Keeping Fruit Fresh.

The New England Farmer says he has preserved gooseberries by placing the fruit, picked rather green, in bottles so as to fill them, and then filling all spaces to the mouth with water. The bottles are then set in a kettle of cold water, where they remain till it is made to boil, when they are taken out, immediately corked very securely, and set in a cellar. To this the Prairie Farmer adds, "Very likely; and we have many times put gooseberries into a bottle, clean and dry, without any cold or hot water, or anything else, except corking tight and covering with sealing wax, and putting into a cellar; and had gooseberry pies as fresh at New Year's as though the fruit had just been taken from the bush." This mode would serve admirably for gooseberries and currants, (nearly ripe,) but for cherries and some other smaller fruits the water process has proved much the best. High-flavored sour cherries, as the Mayduke, Early Richmond, &c., keep much better than the heart cherries—probably Downer's Late, a very high-flavored sort, would be one of the best of the latter class. The common black or jam bottles have been found to serve a good purpose, if perfectly clean, having never been previously used; but transparent bottles, showing exactly the condition of the fruit, are of course best. An intelligent and skilful neighbor has succeeded, by still another process in preserving peaches, (cut into large pieces and divested of the skin,) as fresh as when taken from the tree; not in their weight of sugar, but in a very small quantity of that material. We have eaten them after mid-winter, and could not have told by the flavor the difference between these and the fresh dish served with cream at mid-autumn. This process has cost months of labor and experiment before reaching its present state of perfection, and it is yet to undergo further attempts at improvement another season; and in the mean time will not of course be given to the public. Dr. Lee thinks that fruit cannot be kept long, even if perfectly excluded from the air, at a temperature above 60 Fah., but this mode of treating peaches appears to constitute an exception.—Cultivator.

HEN-ROOSTS IN CONNECTION WITH HORSE-STABLES.—The practice of allowing fowls to roost in the same appartment with horses, though followed by some farmers, ought to be discountenanced. Albert Tood, of Smithfield, R. I., states in the Rural New Yorker, that he had a horse become covered with "hen-lice" from fowls roosting near the stall. The animal was seriously injured before the cause of the trouble was ascertained. He rubbed out his mane and tail, and was continually biting himself, to obtain relief from the irritation which the vermin produced. The lice may be killed by tobacco water, sulphur, or oil.—Cultivator.

STRAWBERRY RUNNERS.—These should be treated as weeds, and hoed from among the regular rows of strawberry plants. They have precisely the same effect upon the crop as the same quantity of weeds, and cannot fail to lessen the amount, as well as to diminish the quality. A writer in the Gardeners' Chronicle remarks, "So convinced am I of the propriety of cultivating this fruit in separate and distinct plants, and of cutting off the runners, that I have this season taken out a plant between each of my plants, thus making the distance between each plant four feet by three."

ASHES.—Grasses are more benefitted by ashes than other crops since they require a greater amount of salt which ashes contain. For all permanent mowing lands, especially on lighter soils, ashes are among the cheapest of manures. In parts of Flanders and Belgium, countries in which the science of agriculture has been carried to higher perfection than in any other part of Europe, the great loss of vegetable matters from the soil is constantly restored by ashes or bones.

PLOWING HEADLANDS.—We observe that this is often inconveniently and awkwardly done. The best way is to leave strips of untouched land at the sides as well as at the ends of the field, all of equal width, and then the whole is finished by going around with one continuous furrow until it is finished close to the fence. In this way none of the newly plowed ground is trodden hard.

PROTECT YOUR FRUIT TREES FROM INSECTS.—Mix powdered sulphur and copperas in equal quantities, make bare the roots and add on them from 4 to 16 oz. of the mixture. It is a preventive to the attack of insects on all kinds of Fruit trees.

SOAP FOR MOUSE HOLES.—A lump of hard soap is the best thing to stop a mouse, rat, cockroach or ant hole. Dirty brutes of all kinds have an antipathy for soap.

TO PROTECT SHEEP FROM DOGS.—Let me publish to the sheep raising world a remedy against the destruction of sheep by dogs, which was given me a short time since, by a highly respectable and valued friend, himself and extensive wool grower. It consists simply in placing on one sheep in every ten of the flock, a bell of the usual size for sheep. The reasoning of my friend is this: The instinct of the dog prompts him to do all his acts in a sly, stealthy manner—his attack upon sheep is most frequently made at night, while they are at rest, and the sudden and simultaneous jingling of the bells will lead to their exposure. The importance of sheep preservation from dogs, the writer hopes will claim for this communication an insertion in most of the papers in the Union, that a remedy so cheap and simple may be fully tested. —Prairie Farmer.

TO MAKE PRIME VINEGAR.—A correspondent of the Ohio Cultivator vouches for the merit of the following recipe for making Vinegar:

Take and mix one quart of molasses, three gallons of warm (rain) water, and one pint of yeast. Let it ferment and stand for four weeks, and thee will have the best of Vinegar.

☞ If you wish to refasten the loose handles of knives and forks, make your cement of common brickdust and rosin, melted together. Seal engravers understand this recipe.

HOW TO COOK A POTATO.—Wash it well, but let there be no scraping. At the thickest end cut off a piece the size of a sixpence. This is the safety vale through which the steam escapes, and all rents in the skin are thereby prevented, just as a valve prevents a rupture in a steam boiler.

NOT to be particular, JOHN GROVES, Tailor would inform the public that he has removed his shop to S. F. Keeler's building, on Main street, where he will be happy to see his old friends and new ones. The are posted up in his shop, where customers can select any style they wish, from that of the elegants of Paris, the illigant of Dublin, or the exquisite of the Sandwich Islands. An experience of upwards of twenty years at the business in some of the best shops in the country, renders bragging on his part unnecessary. He is also prepared to furnish trimmings and cloth, and is now manufacturing clothing which he will sell at fair prices.

☞ Cutting done as usual; for cash down.

Pro Bono Publico.

American Invention and Science triumphant over Foreign Tailors and imported work.

The subscriber is able to announce to the citizens of Susquehanna County, that he has purchased, at considerable expense, the celebrated invented and patented in 1841 by Aiken & Fellowsand. This machine will do the work of twelve journeymen Tailors per day, will sew all kinds of seams, do it stronger than hand sewing, every stitch being precisely the same length, all kinds of curved work, seam stitching, quilting, and in fact all the work of the Tailor except cutting and pressing off. Other Sewing Machines have been invented and are in use, which can compete with it in no respect. With this machine we propose to do work as durably, and at lower prices than any other establishment.

☞ Tailors wishing to purchase the right for the above machine can do so by calling on the subscriber. N. C. BISSELL.
