Republican State Ticket.

FOR GOVERNOR, GEN. JAMES A. BEAVER, of Centre Co. LEUTENANT-GOVERNOR, WILLIAM T. DAVIES, of Bradford Co.

FOR SENATOR, WILLIAM HENRY RAWLE, of Philadelphia. SECRETARY OF INTERNAL AFFAIRS, JOHN M. GREER, of Butler Co.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE, THOMAS M. MARSHALL, of Allegheny.

The next Governor of Pennsylvania will work like a Beaver to pile up a big majority.

Twenty-three thousand five hundred emigrants arrived at New York during last week, the largest number on record.

An exchange suggests that if we had any navy we might send it to the Gulf-stream.

The Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin remarks: "The Independents no longer have a grievance, but a few of them are mad even about that."

Mr. Rawle's letter of acceptance of the Republican nomination for Justice of the Supreme Court has been received by Chairman Lear, of the Harrisburg Republican Convention.

The Philadelphia Press sent a representative to Washington on Tuesday to pay to the wife of Sergeant Mason $3,672.62—the amount of the Press fund for "Betty and the baby."

During April there arrived in the customs districts of Baltimore, Boston, Detroit, New York, Minnesota, New Orleans, New York, Passaic, Philadelphia and San Francisco 104,274 immigrants.

The Pittsburg Commercial-Gazette claims to have dispatches from every county west of the Allegheny mountains indicating that General Beaver will be solidly supported by the Republicans of those counties.

This is the way a Connecticut paper looks at it: "The Independents in the River and Harbor appropriation bill is a substantial success. It was supposed that they might have crossed the Atlantic in the Scythia, which reached New York Thursday, and a number of the Federal officials were prepared to take them into custody, but their preparations went for nothing, as no persons corresponding to the description given were found on board. It is, however, reported that the English police, acting upon information received, have arrested some suspicious strangers about to start from Liverpool, but the chance of their proving to be the persons wanted is small."

The search for the Dublin assassins has not yet been attended by any substantial success. It was supposed that they might have crossed the Atlantic in the Scythia, which reached New York Thursday, and a number of the Federal officials were prepared to take them into custody, but their preparations went for nothing, as no persons corresponding to the description given were found on board. It is, however, reported that the English police, acting upon information received, have arrested some suspicious strangers about to start from Liverpool, but the chance of their proving to be the persons wanted is small."

Says the Philadelphia North American: "It is, of course, a proper and laudable ambition for any honest citizen in a Republican State to aspire to any honorable office, or to any position of trust, responsibility or profit. It is also proper to bear in mind that his ambition is as just and right in connection with the regular nomination of one party as another, and to call an organization Independent does not make it any more a domestic industry, since the nomination of any party is not more a domestic industry than if it were called Republican or Democratic."

The Greenbackers held their State convention in Harrisburg Thursday, and nominated the following ticket: Governor, Thomas A. Hanson, editor of the Pittsburg Labor Tribune; Supreme Judge, J. Adam Coker; of Northumberland; Lieut. Governor, Mayor Powderly, of Scranton; Secretary of Internal Affairs, J. L. DeWolfe, of Venango; Congressman-at-large, R. K. Tomlinson, of Bucks. A motion to change the name to "National Party" was defeated by a vote of 100 to 50.

Senator Cooper, Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, has announced the names of those who are to assist him in his conduct of the State campaign, as follows: Chief secretary, Lucius Rogers, assistant secretary, Thomas White, Secretary, Samuel Barr, of Harrisburg; Chris L. Magee, of Pittsburg; John McCullough, of Philadelphia; Selma H. Thomas, of Lebanon; William M. Allen, of Mifflintown; Joseph Ad. Thompson, Washington, D. C.; Chief clerk, Frank H. Taggart, of Chester.

The daily receipts from customs and internal revenue into the Treasury of the United States for each business day last week were as follows: Monday, $1,565,491.63; Tuesday, 1,038,030.43; Wednesday, 960,381.63; Thursday, 1,330,391.42; Friday, 1,340,719.12; Saturday, 1,384,831.27.

Total, $7,100,448.40. An average of $1,183,408.06 per day.

Senator Mitchell's grievance would seem to be more in the nature of a quarrel with the national administration than Senator Cameron, than with the Republican party. It is wise for him to attempt the defeat of the party in order to defeat the President and Cameron.

General Beaver's nomination for Governor is supported by the entire element of the temperance cause. Such a combination of elementary strength could not have been beaten by Don Cameron's machine or by any other power.

Senator Tom Cooper winds up his article on the State Convention in the Media American with the following: "The platform we are more than hopeful—we feel the spirit of the approaching jubilee."

