Annoyance Prevented. Gray hairs are honorable but their prema-ture appearance is annoying. Parker's Hair Balsam prevents the annoyance by restoring the youthful color.

SNUFF, AND SNUFFING. A lucky capture of Spanish galleons, laden

with choice snuffs from Havana, had inaugurated the reign of Queen Anne, and been the means of introducing into England the Continental fashion of snuff-taking. Wagon-loads of the "titilating dust" thus imported being publicly sold at 3d. and 4d.-a pound, the box soon rivaled and at length eclipsed the pipe. Sir Plume, "of amber snuff justly vain," became a character, and was kept in countenance as well by "the fair" at the drawing-room as the Chairman in the streets. To parody a well-known line, "Snuff ruled the Court, the camp, the grove." Snuff-taking was elevated to the rank of a passion by the wits and beaux of society. To offer a box gracefully became an educational requirement, and a general flourish of snuff-boxes took place, if not "all over the land," as Cowper said, at least from Pall Mall to the 'Change. A pinch to conciliate, a pinch to condemn; a pinch gave pungency to the jest, a relish to the sarcasm, and equally served to cover embarrassment and chagrin. Talleyrand used to ing names. See that the word say—and he was a priscur—that the snuff.

Certainly Prince Metternich was devoted to the box, and diplomats generally appear to have viewed it Are the only improvement ever with favor, as well, indeed, they might, when some £8,000 or £9,000 were expended made in Plasters. in the purchase of boxes for presentation to foreign Ministers at the coronation of George of any other kind.

"HISTORY OF BALLOONING.

Wo are now within a single year of the centenary of the first balloon, which was sent up on the 5th of June, 1783, by the brothers Montgolfier. Their balloon was inflated with heated air, but in the following August M. Charles employed hydrogen gas for the same purpose. In September the Montgolfiers attached a car to a fire balloon and placed in it the first aerial travellerssheep, a cock, and a duck. The cock's leg was broken by a kick from the sheep, but otherwise the strangely assorted trio sustained no injury. In October the first human eronaut, M. Francois Pitatre de Rozier who was afterward killed in an attempt to cross from France to England, made his first ascent in a "captive" fire balloon tethered to the ground by ropes. In the following months, accompanied by the Marquis d'Arlandes. De Rozier ascended in a free fire balloon, and ten days later M Charles and Robert rascended in a free ba loon inflated with hydrogen gas. The first balloon was sent up from England about the same time, and in February, 1784, the first which crossed the Channel, while in August of the same year the first human ascent from British ground was made by Mr. Tytler. Thirty-seven years elapsed before there was any definite advance on the achievements of the first transfer of the same year the first human ascent from British ground was made by Mr. Tytler. Thirty-seven years elapsed before there was any definite advance on the achievements of the first transfer of the first tra 1821 Mr. Green showed that hydrogen might be replaced by ordinary coal gas, and that a balloon might be inflated and despatched wherever there was a gas manufactory capable of supplying the necessary quantity.—

THE "DANCING TURKEY."

A gentleman has recently told us that one M. N. LOVELL 3(2 Lackawanna Ave "snide showmen" has at different times had an "attraction" in a dancing turkey. The bird was exhibited in a large cage, and crowds of people have stood before it and with wonderment seen it dance fast or slow at the word of command. The cage with the bird in it was placed on a platform before a curtain. Under the platform was placed a lamp, the flame of which touched the tin bottom of the cage. Behind the curtain a man was stationed who could true the of horsemen have pronounced it worth more the tin bottom of the cage. Behind the curtain a man was stationed who could turn the flame up or down as he desired. When ready the showman would say to the turkey something like the following: "Now, old fellow, dance a little." The man behind fellow, would turn on the flame the the curtain would turn on the flame, the bottom of the cage in a moment became FIRE AND LIFE INSURANCE warm, and of course the bird felt inclined to raise its feet, and would do so. "Dance a fast jig," perhaps would be the next command. The manipulator of the lamp would turn on more heat and the turkey would move in a manner that was truly lively. The people would look and wonder, and praise the genius and patience of a man who could teach a turkey to dance. It is said that this man has made over $1,500 during the present season from his "great attractions," and he will no doubt continue to make money in the same way, for, after all, the people seem to like to be humbugged.

—Lewiston Journal ferring to old-time duels, a scribe in the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle states that eighty years ago James' Cheetham, an Englishman, edited the American Citi- LANE & DECKER ten, while William Coleman edited the Evening Post. A quarrel occurred between these journalists, and the result was that Coleman challenged Cheetham; but the latter wisely declined. One of his friends, however, well Livery and Boarding known as Captain Thompson, took up the quarrel, and, according to the ridiculous code of honor, Coleman sent him a challenge. These two men, who had no personal antagonism, met in Love lane (as it was then called), and Thompson was shot. Coleman was the only New York editor that ever killed his man in "an affair of honor." He re- atten mained at the head of the Post until his death in 1827, and was then succeeded by Bryant. Love line at the time referred to was a distant suburb, but now as Twenty.

