

The Susquehanna Register.

H. H. FRAZIER, EDITOR.

MONROE, PENN.

Thursday Morning, July 21, 1853.

TERMS.

One dollar and fifty cents per annum, cash actually in advance.
Two Dollars if paid within the year.
Two dollars and fifty cents if not paid until after the expiration of the year.
Subscription will be permitted to remain unpaid longer than two years.
A small sum for advertising.

One quarter one week . . . . . $0.50
each subsequent week . . . . . 0.25
Business Cards per annum, with paper . . . . . 3.00
A liberal discount made to yearly advertisers.
Disbursements optional with the publisher, till all arrears are paid.

WHICHE STATE TICKET.

FOR CANAL COMMISSIONER,
Moses POWELL, of Lancaster county,
FOR AUDITOR GENERAL,
A. K. McClaire, of Franklin county,
FOR SURVEYOR GENERAL,
Christian MYERS, of Clinton county.

The School Question.

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

The recent insidious assaults upon our Common School System appear to have aroused the friends of the system in Pennsylvania, to renewed exertion and vigilance in its behalf. All, no matter of what sect they may be, who look with an unprejudiced eye upon the history of America from the beginning, must admit that a principal cause of our superiority to our neighbors in the possession of freedom, prosperity, and power, is to be found in that system of universal education which our wise and far-seeing forefathers so early established. Had the stern old Puritans forgotten to build school houses amid the wilds of New England, their descendants would at this time have been little superior to the savages they have displaced. And had the masses of the people of the colonies been as ignorant and degraded as most of the peasantry of Europe, the Declaration of Independence could never have been maintained against all the power of Great Britain, whose monarch set his pride revolt at the prospect of thus having thirteen brilliant jewels at once torn from his diadem, and never thought of giving up the contest till at length the idea was beaten into even his thick German skull that three millions of freemen, with arms in their hands, could never be conquered.

It has been a matter worthy of congratulation with all true lovers of our country, that hitherto, till within a brief period, amid all the jars and discords of political warfare and religious controversies, the whole people have appeared to be unanimously in favor of maintaining, in perpetuity, a system of general Common School Education. And that any sound, at this day, attempt to injure the cause of Education, by connecting the question with distracting religious and political controversies, must awaken the just indignation of every enlightened patriot in the land.

The perpetuation of our free institutions, and the maintenance of the integrity of the Union can have no guaranty so potent and reliable as the general diffusion of education among the people, is a truth that has been so often asserted that its repetition here would seem unnecessary. But, notwithstanding this truth is so generally conceded, there are many who can look unconcernedly and silently on, and see a systematic effort made to destroy our glorious plan of universal education, and, in its place to substitute a system of Parochial Schools, to be managed severally by the different religious sects. At least one sees—the Roman Catholic—have asked that a portion of the public money be appropriated for the support of such schools, and should they succeed, others would doubtless follow their example. The effect of such a system can be easily imagined. The result would be that very many children could not attend any school at all. Take, for instance, a township of Pennsylvania, peopled with farmers, of whom some are Catholics, some Methodists, some Presbyterians, some Baptists, some Universalists, some Dunkers perhaps, or Campbellites, and a good many belonging to what is often called "the World's Church." Under the present system, the township is conveniently divided into Sub-Districts, so that scarcely any of the scholars have to go further than a mile to reach the school house, wherein they are to be taught the rudiments of knowledge alike valuable to every human soul, no matter of what creed or country, while their instruction in those points of religious belief peculiar to that sect to which their parents belong, is properly left to the parents themselves, or to religious instructors employed especially for that purpose.

Under the proposed system there might perhaps be Catholics enough to support one school in the township, and enough of several other denominations to support each one, while those whose star happened not to be in the ascendant, must of necessity do without any school; and even the most numerous must gather their children from half a dozen miles distant to teach them what they could have learned as well near home, together with certain lessons in sectarian bigotry which are due.—New York Tribune.

THE GENESSEE MODEL SCHOOL for Boys, at Lima, N. Y., is an institution recently established "for the purpose of putting into practice that system of general education combining Physical, Intellectual, and moral training, which has been theoretically sanctioned throughout this country and Europe as the only means of developing all the faculties of man."

The system of instruction unfolded in the circular before us is much more comprehensive and nearer our idea of a complete course of education, than that usually pursued in the Higher Schools of the Country, and uniting as it does in a great degree, practice with theory in the various branches of knowledge, will go far towards qualifying boys for a proper discharge of the duties of life.

Prof. W. H. Depuy and Rev. W. B. Stoughton, the proprietors and Associate Principals of the Institution, are furnished with testimonies from Rev. B. F. Taff, D.D., President of Goshen College, and other well known friends of the cause of education.

