Strawberry Cultivation.

Those who know anthing about the magnificent strawberries, and the immense quan tities of them raised on a bed about 30 or 40. feet, for several years past, in the garden formerly, would by me, in King street, may like to know the process by which I cultivate

I applied about once a week, for three times, commencing when the green leaves began to start, and making the last application just before the plants were in full bloom, the following preparation of nitrate of potash, glauber salts, and sal sods, each one pound, of muriate of ammonia, one quarter of a pound, dissolved in 30 gallons of rain or river water. One third was applied at a time, and when the weather was dry, I ap- the widow to hold the veil were not sufficient plied clear soft water between the times of to tear it and somehow when the veil was young leaves is so rapid, that unless well ed with water the sun would scorch them. I used a common watering pot, and made the application towards evening. Managed in this way, there is never any necessity of digging over the bed, or setting it out anew. Beds of ten years old are not only as good, but better than those of two or three years old. But you must be sure and keep the weeds out .- Northampton Gazette.

Bathing.

We notice several cases of drowning, in the newspapers, from cramp or accident.-At this season, when bathing is very proper, ly indulged in by children, it is necessary tha, parents and others should gaurd against accidents, which in general are fatal. Every child, boys especially, should be taught to soom. It is a simple, who lesome exercise, and a great safeguard; but too much care cannot be observed in permitting children to bathe. They should always be accompanied by their elders. The New York Times says: Beware of plunging into water, the temperature of which you have not ascertained. Beware of bathing in the heat of the day, or with the body overheated.

Beware of bathing immediately after any meal, when the digestive organs are in full activity; and lastly, when you use the bath-ing dress, let it be light in texture and white in color, or a near approach to it.

If you observe the first caution, you will, in case of accident, not be beyond the reach of the sight of any person at the surface even if the water be muddy.

If you attend to the second and third your system will not be paralyzed by a suden cold shock. If you heed the fourth, you avoid (the moral certainty of a contrary course) cramps and their result, death by drowning or appolexy.

SALT AND ASHES FOR STOCK .- Wherever animals are allowed to partake unrestrictedly of green food, whether grass or roots, they require much salt, and a mixture of ashes with it, say three quarts of the latter to one of the former will be found very salutary. Animals are often lest by over feeding on fermentable food, but if a mixture of salt and ashes, in the proportions above suggested, be kept in some places where it is at all times accessible to them, this evil will never result. Sheep are especially fond of it. At first some animals may refuse to partake of it, but keep them without salt till they do. When they have overcome their antipathy, they will devour it eagerly, and devour the ashes as readily as the salt. Germantown Telegraph.

FOOD FOR CHICKENS.—Boiled potatoes mixed with coarse Indian meal, is perhaps the best food for fattening poultry. For laying hens, meat is necessary; lime must also be within their reach at all times. Pepper has been found excellent to make hens lay. A recent writer says; I was clearing out some red pepper seed, and threw the shucks promiscuously about; I soon observed hens picking them up and swallowing them with great avidity. They soon commenced laying eggs, though they had laid none for a mouth before. I feed them regularly two or three times a week since then, with red pepper, and they have never stopped laying, summer or winter, spring or fall, except while they are hatching their chickens; and I am confident that by this method hens may be made to lay the year round.—American

How to get up Early.—Place a basin of cold water by the side of your bed; when you first wake in the morning, dip your tenance. Anxious to hear an expression of hands in the basin and wet your brow, and the little fellow's feeling, we approached him, sleep will not again seal you in its treacher-

It does nt take but a little to knock the sublime all out of a fellow. A friend of our says he was promenading with one of the muslin de laines an evening or two since, and during the interview, got really eloquent about the blue sky, moon and stars. His heart was brim full of love and poetry, and he felt that he was producing an impression. In the midst of it all, the lady snapped out: "Jim, if you go with that red head again I'll kick you 'til you eant see!" Our friend has nt been on that street since.

LOOK OUT, GIRLS.—At the Pennsylvania State Fair, to be held at Pittsburg in September next, there will be a premium offered to girls under twenty-one years of age, (and we never saw one beyond that yet,) of a silver cup for the best ten pounds of butter, and for the second best a pair of silver butter knives. For the best five pounds of butter. s set of silver tempoons, and for the second -The importation of slaves has lately been carried on with much success in Cuba 2085 have been landed, in three cargoes, since the 20th of May. One vessel, the Lady suffolk, landed 1160. For this ship the British cruisers were particularly on the alert, as they knew she was hovering somewhere about the coast with a cargo of slaves; but sided by the Cuben authorities, she succeeded in cluding all pursuit, and succeeded in landing her cargo. So far from endeavoring to prevent these proceedings the Spaned the misery of knowing that these is help ish officials, it is alleged, kept in readiness and made use of special trains of cars on the saling of human misery.

Taking Tell, The St. Louis Reville is publishing a tale, purporting to give some adventures in the life of a young physician, from which we take the following extract:

A snow had fallen, the young of the village got up a grand sleighing party to a country tavern, at some distance, and the nteresting Widew Lambkin sat in the same sleigh, under the same buffalo robe as my-

Oh! oh !--dont! she exclaimed as we came to the first bridge, catching me by the arm, and turning her veiled face towards me, while her little eves twinkled through the

Don't what!' I asked. I'm not doing anything.

