

JUDSON HOLOMB, CHAS. L. TRACY, PROPRIETORS. JUDSON HOLOMB, Editor.

THURSDAY, DEC. 15, 1881.

DUTY OF REPUBLICANS.

Taking a retrospective view of the rise and progress of the Republican party, its grand achievements in the preservation of the Union, its wise and successful financial policy, the promotion of all the material interests involved in the progress and advancement of the Nation to the highest standard among civilized nations, we contemplate these beneficent results with the profoundest satisfaction. The suggestion is naturally presented that these successes are the results of combined and harmonious action of the party as a whole, cemented by a loyal, patriotic purpose to achieve the greatest good for the country. It is to be sorely regretted that the harmony and unity of the party has of late been seriously disturbed by a departure on the part of ambitious leaders from its early traditions in respect to the rules of party government and organization. Schemes and distinct names characterizing different elements of republicanism have sprung up within the organization, "Stalwarts" and "Half-breeds," between which there has arisen a fierce struggle for the mastery in the life of the party. It has become a subject of serious reflection for those who entertain no other motive for political action than the maintenance of the principles of republicanism in their integrity, whether there is not real cause of alarm in the prevailing divisions and dissensions in the party, whether factional divisions will not ultimately in its disruption and destruction. Certainly, if persisted in by party leaders they can have no other result.

The drawing of lines within the party on a factional basis must cease and be obliterated, if the party life is to be preserved and party ascendancy promoted and perpetuated. There must be concessions by the various elements of the party, one toward the other, with the single purpose of combining into one harmonious whole the various elements. The past we should leave behind and devote our energies to building up the waste places and strengthening the party position, thereby making future victories easy.

Standing upon its principles, independent of the personal ambitions and animosities of party leaders which has led to unpleasant and unprofitable strife between them and their personal following, the party is as strong to-day as at any period in its history. Its financial policy is eminently wise and has proven highly successful and satisfactory to the people. Its record upon the question of a tariff for promoting and protecting our home industries is accepted as the settled policy of the country. It sustains the principle of universal education; the commercial and foreign relations are highly satisfactory, and its policy in general is satisfactory to the people and claims their fullest confidence. There is nothing in the way of future success, except the dissensions engendered by the unwise action of eminent party leaders, having no reference to the fundamental principles which gave birth and life to the party and upon which it has achieved so much good to the country. Let us all as patriotic members of the party devote our energies for the discouragement of party divisions. We must recognize the fact that the inherent source of all power is in the people in a primary capacity. This is the very foundation stone of a pure republicanism. Leaders who have drifted away from this fundamental doctrine must be brought back to a realizing sense of their obligation. Give to the people every facility for a free, full and fair expression of their judgment in a primary capacity regarding the choice of candidates, and see to it that their will is honestly and fairly reflected in our county, State and National Conventions. Their chosen representatives in our State and National Legislatures must act with due respect to the popular will. There should be no cause for complaint. Then our appeal to the masses of the party for harmonious and united support in the party's candidates will not be in vain. Confidence will be restored with the people and future party success be assured.

Our aim shall be to accomplish such a result, and our efforts devoted to this end.

Senator David Davis, President pro tem of the Senate, the great Illinois Independent, mid on the witness stand in the Guitau trial that "nothing short of the disruption and destruction of the Democratic Party would ever disrupt and destroy the Republican party."

The Republicans in choosing officers of the House of Representatives for the present Congress, exercised good judgment in respect to geographical location.

Ohio has the Speaker, Pennsylvania the Clerk, Vermont the Door-keeper, Tennessee the Sergeant-at-Arms, and Michigan the Postmaster.

Col. John W. Forney Dead.

The death of this veteran American journalist occurred at his residence in Philadelphia early on Friday morning last. His death was caused by Bright's disease, aggravated by a bad cold. He was born at Lancaster Pa. Sept. 30, 1817. He learned the art of printing in the office of the Lancaster Journal. In 1837 he was editor and joint proprietor of the Lancaster Intelligencer. In 1840 he united the two papers and conducted the publication for seven years. In 1848 he became editor of the Pennsylvania, the chief organ of the Democratic party in the State. He was chosen clerk of the U. S. House of Representatives which position he held from 1852 to 1855. He became on his retirement editor of the Union, the Democratic organ, at the National Capitol. He resigned and returned to Philadelphia in 1856 to be made Chairman of the Democratic State Committee. In January 1857 he was defeated by Simon Cameron for United States Senator. He started the Philadelphia Press as an independent Democratic daily, and advocated the election of Buchanan, but on his failure to be elected Senator he vigorously opposed his administration on the ground of his Leocompton policy. He was again chosen Clerk of the House by the 58th Congress, but this time by the Republicans. In 1860 he became a pronounced Republican, and started the Washington Chronicle in 1861. From 1861 to 1869 he was Secretary of the United States Senate. He disposed of the Press and also of the Chronicle, some eight years since, and traveled for a time in Europe; and contributed a series of letters to the Press "On Europe."

