It was a very merry tale, and Mr. Isaac Barclay, to say the least, had a good time.

The weather was bright for the first three weeks. The alder and the willow were in full bloom.

"But your friend is a good fellow, is he not?" she asked. "You know Abby is in my care."

"The answer was brief as a telegram: 'So young a man but that delectable French girl!'"

"Assassination by silence" is the latest medical fad. It is the verdict of a French man recently deceased.

"Dearest Annie, I don't begrudge. Roast me, roast me, roast me, roast me."

"I shall die," screamed Miss Barclay. "I'd rather than be a widow."

"No, I must write it all." "I shall die," screamed Miss Barclay.