Well, but I thought you were going to take toll, replied Mrs. Lambkin.
'Toll!' I rejoined. What's that!'
'How! Do tell!' exclaimed the widow, her clear laugh ringing out above the music of bells. Dr. Meadows pretends he don't know what toll is! 'Indeed I don't then,' I said laughing in Don't know that the gentlemen, when they go a sleighing claim a kiss as toll, when they cross a bridge. Well, I never?'

But shall I tell it all! The struggles of using the preparation—as the growth of the removed her face was turned directly towards my own, and in the glittering of the meonlight, the horse trotting on himself, toll was taken for the first time in the life of Dr. Meadows.

Soon we came to along bridge, but the widow said it was no use to resist, and she paid up as we reached it. But you won't take toll for every span. will you, doctor?' she asked.

To which the only reply was a practical affirmative to the question. Did von ever, reader, sleigh-ride with widow and take toll at the bridges?

Caleb Cushing and Hannah F. Gould. We have seen in some of our exchanges lampoon of Miss Gould upon Mr. Secretary Cushing, when a young man, but in such a garbed form, and with so many absurd mistakes, that we scarcely recognized an old

Miss Gould was a resident of Vermont, and while on a visit to Massachusetts, was thrown in company with young Cushing.

She exercised her poetical powers in writing cutting epitaphs upon the voung beaus of the neighborhood. At a party which both attended, a paper was circulated which coused great merriment, and finally came to the eyes of Cushing, who read.

" Lie along, ye dead, For in the next bed Repose the ashes of Cushing; He has crowded his way Through the world, as they say,
And even though dead, may be pushing."

Cushing took the paper. disappeared a few minutes, and returned with another, which being circulated, put an end to the persecutions of the poetess. It contained the following:

"Here lies one whose wit Without wounding could hit: Green be the turf that's above her Having sent every beau To the regions below,

She now has gone down-for a lover." Miss Gould, who was verging towards old maidhood, did not relish this home thrust, and left off writing epitaphs in that society. -Erie Observer.

Couldn't Cos He Sung So!

Leaning idly over a fence a few days since, we noticed a little four year old "lord of the creation" amusing himself in the grass by watching the frolicsome flight of birds which were playing around him. At length a beautiful bobolink perched himself upon a drooping bough of an appletree, which extended to within a few yards of the place where the urchin sat, and maintained his position, apparently unconscious of the close proximity to one whom birds usually consider a dangerous neighbor.

The boy seemed astonished at his impudence, and after regarding him steadily for a minute or two, obeying the instinct of his baser part he picked up a stone lying at his feet, and was preparing to throw it, steadying himself carefully for a good aim. The little arm was reached backward without alarming the bird, and Bob was within an ace of damage, when lo! his throat swelled, and forth came Nature's plea: A link-a link-a l-i-n-k-, bob-o-link! a-no-weet. a-noweet! I know it-I know it a-link-a link-a-link! don't throw it! throw it, throw, it, de., dec., and he didn't Slowly the little arm subsided to its natural position, and the despised stone dropped. The min-strel charmed the murderer! We heard the songster through, and watched his unharmed flight as did the boy, with a sorrowful counand inquired:

Why didn't you stone him my boy you might have killed him and carried him home? The poor little fellow looked up doubtingly. as though he suspected our meaning, and with an expression half shame and half sorrow, hereplied:

Couldn't, cos he sung so! Who will say our nature is wholly depraved after that; or even that music hath no chorus to sooth the savage breast. Melody swakened Humanity, and Humanity— Mercy! The angel's who sang at the crea-tion whispered to the child's heart. The bird was saved, and God was glorified by the deed Dear little boys! don't stone the birds.-Clinton Courant.

It is characteristic of those who are severe on others, that they cannot bear se verity. Dean Swift, the severest satirist of Having the advantage of new Materials throughhis day, was one day dining with a company of gentlemen, one of whom he had made the butt of his ridicule, with repeated sallies.-At last the Dean poured upon a piece of duck some gravy intended to be eaten with a roasted goose. The unfortunate gentleman seeing this immediately said— My good Dean, you surprise me—you eat duck like a goose. The company roured—and the poor Dean was so confused and mortified; that he flew into a rage and left the table.

Kirkwood to Montrose

TAGES will leave Kirkwood, passing through Corbettsville, Liberty, &c., every morning after the arrival of the Mail and Night Express Trains of cars, reaching Montrose at 6 A.M. Returning, leave Montrose daily (Sundays excepted) at 4 P. M., reaching Kirkwood in time to take the Mail trains of cars, both East and West, being the easiest and most feasible route to reach the New York & Erie Railroad. This line intersects a tri-weekly line for Dimock, Springville, Tunkhannock, Wyoming, and Wilkesbarre, which leaves Montrose at 7 a. m. every Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Also, a line to Friendsville, Leraysville, &c. Good Teams and comfortable Carriages are provided, and the proprietors will spare no pains to accommodate the public.

THE subscriber will attend to occasional calls.

The subscriber will attend to occasional calls at his old business of SURVEYING in this vicinity when desired. Many of the old Farms in this county should be re-surveyed, to look up and renew the old land-marks, which are liable to get lost or obliterated by time so as to occasion disputes and difficulties for time to come. Every man who does not know the precise location of all his lines and corners therefore, should see to it in season, to prevent future trouble and litigation.