The Philadelphia Press says: "The Republican ticket, with Beaver at the head, will receive a very large Independent vote, because it is a very much that kind of a ticket, and deserves to be supported."

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 23, 1882. SENATOR MITCHELL'S REVOLT.

The Republican members of the Pennsylvania delegation in Congress, with one or two exceptions, express deep regret that causes, which might have been avoided, and for the good of the party should have been avoided, have led to the revolutionary movement headed by Senator Mitchell.

While they do not agree with Senator Cameron, and his political methods, they do not think that Senator Mitchell is justified by the circumstances in his attempt to defeat the regular ticket in Pennsylvania. Not a single Republican member from that State, with possibly the exception of Mr. Bayne, of Allegheny, will co-operate in the movement. They, nevertheless, do not underestimate the consequences that may result to the Republican party in Pennsylvania from such a revolt.

The "Stalwart" Republicans are said to be hostile to the movement and say "it will amount to nothing," but in truth and soberness, they give evidence to severe alarm. A revolt which is likely to carry with it from 50,000 to 100,000 Republicans on a portion of not all of the ticket, it must be confessed, amounts to a factor in Pennsylvania politics that justly excites alarm. It will endanger Republican supremacy in the State Government, and in the legislature, and aid in giving the next Congress and the Presidency to the Democrats.

The Independents, however, scout the idea of such a move. They give assurances that their aim is to elect a sufficient number of Independents in the next legislature to enable them to maintain a "healthy balance of power" between the Cameron Republicans and the Democrats, upon all questions of political reform, and in the succeeding legislature, which will elect a successor to Senator Cameron be able to hold so strong a balance of power as to make his election impossible. If this be the scope of their revolt the danger is that in dividing the Republican vote upon candidates for the legislature, they will defeat themselves, and make the legislature hopelessly Democratic.

The report of Senator Mitchell's mass-meeting in Tioga, reached here through the Philadelphia Sunday paper yesterday morning, and has been the absorbing topic of political talk since. One significant fact that should be a warning to Republicans is that the Democrats are jubilant.

It is reported here upon high authority, that two at least, of the most influential Republican Senators, who are at large, have pledged themselves to stump Pennsylvania for the Independent ticket. Such a pledge in advance of the Independent convention is highly improbable. There appears to be a stern determination on the part of Pennsylvania Republicans, so far as we have met and talked with them, to stand by the 10th of May ticket, and if success is achieved, to demand such reforms as will leave no ground of further complaint. This would seem to be the wisest and best course to pursue in the premises.

EXTENSION OF NATIONAL BANK CHARTERS. The bill "to enable national banking associations to extend their corporate existence," passed the House on Friday afternoon last, by a protracted debate of nearly a week, by yeas 125, nays 67. The Democrats joined with the Greenbackers in opposition to the bill. In the negative we find such Democratic leaders as Randall, Beltzhoover, Holman, Springer, Morrison, and Knott, united with Brown, Ladd and Murch, Greenbackers. The object of the bill is to enable national banking associations whose charters are about expiring to extend their corporate existence without winding up their corporate business and organizing anew, which most of them will desire to do.

It is expected that the District Supreme Court in the Gutieau case will announce its decision to day and will affirm the finding of the court below which convicted him of murder in the first degree and sentenced him to be hanged. The Post of this city says: "The Court holds that the jurisdiction might be maintained, if necessary, on the ground that this is a United States Court with all the powers of any Circuit Court of the United States."

Second—That this is a judicial district and that under the provisions of the law when a crime is begun in one and completed in another district the offence is complete in either.

Third—That the murder being an offence in this district against the United States, and the removal of the President to New Jersey did not take him beyond the jurisdiction of the district against which the offence was committed.

Chief Justice Waite and Justice Miller, of the United States Supreme Court, asked whether a writ of habeas corpus, if granted, could be granted by the full court in session, and the other justices are absent from the city.

Gutueau is certain to hang. The execution will probably take place in the latter part of June.

THE DEMOCRATS FILLIBUSTERING. At a secret caucus held by the Democratic members of the House on Thursday evening last it was agreed to obstruct by every possible measure known to parliamentary law, the action of a majority of the House in the several contested election cases now pending involving the right of Republicans to seats held by Democrats.

The first case unsettled is that of Mackey vs. O'Connor, of the Second South Carolina District. Committee on Elections, after an exhaustive examination of the case reported in favor of seating Mackey, Republican.

The circumstances are somewhat peculiar. In the Congressional election of 1880, Mackey ran against O'Connor, Democrat. O'Connor was given the certificate of election, and Mackey gave notice of contest, claiming that he was elected by a majority of the legal votes. Before the meeting of Congress
