Jeff Davis's Account of His Capture.

My horse and those of my party proper were saddled preparatory to a start, when one of my staff, who had ridden into a neighboring village, returned and told me that he had heard that a marauding party intended to attack the camp that night. This decided me to wait long enough to see whether there was any truth in the rumor, which I supposed would be ascertained in a few hours. My horse remained saddled and my pistols in the holsters, and I lay down, fully dressed, to rest. Nothing occurred to arouse me until just before dawn, when my coachman, a free colored man, who faithfully clung to our fortunes, came and told me there was firing over the branch, just behind our encampment. I stepped out of my tent and saw some horsemen, whom I immediately recognized as cavalry, deploying around the encampment. I turned back and told my wife these were not the expected marauders, but regular troopers. She implored me to leave her at once. I hesitated from unwilliguess to do so, and lost a few precious moments before yielding to her importunity. My horse and arms were near the road on which I expected to leave down which the cavalry approached. It was therefore impracticable to reach them. I was compelled to start in an opposite direction.

As it was quite dark in the tent, I picked up what was supposed to be my 'raglan'—a waterproof light overcoat without sleeves. It was subsequently found to be my wife's, so very like my own as to be mistaken for it. As I started my wife thoughtfully threw over my head and shoulders a shawl. I had gone perhaps fifteen or twenty yards when a trooper galloped up and ordered me to halt and surrender, to which I gave a defiant answer, and dropping the shawl and raglan from my shoulders, advanced toward him. He leveled his carbine at me, but I expected if he fired he would miss me, and my intention was in that event to put my hand under his foot, tumble him off on the other side, and spring into his saddle and attempt to escape. My wife, who had been watching, saw the soldier aim his carbine at me, ran forward and threw her arms around me. Success depended upon instantaneous action, and recognizing that the opportunity had been lost, I turned back, and the morning being damp and chilly passed on to a fire beyond the tent.—From Jeff Davis's book, "The Rise and Fall of Confederate Government.

Greek Meets Greek.

A young man with a large book under his arm and a seven-by-nine smile on his mug stuck his head into the ticket window at the Union depot and asked the clerk what was the fare to San Antonio.

"Ten dollars and fifteen cents," replied the ticket slinger.

"I am pining to leave Galveston, but I lack just $10 of the ticket money. However, that sha'n't part us. I'll make a partial cash payment of fifteen cents and take the rest out in trade."

"What do you mean by taking it out in trade?"

"I am a book agent, and if you will let me have the ticket I won't try to sell you a book. I won't say book to you once. This is the most liberal and advantageous offer ever made to the public, and you ought to take advantage of it. I have been known to talk a sane man so completely out of his senses in fifteen minutes that he wasn't even fit to send to the Legislature afterward."

"What book have you got?" asked the ticket agent.

A beamiug smile came over the book agent's face, and in a sing-song voice he began:

"I am offering in sixteen volumes 'Dr. Whitlatree's Observations in Palestine,' a book that should be in every family; a book that comprises the views of the intelligent doctor on what he saw in the Holy Land, with numerous speculations and theories on what he did not see. Although forming a complete library of deep research, pure theology and chaste imagery, I am now offering this invaluable encyclopedia for the unprecedentedly low price of $2 a volume which is really giving it away for nothing—"

After the book agent had kept this up about ten minutes, he began to grow discouraged, for instead of showing signs of weakening, the ticket agent, with an ecstatic smile on his face, begged the eloquent man to keep on.

The book agent stopped to rest his jaw, when the ticket man reached out his hand and said:

"Shake, ole fel! Come inside and take a chair, and sing that all over again. That cheers me up like a cocktail. I used to be a book agent myself before I reformed and went into the railroad business, and that is like music to me. It soothes me all over. It calls back hallowed memories of the past, and makes me want to go back on the road again. I would rather pay twenty dollars than have you leave Galveston. You must come around every day. I could listen to that all day and cry for more.

The book agent shut his book and said:

"Some infernal hyena has given me away; but there is another railroad that I can get out of this one-horse town on. I'll not consent to ride on any road that don't employ gentlemen who can treat a cash customer with common politeness. You can't capture my book on any terms, and if you will come out of your cage I'll punch your head in less time than you can punch a ticket." And he passed out like a beautiful dream.—Galveston News.

