The Farm and the Fireside.

Reserving the Right of Passage.

'Once upon a time,' there came to this city a young Kentuckian, for the purpose of learning the science of medicine and surgery. He was tall and athletic, shrewd, apt, and intelligent, with a little sprinkling, of waggishness. He was inducted into the Charity Hospital, and a room in the third story given him as a study. On entering into his new quarters, he was introduced to a young French gentleman, occupying the room, also a student. The young Frenchman, it seems, was very frank in his manners, courteous, yet cold, and he thus addressed his companion:

'Sir, I am indeed pleased to see you, and hope that we may prove mutually agreeable: but, in order that this may be the case, I will inform you that I have had several former room-mates, with none of whom I could ever agree—we could never pursue our studies together. This room contains two beds; as the oldest occupant, I claim the one nearest the widow.'

The Kentuckian assented.

'Now,' said the Frenchman, 'I'll draw a boundary line between our territories, and we shall each agree not to encroach upon the other's rights; and then taking a piece of chalk from his pocket, he made the mark of division, midway, from one side of the room to the other. 'Sir,' he added, 'I hope you have no objection to the treaty.'

'None in the world, sir,' answered the stranger; 'I am perfectly satisfied with it.' He then sent down for his baggage, and both students sat down with their books.

The Frenchman was soon deeply engaged, while 'Old Kentuck' was watching him and thinking what a queer genius he must be, and how he might 'fix' him.

Thus things went on till dinner time came. The bell was rung; the Frenchman popped up, adjusted his cravat, brushed his whiskers and moustachios, and essayed to depart.

'Stand sir!' said the stranger, suddenly placing himself, with a toe to the mark, directly in front of the French student; 'If you cross that line you are a dead man.'

The Frenchman stood pale with astonishment. The Kentuckian moved not a muscle of his face. Both remained in silence for, some moments, when the Frenchman exclaimed,

'Is it possible that I did not reserve the right of passage.'

'No, sir, you did not: and you pass this line at your peril.

'But how shall I get out of the room?'

'There is the window, which you reserved to yourself—you may use that; but pass not that door—my door, which you generously left me.'

The poor Frenchman was fairly caught.—He was in a quandary, and made all sorts of explanations and entreaties. The Kentuckian took compassion on him; and thinking that going out of a third story window was not 'what it was cracked up to be,' said to his new friend.

'Sir, in order that we may be mutually agreeable, I'll rub out the hateful chalkline, and let you pass.'

The Frenchman politely thanked him, and since the settlement of that 'boundary question,' they have been the very best of friends. —Arthur's Home Gazette.

How came that Chicken in my Hat.

We have seen a few 'cool' people in our extensive travels in various parts of the world; but we recollect of none that more nearly approximated zero, than little Joe W., who is now (poor fellow!) in his last resting place—he having gone to Mexico during the last war, and had the misfortune to be numbered among the dead at the close of the battle of Buena Vista.

To use an old phrase, Joe could never be found with but one eye asleep, nor his thumbs in his mouth. However bad a scrape he might be caught in, he would either lie himself out, or remain perfectly silent, and look as indignantly injured as a pet goat.

When fourteen years of age, he was afflicted with a protracted headache; and hearing that a sure remedy had been discovered by perforating the crown of the hat, and thereby ventilating the head, he was not long in making daylight visible through an inch and a quarter hole in the top of his old black tile, which in his palmiest days had been worn by his great-grandfather on the occasion of Washington's Farewell Address to his troops at New York.

With his hat upon his head, he paid a visit one forenoon to the barn-yard of Mr. B., distant about three quarters of a mile, to discover, if possible, a few stray eggs, which he hoped by chance might have escaped the searching eyes of Mrs. B.

Not being able to find any eggs, the wicked thought suddenly entered Joe's mind to take the next best thing to them, and the resolution was no sooner formed than he grasped a young white headed pullet, thrust it into his hat, and immediately started for home, balancing his precious load upon his head, and counting the eggs he should soon be able to call his own, and dispose of or eat, as he in his judgment might be inclined.

But Joe was not destined to enjoy these pleasant reflections for any great length of time, for Farmer B., happening to meet him, discovered protruding through the top of the youngster's hat, the white head of what he had good reason to suppose was one of his favorite bantams; and accosting Joe, he inquired where he was going?