For the Register.

Organize! Organize!

It is felt by the leading temperance men throughout the State, that the exigencies of the times require nothing so much, to carry forward successfully the temperance reform, as a complete and effective organization.

Friends of the Maine Law in Susquehanna county, are you aware that in every county in the State, that a thorough and most effective organization exists, and the friends of the Maine Law are marshalling their forces for a grand campaign from this time until the October election. And you must know that nothing will so effectively eradicate rum and its attendant evils as the Maine Law. Shall we be behind our sister counties in this great work of human redemption? or shall we not rather "in every town where Temperance organizations of any kind have existed, and have been suffered to run down, let them be resuscitated, and brought into an organized and vital existence again, and where there have been no such organizations before, let them be brought into being without delay." The Maine Law is legal. This has an important and interesting bearing on the rye culture, and on the happiness of mankind in general.

In London, papers of the size of the Daily Tribune sell for five pence, or ten cents, apiece, while the price of the Tribune is only two cents. Every advertisement, in England, was, till recently taxed 37 cents for each insertion.

Something for the World's Fair.

Joe Smith, the Starucca Viaduct, and George Walker's Corn Crop, have done something towards making Susquehanna county famous, but probably its capacity for great things has yet scarcely begun to be developed. We have just seen a pig, a native of Bridgewater township, that is quite as wonderful a product of nature as any of the two-headed calves or four-legged chickens that have made so much noise in the world. This pig, or pigs, the question of number depending on whether the head or the body is the seat of that which constitutes a porker's individuality—has one head and two eyes, like any other respectable pig; but it has three ears, the middle, one double; a double tongue, two throats in one neck, eight legs, and two tails; in short, two bodies complete and well formed throughout. Unfortunately, this unique production died in early pighood—much lamented. We understand that its mortal remains are to be preserved in spirits and sent to the World's Fair, as a specimen of modern improvement in the economy of pork-making, by diminishing the quantity of "sousé."

New Publications.

The Illustrated Weekly Record of the New York Exhibition of Industry of all Nations. Edited by Prof. B. Silkenat, Jr., and C. R. Goodrich, Esq., aided by eminent writers in each department of Science and Art. Published in the Crystal Palace, by G. P. Putnam & Co., 10 Park Place, New York.

This work is published pursuant to a contract made between the Crystal Palace Association and Messrs. Putnam, whereby the latter have become exclusively entitled to the privilege of publishing under the authority and sanction of the Association an Illustrated Catalogue and Illustrated Newspaper relating to the exhibition, and of printing and selling the same in the Exhibition Building.

The Journal as its name implies, will record the history, progress, and results of the exhibition. It is intended that all the descriptions and criticism shall be accurate and impartial. The letter press will be illustrated by engravings of the various objects exhibited. It will then supply a source of instruction as well as interest to all. The Record will be issued weekly during the continuance of the exhibition. Each number will consist of four double-columned pages of letter press in large quarto form; four pages of illustrations; and four pages devoted to the circulars of exhibitors.

The Illustrated Catalogue of the Exhibition will be printed uniformly with the Illustrated Record in one quarto volume. This catalogue will contain an account of all articles exhibited up to the close of the exhibition, with full descriptions of the most interesting and important objects; annotations by professional and practical men; and occasional diagrams and other illustrations not included in the Record. The Record and Catalogue can be bound together in one hand-some quarto volume, with about 400 illustrations, in the first style of Art. Terms for both works complete, $2.

The MAMMOTH PICTORIAL.—It will be just as we predicted—Gleason's Pictorial is now triumphant, and the great fight is becoming extinguished. Barnum's Newspaper has reached us, raised; that is, only half its original size. We congratulate Mr. Gleason and the public, who, perceiving at once the intention of the great showman, have supported Mr. Gleason. This is as it should be—what enlightened man, but most repudiate a system where wealth will seek to amass the talent and industry of those who were the first to conceive and carry into execution the designs exhibited in Gleason's Pictorial. Honor to whom honor is due.—New York Tribune.

fruits of prejudice and tailoring, would terminate separating friends from each other, unless such advocates of reform as Judge Lewis, J. Dillon, J. Drake, Parson Higgins, L. Mott, A. Pease, Judge Jesus, A. O. Warren, Priest O'Reilly, Dr. Cox, and many others, whose names are also recorded in my narrative, to posterity with honor as those I hope the tatters of mankind will never be able to separate from the love of our Heavenly Father, in his Son, &c.

E. WALKER, Woodbourne, Pa.

Aid-de-Chef.