His last journalistic enterprise was the Progress, a weekly, devoted to political, literary, social, scientific and biographical matters. He worked devotedly upon his journal up to Wednesday last week, when he became prostrated by the disease which so rapidly ran its course and terminated his life. Col. Forney was a brilliant writer, though he lacked the elements of stability of purpose. His name will fill a niche in American history.

We clip from the Beaver Argus of November 30th, of the following complimentary notice of Hon. James H. Webb:

James H. Webb, Esq., of Bradford county, for many years represented the county in the Legislature, was elected Register and Recorder of his county, at the recent election. He gained an enviable reputation throughout the State while serving in the House for the ability, integrity and high character with which he discharged his duties as a public officer. He was Chairman of the committee of Ways and Means, Speaker of the House, filled other important positions with credit to himself and the Commonwealth. He was a strictly honest man, and did not, like many others, make money out of his position, for which the Republicans of his county have rewarded him by electing him to a paying office.

As a sensible document, and uncommonly free from political affectation and clap-trap. President Arthur is a positive man, with the courage to say what he has to say and to do what he has to do in a straightforward manner.

Will stand with the best of the ninety-one which have been made by his predecessors.

A very careful and well-matured document. It is more frank and direct than is customary in such papers, and its recommendations, extensive and varied as they are, show that the President is not inclined to shirk the duty of advising Congress by his suggestions and advice.

The Message of President Arthur is admirably written, calm and dignified in style and tone, and addresses Congress, as it is his constitutional duty to do, on many important subjects with a wisdom and sound judgment which will win for him the public confidence, and for his recommendations the attentive consideration of both houses.

The best informed citizens will derive from this review much interesting and important information.

Everybody will admit the President's message to be a business-like paper. That, however, is the faint praise which people are accustomed to bestow upon messages which are entirely pointless, and as President Arthur's message by no means points to the stock phrase fails to do justice to it. In fact, its distinction is that it is pointed. It may almost be said to bristle with points when contrasted with the smooth and said imbecility of Mr. Hayes's messages.

Judge Lynch's Court.

TWO COLORED MURDERERS HANGED.

Oxford, N. C., Dec. 11.—Last evening a mob forced the jailer to open the doors of the jail. The guard were disarmed and looked up in the guard house, and John Brodie and Shadrach Heister, colored, were taken and hanged near a spot where they murdered Thomas Lynch.

COMPPELLING A DISHONEST CASHIER TO CONFESS.

CALDWELL, KS., Dec. 1.—A rope was put around the neck of Cashier Smith last evening, and fearing lynching, made a confession as to where the bank's assets have been placed.

TWO MORE NEGROES HANGED.

SHERBURNES, MISS., Dec. 1.—Two negroes having confessed to the murder of a judder named Lawenstein two years ago, and to the recent assassination of Robert Cantin, a mob hung them last night.

As one of the beneficial results to Pennsylvania, of the election of Mr. Keifer to the Speakership of the House, is the appointment of Hon. Wm. D. Kelley, of Philadelphia to the Chairmanship of the Ways and Means Committee. This Committee will have charge of all questions relating to the tariff, and the protective principle will be safe in the hands of Judge Kelley.

A Vienna Horror.

Five Hundred Lives Lost—Burning of the Ring Theatre, Vienna.—The First and Subsequent Telegrams.

VIENNA, Dec. 9.—Last night just before commencing the opera, the Ring Theatre, formerly the Comico opera house, in this city, caught fire from a lamp upon the stage, which was immediately followed by an explosion of gas, plunging the audience in darkness. A scene of great confusion ensued on that took place.

THE STRUGGLING MASS OF 2,000 persons tried to escape from the burning building. Many were trampled under foot and seriously injured, and many were killed outright. Many rushed to the windows and with cries of agony appealed to those in the streets below to save them. A large number were saved by ladders, while others jumped into clothes held by the people below.

THE SCENE WAS TERRIBLE, the flames shooting high up through the roof and entirely gutting the building. Indeed the flames spread so rapidly that the people within the building were prevented from taking advantage of the ordinary exits. The bravest of the ordinary exits. The bravest of the ordinary exits.

EFFORTS TO SAVE LIVES were made. It was estimated at midnight that 300 persons had perished in the burning building. At 11 o'clock p. m., 145 bodies had been received, a majority of them being THIRTEEN DISFIGURED and almost unrecognizable. Most of the bodies identified up to midnight were those of women and children. On several of the bodies of children the disfigurement of the face was so great that the performances at the other theatres were stopped. The work of recovering the bodies goes on steadily. Many were consumed in the galleries and other elevated parts of the building.

FIVE HUNDRED BURNED TO DEATH.

VIENNA, Dec. 9.—It is now thought that the number of the dead may be swelled to five hundred.

The interior of the edifice was very handsome, but the stairs and passage ways were laid out in a strangely complicated manner. They proved fatal to many who escaped the horrors of suffocation in the auditorium.

Of 157 bodies taken to the hospital, ninety-six are those of men and forty-one women. Twenty are so badly burned that their sex is undistinguishable.