'Going home, sir.'

'Where have you been?'

'Down to your house,' says Joe, without the slightest hesitation.

'Did you go down for anything particular?' inquired B., casting his eyes up to the white head and neck of his pullet, which was moving to and fro, like an ostrich-feather in an officer's cap.

'Nothing particular,' replied Joe; 'I wanted a little walk, and so I strolled down to your house.'

'What have you got in your hat,' replied B.

'Nothing!' replied Joe, looking astonished.

'Nothing!' said B.

'Yes, nothing!' reiterated Joe.

B. here coolly took off Joe's hat with one hand, while he held on to the pullet's head with the other, and with a voice of spiteful indignation he exclaimed—

'Joseph, do you call that nothing?'

Joe straitened himself up, or erect as a teaspoon, put on a look of surprise, and in a stentorian voice, exclaimed—

'How came that chicken in my hat?'

How comes it that bashful women always turn their toes in? Answer by return mail.

Reports on Winter Wheat, Spring Wheat and Oats, to be made at the Fair. On corn and Buckwheat at the January meeting; claimants for premiums on grain are required to have the ground measured and the quantity properly certified. Corn is to be shelled when merchantable, measured and reported at the January meeting, along with Buckwheat. It is expected that the greatest accuracy will be observed in ascertaining these crops, so that all will be satisfied of the capacity of Susquehanna county to produce large crops. The owners of milch cows who offer for premium are requested to state to the Committee on cows, the quantity of butter made from them during the height of grass and also in the fall. And the executive committee further request that all who take an interest in the Agricultural society will give it their countenance by sending any articles of merit or curiosity that may add an interest to the Fair.

A Hint to the Farmers.

We may send to England for Durham cows and to Spain or Saxony for the choicest sheep; we may search the world over for cattle that may please the eye, but unless they receive the best care and liberal feeding they will most assuredly deteriorate, and eventually become as worthless and unworthy of propagation as any of our skeleton breeds that now haunt our rich but neglected pasture lands. We remember an anecdote in point, and will relate it by way of illustration. A farmer having purchased a cow from a county abounding in the richest pasturage, upon taking her to his own inferior pastures found that she fell short of the yield which he was informed that she had been accustomed to give. He complained to the gentleman of whom he had purchased, that the cow was not the one he bargained for, or in other words that she was not what she was 'cracked up to be.' 'Why,' said the seller 'I sold you my cow, but did not sell you my pasture too.'

The above, which we cut from an exchange reminds us of the reply which a shrewd old farmer whom we knew many years ago, made to one of his neighbors. The latter had obtained some pigs from a farmer residing some miles off, and who, because intelligent, was always successful in his farming operations, particularly surpassing his neighbors in raising pork. Shortly after meeting the old gentleman referred to, he says, 'Well, Mr. Sweetser, I'm going to beat you in raising hogs this year, I have got some of J—— M——'s breed.' 'A-a-ha,' drawled out the man, 'you'd better get the breed of his hog-trough!'—Maine Farmer.

EXTRACT FROM PLAYFAIR'S LECTURE ON THE FEEDING OF CATTLE.—Most farmers are aware that young calves, sheep and pigs, fatten more quickly in the dark than in the light. The explanation of the fact is simply this, that they pass more of their time in sleep. Sleep is that portion of life of an animal when the principal growth of its body takes place. In sleep all the voluntary motions cease: vitality, therefore, now increases the mass of the body, as its force is not expended in producing motion. It is for this reason that we like those lethargic pigs which stagger to the trough in a lazy way and sleep when they have finished eating. Very little matter being expended in motion, they rapidly increase in size. The phlegmatic Chinese or Neapolitan pig fattens quickly whilst the unimproved, long-legged Irish pig, which gallops about at an extraordinary rate, expends all its food in the production of force, and does not grow rapidly.—New England Cultivator.

BENTLEY & READ.

Montrose, Nov. 12, 1851.

Philosophy of saving the Teeth.

