THE BRADFORD COUNTY

By Mrs. Jennie S. Swell.

We read in the sacred traditions of our

of the beautiful Gate, on the "evergreen

Where the souls to whom we ministering

And have words of comfort in "Jesus will meet us with welcome, will watch and to guide us in safety through the beautiful

Oh! those beautiful Gates in the mansion of bliss, Whose walls are of jasper, and pale

On the north, on the south, the east, and

On the west, The twelve gates of pearl, in the land of the blest; Whose records await us, we shall await

These gates, and pass over the streets of pure gold!

All honor and glory to Him who hath wrought For God's living temple, his treasures of thought!

The Jewels He placed are garnered with care, In the crown of the Master; they are fair; As gleaming above 'the bright starry throne, Shall be the sweet promise, "Well done faithful one!"

PAULINA.

White as the wings of the sacred dove,

Descend the snows and robe the ground;

White as the veil of the bride of love,

Or around of the virgin dead inow—

White as the snow, that falls from heaven,

That thy snow be true, Paulina.

Softly they fall over sea and land;

Soft as the dew of the breath of May;

Soft as the clasp of a child's hand;

Soft as the touch of a sleeping fairy;

Soft as the sigh, and softer than thy,

In thy sweet breath, Paulina.

Cold as the dews when the snows descend;

Cold as the heart lying there at rest;

Cold as the marble that tells of the end;

Cold as the glacier on Elbrus's crest—

Cold as the heart, that is not cold as the breast,

As heart's love is true, Paulina.

A BASH ENGAGEMENT.

'Now, Gerard, I shall count on you.'

'My dear aunt, said Gerard Fay, with her hand and looking in her sparkling face with intense gravity, 'do nothing of the sort. I protest against it. You have invited me to your country seat

with perturbed notes and a hundred attentions. I yield; for who but a man of such struggle against destiny in such a place? But enough so far—

I consent to be ornamental—to adorn our barouche, to accompany you to church and stare down the loungers

at the door; but I utterly and entirely refuse to be useful. I will not wait phreatic downers! I will not wait with you to select my "not sharp

Mrs. Partington at the Soldier's Fair.—Mrs. Partington sat at the factory table, her face radiant with satisfaction, her hands being by the string from the back of her chair, and her benevolent spectacles contemplating the surroundings.

"What will you be helped to?"

"Thank you, dear, for your polite attention," she replied, looking bene-volently upon the charming attendant;

"I will take, if you please, a cup of long tea, with milk and sugar—not sweet—and if you will be sure that it is not made of the electrolytic water, which you advertised in the paper, I shall be much obliged."

"How are you enjoying the fair?"

"I am very much pleased," she responded, "and I am very much pleased to see you here. When one is decom-
