Charging a Square.

In speaking with a friend the other day about the late Col. Dakin, he related a little anecdote which is so characteristic of the man that we cannot refrain from repeating it, though we think something of the same kind was told by one of our correspondents during the Mexican war.

The Colonel commanded one of the six regiments of volunteers which were raised in this State, after the battle of Palo Alto and Resaca de la Palma, and which joined Gen. Taylor's army speedily. The Colonel was an old disciplinarian, very strict and capable, and in a short time his regiment excited the admiration of veteran regular officers, by the ease and precision with which it drilled and manœuvred.

One morning the regiment were drawn up and the men were standing at ease, after a variety of marches and charges and evolutions, when the Col. took it into his head to put their discipline to a strong test. The regiment was thrown into square to receive cavalry. The commander rode off a few hundred yards, and then wheeling his horse, came down sword in hand, at a fierce gallop straight at his men. He and his steed formed an imposing looking object, for he was a big man, and his steed was a big horse, and neither appeared to fear the glittering and bristling array of bayonets against which they were rushing. The men stood the charge very well until the horse and his rider were within a few feet; then they broke right and left in confusion, and opened a broad passage for the "cavalry" into their ranks.

Of course the Col. was wroth, and the way the men and officers caught it, for a few moments, was by no means agreeable to their feelings. "You form a square! You repel cavalry! Why what would you have done if a thousand dragoons had charged on you as I did?"

"Well, just try us again, Col., and see if we don't hurt your feelings!" cried a number of discomfitted volunteers. The square was again formed; off rode the Col.; round he wheeled, and here he came again at full speed rushing straight at the bayonets, and looking as if he would crush them to powder under his charger's heels. The bayonets wavered not, though the horse came faster and faster, and finally with a terrible bound, sprang at the square. The square stood the shock, and the next moment the horse was stretched on the ground with a broken bayonet in his side, and his limbs quivering in the death agony, whilst the stout rider lay, with his foot and knee caught, and himself unable to rise. Not a man moved—the square was silent, steady and unbroken. In another instant the Colonel was on his feet. He replaced his sword in the scabbard, looked gravely and coolly at the dead horse, and at the firm array of soldiers, and then said in his usual quiet way—"Very well done my boys—both the horse and the square did their duty. Now you're ready for the lancers."

The men cheered—not a little.

A Rogue Outwitted.

A curious instance occurred in the great city of London sometime back in which a rascal was outwitted. A bachelor gentleman who was a very superior draftsman and caricaturist was laid up in his apartment with the gout in both feet. He could not move but in and out his chair to the sitting room. A well known vagabond ascertaining the fact, watched till his servant was sent upon a message. The area door communicating with the kitchen, he walked up stairs, where as he expected, he found the man alone and helpless.

'I am sorry to see you in such a situation,' said the rogue, 'you cannot move and the servant is out.' The gentleman started.—'It is excessively careless to leave yourself so much exposed, for behold the consequences! I take the liberty of removing this watch and seals off the table and putting them in my own pocket; and as I perceive your keys are here, I shall unlock these drawers, and see what suits my purpose.'

'Pray help yourself,' replied the gentleman, who was aware that he could do nothing to prevent him.

The rogue did so accordingly. He found the plate in the side board, and many other things that suited him; and in ten minutes having made up his bundle he made the gentleman a low bow and decamped. But the gentleman had the use of his hand, and had not been idle; he had taken an exact likeness of the thief with the pencil, and on his servant's returning soon after, he despatched him immediately to Bow street with the drawing, and an account of what had happened. The likeness was so good, that the man was immediately identified by the runners, and was captured before he had time to dispose of a single article. He was brought to the gentleman two hours afterwards, the property on him identified, sworn to, and in six weeks was on his way to Botany Bay.

A Robin in Difficulties.

While Mr. Charles Newall, granite-hewer in Dalbeattie, was plying his vocation on Thursday last, at Craignair Quarry, his attention was suddenly arrested by cries strongly indicative of distress, proceeding from one of other of the feathered denizens of the wood. On throwing from him his tools, and hurrying to the spot whence the sounds proceeded, he discovered a robin apparently in a state of great agitation, whose movements immediately certified him of the true cause of the alarm. An adder, 20 inches long and one inch in circumference, had managed to drag itself up the face of the quarry, and was at that moment in the very act of protruding his ugly head over the edge of a nest built among the stumps of the cut-down brush-wood and containing the poor robin's unfledged offspring—her maternal instinct prompting her to the only defence of which she was capable. She was engaged, when Mr. Newall first got his eye upon her, in alternately coming down the one moment upon the spoliator, darting her beak into his forehead and anon rising on the other to the height of a yard or so above the scene of danger.

It was the act of a moment for Mr. Newall to dislodge the agressor. But in doing so, two of toe little birds were thrown out of the nest, where, however, they were speebily and carefully replaced. While Mr. Newall was killing the adder, the joy of the parent bird was so excessive that she actually perched on the left arm of her benefactor, and watched with an unmistakeable and intense delight every blow inflicted by his right arm on her merciless and disappointed enemy; and when the enemy lay dead, she alighted upon and pecked the lifeless trunk with all her vigor, and revenge thus taken, entered her nest and having ascertained that all was safe, swiftly repaired to a neighboring branch, and piped, as she best could—for her throat no doubt meant for a hymn of gratitude and a song of triumph. When at work since, Mr. Newall has been evidently recognised by the tiny biped, and we do hope that nothing may occur to interrupt a friendship originating in circumstances so specially interesting. —Dumfries (Scotland) Courier.