The five water taps above the stage, which might have been of material assistance in checking the fire at the outbreak, were not used in consequence of the panic.

RELIEF FOR THE SUFFERERS.

The lower houses of the Reichsthal adjourned to-day, after several sympathetic speeches. Here, as elsewhere, that an ample fund would be raised for the relief of the sufferers.

Ten thousand florins were subscribed on the Bourse this morning for the families of the victims. Business was suspended.

FOUR HUNDRED CORPSES RECOVERED.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—A Vienna dispatch states that four hundred corpses have been recovered from the ruins of the theatre.

THE FIERCENESS OF THE FIRE.

IN AN HOUR and a half the whole building was a roaring furnace. Three persons whose bodies were first rescued apparently died of suffocation, but the others present a shocking spectacle. Many have their head or feet burned off.

The building is still on fire.

THE FUNERAL OF THE VICTIMS is fixed for Sunday. The managers of all the theatres announce special performances for the benefit of the sufferers.

SIX HUNDRED AND NINE MISSING.

The number of persons actually known to be missing is 609.

FUNERAL SERVICES TO-DAY.

VIENNA, Dec. 11.—The bodies of the victims of the theatre disaster will be quickly transported to the Central Cemetery to-day, where the funeral services will be celebrated with great pomp before a colossal catafalque, on which the coffin will be placed. All Vienna corporations and the civil and military authorities have been invited to attend.

A funeral list of 580 victims is published.

SEARCHING FOR THE REMAINS.

VIENNA, Dec. 11.—Evening.—The work of the removal of the debris from the theatre has been resumed. The hall was the bodies are laid out presents signifying scenes.

NINE HUNDRED AND SEVENTEEN MISSING.

The official list gives the missing as nine hundred and seventeen.

IT IS FEARED, as the debris is removed, that hundreds of bodies will be found in the passages.

A HEAP OF HUMAN BONES.

The captain of the fire brigade states that all inside the theatre is a heap of human bones and charred remains.

A WOMAN'S APPEALS UNHEARD.

FRANZINA POKAN, the daughter of the well-known member of the Chamber of Deputies, who succeeded in escaping, whilst urging the people outside to attempt the rescue of those inside, was treated as mad by the police, and forcibly made to cease her importunities, the guards declaring that everybody had been rescued.

A RELIEF COMMITTEE has been constituted. The municipality will contribute 50,000 florins.

Dreadful Calamity at Pittsburg.

TEN MEN BURNED TO DEATH.—A LARGER NUMBER FATALITY INJURED.

A Pittsburg dispatch Dec. 10, gives the following account of the dreadful affair:

Between two and three o'clock this morning a frame boarding-house, located on the line of the Pittsburg and Lake Erie Railroad, some seven miles below this city, was set on fire by the explosion of a boiler, and out of fifty persons known to be sleeping in the building only twenty-four escaped alive, and everything was more or less burned; and none of the inmates secured their clothes, so rapid was the progress of the flames. The rest were literally roasted to death without the possibility of an effort to save them.

The building was owned by Martin Joyce, a contractor, but was under the management of Mr. Kowa, a boarding-house keeper. It was about thirty feet wide and fifty-eight feet in length, and constructed of sixteen foot boards, placed on end. It had a board roof with a very steep pitch; and the loft formed by the sloping roof was where the laborers were huddled for thought. In the lower story was the dining room, and at one end of the building was the kitchen. The stairs leading to the loft were little better than a ladder, and were located just at the side of a door leading from the dining room to the kitchen. In the loft benches were arranged, but the only light that entered came through two openings without glass, but which were closed at night with sliding doors, so as to exclude the night air. In the loft some forty-three men are supposed to have slept last night.

THE SERIOUSLY INJURED were brought to the depot on the west side, and thence removed to the Pennsylvania Hospital, while those who were not seriously burned were removed to the hotel of Martin Joyce, on Pennsylvania avenue. The bodies this morning at the site of the ill-fated building were of a sickening character. In a heap in one corner of the ruins were the charred remains of six men, who had evidently succumbed to the fiery element while endeavoring to escape through the opening in the roof. Among these was the body of Patrick Foley, one of the foremen.

MISSING OR DEAD.

From the best sources of information possible to reach at present, the following is a list of those known to be missing or dead, but there are others yet to be added to the list:

Patrick Foley, John Kennedy, Michael Donohue, Jerry Hanlon, Thomas Foster, John Connors, James Curran, John Conley, John Reilly, John Duffy.

Among those said to be missing are John Connelly, Martin Tuhey, Michael Morgan, Michael Leonard, Hugh McKeown, and Wm. Barr.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

"The Weekly Times" has nearly doubled its former large circulation during the past year. Its contributors from week to week are among the foremost men of the nation, and no department of news or literature is slighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

THE ANNALS OF THE WAR—chapters of unwritten history that should be preserved for the benefit of the nation, and as a department of our literature is lighted in any number on any subject, as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travel and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.