, and the revival of learning and literature. 4. The Rise and Progress of the Reformation. 5. The American Revolution and Declaration of Independence. 6. The French Revolution and the victories of Buonaparte.

Good Advice.—It is better to tread the path of life cheerfully, skipping over the thorns and briars that obstruct your way, than to set down under every single lamenting your hard fate. The thread of a cheerful man's life spins out longer than that of a man who is constantly and desponding. Prudent conduct in the concerns of life is highly necessary—but if distress succeed, dejection and despair will not afford relief. The best thing to be done when evil comes upon us, is not lamentation, but action; not to sit and suffer but seek the remedy.

One of the best things to resist fatigue with is music. Girls who could not walk a mile to save their lives, will dance in company with a knock-knee clarinet and superannuated fiddle, from tea time till sunrise, while a soldier grows weary with quietness, will no sooner hear a bugle give a flourish, than he will cut one himself. Whether men can march twenty or forty miles a day depends altogether on who blows the bass drum.

LEGAL ANECDOTE.—It is said that Judge T.—, formerly the presiding justice of our Common Pleas under the old regime, was engaged at one time in trying a criminal, who had been stealing the goods of a merchant. His guilt was clearly established, but a question arose as to the value of the stolen articles, and on the determination of their value depended, under the statute, the fact whether it was grand larceny, punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, or petit larceny only, punishable by confinement in the county jail and by fine.

The jury after being out for some time came into court for specific instructions, saying, if the value of the goods were found at the wholesale price at which they were purchased by the owner, it would amount to petit larceny only; but if found at the retail price, it would be grand larceny, and they wished to be informed as to their duty in this respect.

A Negro Myth.

Mr. Smith, in his "Trade and Travels in the Gulf of Guinea," tells the following amusing story: At the factory of an English trader, a mafouka machanga man—a superior order of magicians—joined us at the breakfast table, of whom I inquired how the work of his magic was going. He answered, "The magicians of the world to be black while the other half are white. The conversation on this subject was in substance as follows: "What will you take mafouka machanga? Here's fish, fowl, and goat, cassava, and bread; sweet toambo, coffee, and rum and water."

"Part a part," (a little of each), "but what kind of fowl that be—a cock or a hen?" "I don't know, it makes no matter I suppose."

"Oh, but it makes a great deal of matter. If the cock I cannot eat him."

"Why?" "Because they are rascal."

"How is this? What harm has he done you?" "A great deal of harm, the rascal! had it not been for him I should have been white man, all same yourself."

"What has the cock to do with your being a black man?" "Everything."

"Come let us hear all about it!" "Well I must. You see, when God Almighty first made man, he had only one day to make him in. He began early one morning, and worked hard all day very hard for he wanted to make a great man. When it was close for night he ordered them all to stand up in row, that he might see how they looked. Well he examined them all over, and thought they would do very well, as by shape went, but he had made them all black; and he thought they would look better if they were white, so he turned to to whitewash them and whitewashed very hard all night, that he might get them finished before the time he was limited to had expired. Well when he had got just half through his work the cock crept up and was morning, so he was obliged to leave the rest unwhitewashed. If it had not been for him God would have finished them, and every man would be white. This is the reason why one half of the world be white men, and the other half black men, and why I cannot eat them—a rascal, that would not whitewash all God finished!"

The mafouka machanga cooked his fire with a tumblerful of raw rum; and the cock being sent for, who assured us it was a hen, he made a hearty breakfast on fowl and the other good things without ado.

Punch says that the danger of obliterating the property qualification for members of Parliament is this—that if some of our constituents were to be without their property qualifications, they would have no qualifications whatever.