IT is simply this: We first carefully and thoroughly remove all the decayed matter from the cavity, then after shaping it properly and wiping it dry, we press into it gold or silver foil which are very soft and malleable, and continue to compress them until we have rendered them as hard as the solid metal. We thus completely exclude both air and moisture, the universal agents of decay, and the consequence is that the tooth decays no more in that part, and rarely does it ever commence in any other part, but should it, the cure must be repeated, and I have seldom seen an instance where it had to be repeated a third time, or even a second. If your teeth are decaying your only hope is in the Dentist. They may be affected and you not know it. A tooth usually decays a long time before it aches and persons are very apt to suppose them "all right" so long as they keep quiet. The fact that they have not "troubled you" is the very reason why you should have them attended to before they do. One fact more: when a tooth has become painful, you are "behind time" in going to get it filled, "the cars are off," you must groan and lose it.

Thus, courteous reader, I have given you both fact and Philosophy, if not with the profoundness of a Newton, yet truthfully, you may depend, with the hope of inducing you to call on me at "ODD FELLOWS' HALL" and submit your teeth to examination and repair, if needed. By so doing you may promote both your own interest and mine.

Yours emphatically and Professionally,

C. D. VIRGIL, Dental Surgeon.

DR. HOOFLAND'S
CELEBRATED GERMAN BITTERS, PREPARED BY
Dr. C. M. Jackson,
At the German Medicine Store, 120 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

Their power over the above diseases is not excelled, if equalled, by any other preparation in the United States, as the cures attest, in many cases after skilful physicians had failed.

These Bitters are worthy the attention of invalids. Possessing great virtues in the rectification of disease of the Liver and lesser glands, exercising the most searching powers in weakness and affections of the digestive organs, they are withal safe certain and pleasant.

Read and be convinced.

From the Boston Bee.

The editor said, Dec. 22nd:

Dr. Hoofland's Celebrated German Bitters for the cure of Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Chronic or Nervous Debility, is deservedly one of the most popular medicines of the day. These Bitters have been used by thousands, and a friend at our elbow says he has himself received an effectual and permanent cure of Liver Complaint from the use of this remedy. We are convinced that, in the use of these Bitters, the patient constantly gains strength and vigor—a fact worthy of great consideration. They are pleasant in taste and smell, and can be used by persons with the most delicate stomachs with safety, under any circumstances. We are speaking from experience, and to the afflicted we advise their use.

"SCOTT'S WEEKLY," one of the best Literary papers published, said, Aug. 25—

"Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, manufactured by Dr. Jackson are now recommended by some of the most prominent members of the faculty as an article of much efficacy in cases of female weakness. As such is the case, we would advise all mothers to obtain a bottle, and thus save themselves much sickness. Persons of debilitated constitutions will find these Bitters advantageous to their health, as we know from experience the salutary effect they have upon weak systems."

More Evidence.

The Hon. C. D. Hineline, Mayor of the City of Camden, N. J. says:

"HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS.—We have seen many flattering notices of this medicine, and the source from which they came induced us to make inquiry respecting its merits. From inquiry we were persuaded to use it, and must say found it specific in its action upon diseases of the liver and digestive organs, and the powerful influence it exerts upon nervous prostration is really surprising. It calms and strengthens the nerves, bringing them into a state of repose, making sleep refreshing.

If this medicine was more generally used we are satisfied there would be less sickness, as from the stomach, liver, and nervous system the great majority of real and imaginary diseases emanate. Have them in a healthy condition, and you can bid defiance to epidemics generally. This extraordinary medicine we would advise our friends who are at at all indisposed, to give a fair trial—it will recommend itself. It should, in fact, be in every family. No other medicine can produce such evidences of merit.

Evidence upon evidence has been received (like the foregoing) from all sections of the Union, the last three years, and the strongest testimony in its favor is, that there is more of it used in the practice of the regular physicians of Philadelphia, than all other nostrums combined, a fact that can easily be established, and fully proving that a scientific preparation will meet with their quiet approval when presented even in this form.

That this medicine will cure Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, no one can doubt after using it as directed. It acts specifically upon the stomach and liver; it is preferable to calomel in all bilious diseases—the effect is immediate. They can be administered to female or infant with safety and reliable benefit at any time.

Look well to the marks of the genuine.

They have the written signature of C. M. JACKSON upon the wrapper, and his name blown in the bottle, without which they are spurious.