—The price of admission to the Crystal Palace is fixed at 50 cents.

—Hon. Gerrit Smith has sent $1000 for the relief of the sufferers by the fire at Oswego.

—The new Rolling Mill nearly completed at Danville, Pa., was destroyed by fire on the 14th instant. Loss heavy.

—On the 4th of July it is calculated that upwards of ten thousand persons passed over the Pennsylvania Railroad between Pittsburgh and Blairsville.

—The total value of the India Rubber goods manufactured in the United States is estimated at ten millions annually, and nearly the whole trade has sprung up since 1844.

—There are in Europe and America, 83,000 local and 10,409 travelling preachers of the Methodist denomination, who minister to 2,036,162 members.

—The Democratic candidate for Governor in Maine is opposed to the Maine law, and so was the convention that nominated him. The law will again be made an issue in the election.

—A Judge, out West, has decided that "kissing a body" while coming through the rye is legal. This has an important and interesting bearing on the rye culture, and on the happiness of mankind in general.

—In London, papers of the size of the Daily Tribune sell for five pence, or ten cents, apiece, while the price of the Tribune is only two cents. Every advertisement, in England, was, till recently taxed 37 cents for each insertion.

—A number of seals of very large size have been seen in the inner harbor, Boston, within a few days, they are quite shy, though they can be approached while they are on the rocks and beaches near enough to have a rifle ball reach them.

—A band of Strolling Gypsies were at Washington, Pa., at the last dates, telling fortunes, selling their willow baskets, trading, etc. They are better dressed, and have better vehicles and horses than ordinary, according to their own account, they have emigrated from Lancashire, England.

—Río Grande dated to the 29th June state that troops were continually arriving in the Mexican towns on the frontiers in such numbers as were never before seen, and military encampments were being established at many points on the Río Grande.

—The marble quarries of Vermont are gaining a reputation abroad as well as at home. Two blocks of Vermont marble, weighing one ton each, have been ordered afloat for the purpose of making a monument to the author, the "prod-read," and the hero; to which the answer is, that it was not written for the purpose of being read, and therefore should not be criticized as a literary performance. Yet it is the most successful book of the age, and in the matter of profit will beat even "Uncle Tom" out of the field. I would, however, wager a trifle, that when Mr. Hawthorne comes to make a collection of his works, the biography of President Pierce will not be among them; and I wager a very large amount—if I had it—that one hundred years hence, President Pierce will be held up as an enlightened patron of literature, because of the appointment of Mr. Hawthorne to the Liverpool Consulate. What a curse it is to be the author of a book that is not an American masterpiece, who prefers the West Rutland marble to that of his own country.

—The region known as the New York Wilderness covers a considerable portion of the State, almost at its centre, containing many beautiful lakes and noble mountains, which present together some of the loveliest and grandest scenery in the world. The whole wilderness contains 4,500,000 acres of land, and the most of the whole region never echoed the sound of an ax.

—Mr. Dabney offers Clay Springs Farm, the birth place of Henry Clay, for sale. It is in Hanover County, Va., about 20 miles east of Richmond. It might have been bought five years ago for half its present value. Owing to the use of "calcareous manure," and the example of Edmund Ruffin, who resides there, the farm has been doubled and quadrupled in value.

—A singular incident happened to a young lad named William Townsend, in East Bradford township, Chester county, on Sunday last. He was tending some cows, when one of them, in swinging round her head to drive off the flies, caught him in the mouth with her horn, and ruptured the "roof." Fortunately he escaped very serious injury.

—A "horn" in the mouth is a dangerous thing. Many a clever fellow has been ruined by it.—Jeffersonian.

—The misunderstanding in the late Temperance Convention at New York, on the question of women participating in the public proceedings of the Convention, has resulted in a call by the seceders, for a "Woman's Temperance Convention," to meet in the city of New York on Thursday and Friday, the 1st and 2d of September next. The call is signed by Horace Greeley, Joshua R. Giddings, Theodore Parker, Rev. Antene L. Brown, Lucretia Mott, C. C. Burleigh, L. N. Fowler, Lucy Stone, and many others.

John Bull is rejoicing greatly because, as is alleged, the Conrad steamer Arabia, has made a trip of 3000 miles across the Atlantic, in less time than the distance was ever before accomplished in that direction, beating the Collins steamer Arctic, which had hitherto been the record holder. The Arabia was no triumph at all; and that the general popularity of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my heart, in or other words, thereby causing me to come from near the altar and took me forward to a comfortable seat near him, facing the people many of whose silent devotion, with his exercises in language I did not understand no more than the generality of protestants' singing, tended my