"A LITTLE FARM WELL TILLED."—Well-worked small farms, as a rule, are proportionately more profitable than those of extensive dimensions. The products of the 38 acre farm of Milton Wickersham, Newlin township, Chester county, Pa., is an evidence of what can be accomplished on a limited area. Last year he raised 400 bushels of corn, 200 bushels of oats, and 160 bushels of wheat, each of these grains having five acres allotted to it. He made 1314 pounds of butter, fattened 2528 pounds of pork, and sold poultry and eggs to the value of $70. He also raised 30 bushels of white potatoes, and 8 bushels of apples. The net value about $1,200.

FARM AND GARDEN.

Exhausted Land.

There are, says a writer, various degrees and stages of exhausted or worn out lands. Some writers recommend clover as a reclaimer for exhausted lands; but a soil that will grow clover is by no means exhausted—at all events it is not the exhausted soil we shall allude to. What we shall refer to is old fields that have been turned out for years, and have grown up with briars, pine bushes or sedge grass. Even those lands can be reclaimed and be made profitable while being restored. Nature makes an effort to restore or heal all wounds that are inflicted upon her. If a man or other animal receives a cut or contusion, nature at once applies her healing power to cure the wound. So it is also with the vegetable kingdom. If a tree or shrub be cut or wounded, nature exerts her healing powers in proportion to the constitution of the plant. So if the soil be exhausted or wounded by bad farming, nature will cover it with something in process of time—most probably pine bushes, sedge bushes or briars. If a field has grown up with briers or pine bushes cut them down in the month of July or August, and, as there are probably gullies in the field, fill them up with the briers or bushes, leaving any balance that may be on the ground. The next spring the native grass of the country will probably begin to make its appearance; if it does not it will the year after. But when it appears and gets a start pasture it with sheep or cattle. The fall from these will add greatly to the soil. The second year after the bushes or briers have been cut down they will probably have been sufficiently rotted to plow the ground. Then run a colter or heavy harrow through it, and in August sow it down in rye and pasture all through the winter with sheep and cattle when the weather is dry, and so continue until August, when plow or harrow again, turning the ground over, and sow again in rye and pasture as before. The result will be, after several years of this process, you will have a soil that will produce clover, and then it is easy to make it produce wheat. In the meantime the pasture of your land will more than compensate for the labor bestowed upon it. If a field has grown up in sedge grass commence to pasture it with sheep and cattle early in the spring, when the young grass is tender, and pasture it heavily throughout the year, so as to keep it from going to seed. Sheep will fatten on it, dry cattle will keep in good order, and it will even increase the flow of milk from your cow, while will make golden butter. In two or three years the sedge grass will disappear, and then sow rye and the clover, pasturing the rye whenever the ground is dry enough to prevent the ground from being cut up by the cattle. Rye is a great favorite grass of mine. It is very nutritious as a grass and makes very good hay if cut when in bloom or the grain is in milk. Horses eat it nearly or quite as well as they do timothy or red top. Throwing straw or weeds on galled places is a good way to restore the land.

TURNIPS.—There is no crop that the farmer puts in the ground that pays him better than the turnip. We are aware that with some persons it is looked upon as of little account; but it has never received the consideration to which it is really entitled; and those who turn up their noses at it are not genuine farmers. It is a crop, moreover, that is put in at a time when the hurrying work is over; when it occupies ground that has already been used for something else. The cultivation also, say of from one to two acres of turnips, involves comparatively little labor. The crop, too, is harvested in November, when there is almost no other labor on the farm to interfere with it. As to the variety of seed to sow, we believe there is no turnip equal to the purple top. A topdressing of bone manure is almost indispensable to an abundant crop. For an early crop take the Early flat Dutch and sow broadcast, and now is the time. The Purple Top for the regular farm crop. This should be sowed in drills thirty inched apart and when the turnips are the size of a hickory nut thin out to eight or ten inches apart in the row. They seldom fail in affording a satisfactory crop. The crop can be put in the first half of August. Where land is a little short sow among corn at the last working. They will not interfere in the least with that crop, generally, and very little when it is harvested. Be sure always to procure seed of houses of reputation, and use that grown here instead of in Europe if you wish the best and safest article.

