

STORY OF A BABY'S SHOE.
Initiations of the Mad Fate of a Little Girl in a Montana Woods.

A little over three years ago a little girl named Sarah Godfrey strayed away from the home of her parents, who resided in the town of Walkerville, Montana. A search for the child was made by the relatives, but without success. (Word was sent to Walkerville and this city and seventy-five or one hundred men engaged in the search for the little one.) The child was found in the country surrounding the home the little child had been thoroughly examined for miles, but not even a shred of the clothing worn by her could be found. A drizzling rain, accompanied by a slight snowfall, added to the general difficulty of the undertaking and all hope of finding her was abandoned. The general supposition was that she had strayed into the timber and was seized and borne by some wild bear or mountain lion. Prominent citizens of Butte, sympathizing with the parents, offered a reward for the delivery of the lost child to her parents, dead or alive, or for information that would lead to her recovery. For some time there was a number of persons who still sought the whereabouts of the child, but at last gave up the search and considered further effort in that direction hopeless.

A few days since the parents of the child received word that a little shoe had been found about a mile and a half from the place where the child strayed from. Some hunters found the shoe on the 24th inst. They did not know of a child having been lost, and consequently did not mention the occurrence for several days. Mr. Godfrey went to see the men. The shoe was handed him and he recognized it as his daughter's. Proceeding to the locality where the shoe was picked up, they found also a piece of a stocking and remains of a skirt, which were also identified as belonging to the lost child. Near by was a bear's den. It was entered and searched, but there was nothing further discovered. Mr. Godfrey is desirous of making another search in the hope that the bones of his daughter will be discovered and given burial. —Butte Inter-Ocean.

GOV. HOYT'S ENDORSEMENT.
Executive Mansion, Harrisburg, Pa., June 7, 1892.

John H. Phelps, Scranton, Pa.:—
My Dear Sir:—I received your receipt of your Elvira in days since, I referred upon its use according to your directions, stopping my Laid Palms, Phos. Ammon. and Wine of Colchicum. At that time I was completely disabled with gout in both feet and rheumatism in both knees, and helpless. Now I comfortably hobble about the house, and expect to be out in a week. It may be a coincidence, my amendment and the use of your medicine. I hope for no occasion to try it again, but if need be I shall try it again in a fresh attack, with great confidence.

Very truly yours,
HENRY M. HOYT.

THE SELF-POSSESSED MAN.
One of the Noblest Persons Seen on a Railroad.

Among the noblest persons on the train you will not fail to discover the self-possessed man. He is easily recognized by his rotundity of form, his serene unconcernedness of the frets and worries which make radiating a misery to the ordinary mortal, and his supreme indifference to the comfort of his fellow-passengers. The self-possessed man invariably carries, by a sort of natural selection, the best seat in the car, always on the shady side, and manages, by the aid of his hat, his traveling bag, and his muslin cap, to keep the seat as cool as possible. He is a fact and a masterpiece of the situation, he keeps it to the end of his journey. The self-possessed man, having calmly settled himself in the centre of the seat, with his hat upon one side and his traveling apparatus on the other, slowly produces his newspaper, and proceeds to its perusal with dignified deliberation. Of course the self-possessed man has his window wide open, but he is not at all disturbed by the noise of the train. He is not at all disturbed by the noise of the train.