It has been asserted by scientific surgeon nat the will-power of a sick man has a great deal to do with his dying, and the case o Charles O'Conner is cited as evidence. A still stronger case occurred in Michigan the past summer. An old man, living in the Northern part of the Sinte, got out a lot of timber many years ago for a toll-road company, but the company failed and left him in the lurch. For years and years he tried to sell the timber to this one or that, but no one wanted it. and at last time and decay rendered the beams almost worthless. Last summer the Supervisors of that county advertised for proposals to build a bridge, and the old man put in a bid. While waiting to see what would be done he was taken very sick, and he grew worse so rapidly that a council of doctors was called. After due deliberation he was informed that he was approaching his

the job, and my living or dying will depend At 5 o'clock in the afternoon the son at the family physican arrived in company. The old man was neither better nor worse. "Well?" he asked, as John approached. "Our bid was accepted, father." "And we've got the job?"

"Yes; but the doctor says you can't live. "I can't, eh? I'm not only going to live build that bridge, but I'm going to work that square timber into it up to the last foot, ir my name isn't John Rogers !" It is a fact vouched for by a dozen good men, that he was off that dying bed in a week, and in less than a fortnight he was at work on the bridge.—Detroit Free Press.

The exactions of society, added to the cares of maternity and the household, have tested beyond endurance the frail constitutions which have been granted the majority of women. To combat this tendency to premature decline, no remedy in the world ssesses the nourishing and strengthening roperties of Malt Bitters. They enrich he blood, perfect digestion, stimulate the liver and kidneys, arrest ulcerative weakness, and purify and vitalize every function of the female system.

CIVILIZED GAME. When we see the familiar pheasant on the table at meals, we take it for granted that until it fell a victim to the breech-loader of some fortunate sportsman, it is a simple child of nature. It is quite as likely, however, that it was not. Few people perhaps are aware of the thousands of these birds that are raised by hand, in order to provide an ample supply for those sportsmen who like to kill birds without having too much rouble in hunting for them. A great deal of labor is expended in furnishing such game. The business of rearing the birds from eggs, under the domestic hen, involves careful supervision by day and night on the part of a staff of experienced keepers, who, in the beginning, have also no little hard work to do in collecting the eggs. Besides the danger the little birds run of being stolen and sold to some neighboring estate, they pure love of mischief, will bite off their beads if he gets the opportunity." In the case of the baby pheasante will not, until they are ten days old at least enter the carefully boarded wire-run in front of their coops; and have to be fed upon a delicate mixture of finely-chopped egg and meal. Even after they are strong enough to roam about, the keeper is compelled to maintain a sharp look-out when the day is wet, as the long damp grass often proves fatal to their constitution. Until the age of two months is reached, when they are turned into the woods, the pheasants have to be fed five times a day; and a vigilant watch must be kept at night, as they are liable to be pounced upon both by two-legged and four-legged thieres.—Ohumber's Journal.

At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatuency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture, like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, particularly at night after getting warm in bed, is a very common attendant. Five Million Dollars a Year.—The Duke of Bedford owns something like a quare mile, right in the heart of London. It is closely packed with business houses and lwellings. His smallest rent is probably not below $400 a year, exclusive of taxes, which are paid in this country almost invariably by the tenants. The largest of the Duke of Bedford's rents must be very high up in the thousands. He practically controls a large section of London. Many of the very streets ere his private property, and are fenced in to that no carriage may pass, excepting between certain hours. This is for the conenience and comfort of his tenants. If you have a mathematical mind, you can try to mpute the income from a mile of closelypacked buildings. This is only a part of Bedford's property, for he owns vast country estates. He must receive close to £1,-100,000 a year. - London Correspondence

REDUCED HER FAT. According to the verscious chronicler the San Francisco Chronicle, a young woman of that city was immensely stout, had tried in vain to reduce the weight which was becoming almost insupportable. At last a re-lative of the family's who had returned from Africa furnished her with some anti-fat remedy, a portion of which was said to be made of the colobar bean. On leaving for the East last May he handed it to her with directions for taking it; and cautions against an excessive dose. She began it, and at moe grew smaller, not slowly and imperceptibly, but rapidly and visibly. Every day she saw the wane of her bulk, and hugged her thinner self for joy. Her spirits grew buoyant as her weight grew less, and one Sunday morning she surprised her parents by bounding down stairs three steps at a leap. Two dressmakers were employe all the time "taking in" the dresses of the young lady, but notwithstanding all their pleating and tucking, her clothes hung on her, as one of them said, "like a shirt on a bean-pole." She startled the whole neigh-borhood by tripping along the sidewalks a tonvalescent from dropsy, and to all wondering remarks replied only by a smile. As the days went on, however, and the condensation of their daughter showed no signs of coming to a stop, her parents began to grow to desist from taking any further doses. But it was too late, she was "thin as s lath." She glided about like a ghost. Med ical attendance was summoned, but the girl dwindled and ebbed until the other morn ing, the mother stole into her room, uttered a loud shrick and fell senseless to the floor Her husband rushed in just in time to an intengible something that lay in bec shiver, grow indistinct and disappear. poor girl was gone, and what adds the great