A Mountain Messiah.

This name has been given to the Rev. G. O. Barnes, who preaches the gospel in the mountains of southwestern Kentucky. He is an educated clergyman, who in his day has received large salaries from city congregations. But when over fifty years of age, he determined to lead a new life. He gave up his wealth to the poor, declined assistance of friends and began to preach day after day, upon the express condition that he should receive no money, only food and shelter for himself, wife, and daughter, for the time he was on duty. He travels from place to place, preaching the gospel, as he understands it, and leads as far as possible, a life of entire unselfishness. He has worked great changes in the community in which he labors, for they were a lawless set and not amenable heretofore to Christian influences. Nothing so strongly appeals to human respect as an entirely unselfish life. The man who offers up his life for his country, his religion, or the cause with which he is identified, will always be the popular hero. Society would become rotten and decay, were it not for those who live for others, and who do good without reference to any other earthly reward.—Demorest's Monthly for July.

Rheumatism.

In the first symptoms of this disease which you are aching and having painful sensations in the limbs upon rising from bed in the morning, a stiffness in the joints accompanied at times by swelling and redness, all physicians recommend the application of an external remedy, something penetrating and soothing; an article that will act as a curative agent to the parts affected. Dr. Bosanko's Rheumatic Cure gives instant relief upon the first application. In lame back, pains or strains it is an invaluable household remedy. Ask your druggist for it. Price 75 cents. I have used two packs of your Cattle Powder on my cow and chickens. The cow gave nearly TWICE THE QUANTITY OF MILK she did before. My chickens were dying, but were CURED IMMEDIATELY after I had used the power.

Yours, truly, JONAS PARSONS, Dallas, N. C.

I have used your Cattle Powder and must say it is the best for horses, cattle, sheep, etc. Tried it on poultry for many complaints, with success IN EVERY CASE.—JOS. WEAVER, BERRYSVILLE, Va.

Last summer you sent me a package of your powder which I gave to my poultry, and have not had one droopy turkey or chicken since.—MRS WM. KNAPP, Orange, N. Y.

Send me a pack or two of your Cattle Powder. The pack I got from you last winter CURED THE CHICKEN CHOLERA. I gave some of it to a neighbor and it cured his chickens.—JOHN WILLIAMS, Spruce Vale, Ohio.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Gents: Reading your advertisement in Turf, Field and Farm, of Kendall's Spavin Cure, and having a valuable and speedy Horse which had been lame from spavin eighteen months, I sent to you for a bottle by express, which in six weeks removed all lameness, and the spavin positions assumed by sick horses—better than can be taught in any other way, a table showing doses of all the principal medicines used for the horse as well as their effects and antidotes when a poison, a large collection of VALUABLE RECIPES, rules for telling the age of a horse, with an engraving showing teeth of each year and a large amount of other valuable horse information. Hundreds of horsemen have pronounced it worth more than books costing $5 and $10. The fact that 260,000 sold in about one year before it was revised shows how popular the book is. The revised edition is MUCH MORE INTERESTING. SEND FOR A CIRCULAR. AGENTS WANTED. Dr. J. B. Kendall & Co., Enosburgh Falls, Vermont. Mar 11-1yr.

Kendall's Spavin Cure

ON HUMAN FLESH.

Bakersfield, Vt., Dec., 23, 1879.

B. J. KENDALL & CO., Gents:—I wish to add my testimony in favor of your invaluable liniment, "Kendall's Spavin Cure." In the spring of 1878 I slipped on the ice and sprained my right limb at the knee-joint. I was very lame and at times suffered a most excruciating pain. I wore a bandage on it for a year, and tried most everything in my reach, but could find nothing that would give me permanent relief. When I overworked it would pain me very much. In April 1878 I began to think I should be a cripple for life; but having some of "Kendall's Spavin Cure" brought I would try it. I used one third of a bottle, and experienced relief at once. The pain left me and has not troubled me since. I feel very grateful to you and would recommend "Kendall's Spavin Cure" to all who suffer with sprains or rheumatism.

Yours truly, MRS. J. HOUTELL.