ARREST.—Some years ago, in a country not a hundred miles from here, a small sized man went to the plantation of a gentleman who was light in wit, but rather heavy in flesh, with a piece of paper in his hand, folded in a legal form and known by the abreviations of 'ca sa.' Having found the owner of the plantation in the field he explained his business when he was requested to read the capias, which commenced as usual—"You are hereby commanded, without delay to take the body of" &c.

"Humph!" says the prisoner, stretching himself on his back, "I am ready."

"Oh, but you dont expect me to carry you in my arms?"

"Certainly; you must take my body, you know. I do not resist the process of the law, understand, but submit with much cheerfulness."

"Will you wait here until I bring a cart?"

"Can't promise; I may recover from my fatigue in the meantime."

"Well, what must I do?"

"You must do your duty."

And there he lay unmovable until the Sheriff left.

To Dairymen & Farmers.

VALUABLE PROPERTY FOR SALE!

A FARM of 200 acres, situate in Bridgewater township, Susquehanna county, and state of Pennsylvania, 150 acres of which are under good improvement.

The farm is well designed for a dairy, and is capable of feeding 40 cows during summer and winter, and every part of it is well watered. The buildings and land are in good condition, and the fences which are of stone and rails, are also good.—There are two large barns upon the premises, besides a granary and convenient sheds for cattle.—Three orchards principally of grafted fruit and other fruit trees.

Said farm has a very pleasant and desirable location about two miles from Montrose, the County seat of Susquehanna county, and about nine miles from the Leggett's Gap Railroad, to which there is a Plank Road in process of completion, and is very convenient to meetings, schools and mechanics.

Also, another valuable Farm adjoining the above containing 200 acres, of which 150 are under a high state of cultivation. Upon it there is a large frame dwelling house with outbuildings to correspond, and a large orchard. It is well watered and fenced and admirably adapted to dairy purposes.

Said property will be sold on reasonable terms, and a portion of the purchase money may remain on bond and mortgage to suit the purchaser.

Application may be made personally or by letter to Hon. Wm. Jessup or R. J. Niven at Montrose, in said county, and any further particulars that may be required will be given. 27tf

Another Scientific Wonder!

GREAT CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA!

DR. J. S. HOUGHTON'S

THE TRUE

DIGESTIVE FLUID,

OR, GASTRIC JUICE.

Prepared from RENNET, or the fourth STOMACH OF THE OX, after directions of BARON LIEBIG, the great Physiological Chemist, by J. S. HOUGHTON, M. D. Philadelphia, Pa.

This a truly wonderful remedy for INDIGESTION, DYSPEPSIA, JAUNDICE, LIVER COMPLAINT, CONSTIPATION, and DEBILITY, Curing after Nature's own method, by Nature's own Agent, the Gastric Juice.

☞ Half a teaspoonful of Pepsin, infused in water, will digest or dissolve Five pounds of Roast Beef in about two hours, out of the stomach.

Pepsin is the chief element, or Great Digesting Principle of the Gastric Juice—the Solvent of the Food, the Purifying, Preserving, and Stimulating agent of the Stomach and Intestines. It is extracted from the Digestive Stomach of the Ox thus forming an artificial Digestive fluid, precisely like the natural Gastric Juice in its Chemical powers, and furnishing a complete and perfect substitute for it. By the aid of this preparation, the pains and evils of Indigestion and Dyspepsia are removed, just as they would be by a healthy Stomach. It is doing wonders for Dyspeptics, curing case sof Debility, Emaciation, Nervous Decline, and Dyspeptic Consumption, supposed to be on the verge of the grave. The Scientific Evidence upon which t is based, is in the highest degree curious and remarkable.

Scientific Evidence.

BARON LIEBIG in his celebrated work on Animal Chemistry, says "An Artificial Digestive Fluid, analogous to the Gastric Juice, may be readily prepared from the mucous membrane of the stomach of the Calf, in which various articles of food, as meat and eggs will be softened, changed and digested, just in the same manner as they would be in the human stomach."

☞ Call on the agent and get a descriptive Circular, gratis, giving a large amount of scientific evidence similar to the above, together with reports of remarkable cures, from all parts of the United States.

As a Dyspepsia Curer

Dr. Houghton's Pepsin has produced the most marvellous effects, in curing cases of Debility, Emaciation, Nervous Decline, and Dyspeptic Consumption. It is impossible to give the details of cas s in the limits of this advertisement, but authentica ted certificates have been given of more than two hundred remarkable cures, in Philadelphia, New York and Boston alone. These were nearly all desperate cases, and the cures were not only rapid and wonderful, but permanent.

It is a great Nervous, Antidote, and particularly useful for tendency to bilious disorder, liver complaint, fever and ague and the evil effects of quinine, mercury, and other drugs upon the Digestive Organs, after a long sickness. Also for excess in eating, and the too free use of ardent spirits. It also reconciles Health with Intemperance.

Dr. Houghton's Pepsin is prepared in powder and fluid form—and in prescription vials for the use of physicians.

Private Circulars for the use of Physicians may be obtained of Dr. Houghton or his agents, describing the whole process of preparation, and giving the authorities upon which the claims of this new remedy are based. As this not a secret remedy, no objection can be raised against its use by physicians in respectable standing and regular practice

Price, ONE DOLLAR per bottle.

☞ OBSERVE THIS.—Every bottle of the genuine Pepsin bears the written signature of J. S. HOUGHTON, M. D., sole proprietor, Philadelphia, Pa. Copyright and Trade mark secured.

☞ Sold by all Druggists and Dealers in Medicines. ABEL TURRELL, Druggist &c.
