The Strange Adventure That Once Befell John Heward Payse in Georgia. John Howard Payne, author of "Home, Sweet Home," was a warm personal friend of John Ross, who will be remembered as the celebrated chief of the Cherokees. At the time the Cherokees were removed from their homes in Georgia to their present possessions west of the Mississippi river, Payne was spending a few weeks in Georgia with Ross, who was occupying a miserable cabin, having been forcibly ejected from his former house. A number of the prominent Cherokees were in prisen, and that portion of Georgia in which the tribe was located was scoured by armed squads of the Georgia militis, who had orders to arrest all who refused to leave the country. While Ross and Payne were seated before the fire in the hut. the door was suddenly burst open and six or eight militiamen sprang into the room. The soldiers lost no time in taking their prisoners away. Ross was permitted to ride his own horse, while Payne was mounted on one led by a soldier. As the little party Rhoumatism or Lame Buck. left the hovel rain began falling and contin- Cramps or Sprains. ued until every man was drenched thoroughly. The journey lasted all night. Toward midnight Payne's escort, in order to keep himself awake, began humming: "Home, home, sweet, sweet home," when Payne re-"Little did I expect to hear that song un der such circumstances and at such a time. Do you know the author?" "No," said the soldier. "Do you?" "Yes," answered Payne. "I composed repeated the song in a slow, subdued tone, and then sang it, making the old woods ring with the tender melody and pathos of the words. It touched the heart of the rough soldier, who was not only captivated but convinced, and who said that the composer of such a song should never go to prison if he could help it. And when the party reached Milledgeville they were after a preliminary examination, discharged, much to their supprise. Payne insisted it was because the leader of the squad had been under the magnetic influence of Ross' conversation, and Ross insisted that they had been saved from insult and imprisonment by the power of "Home, Sweet Home," sung as only those who feel can sing it. The friendship existing between Ross and Payne endured until the grave closed over the mortal remains of the latter. -Southern World.

CONSUMPTION.

It is said that 50,000 people die annually in the United States alone from this disea In some sections of the country one death in every three is from Consumption. This can be, and should be avoided; our people; are too careless about an ordinary cough or cold, and other symptoms of throat and lung affections that lead to this disease. You should arrest it while it is in the germ. Two or three doses of Dr. Bosanko's Cough and Lung Syrup will relieve an ordinary cough or cold. It does not dry up a cough like many preparations on the market and leave the disease behind it, but acts directly on the throat and bronchial tubes, removing all the phlegm and morbid matter that In some sections of the country one death

AN UNPROTECTED INDUSTRY.

Of the various industries that create and disseminate wealth in this country, there is none so modest and yet so material as the hen. The goose that laid the golden egg was once the fabled favorite of a foolish prince, but in the light of recent statistics on the egg trade the performances of that famous bird are no longer, singular. Aside from the commercial value of the hen product, the egg serves another useful purpose. There are few adults of either sex who have not paused while indulging the breakfast luxury to bless the hen, and thus the beautiful sentiment of gratitude is promoted in the human heart.

But the magnitude of the egg industry is of itself sufficient to attract a larger share of public attention than has been given it. According to an excellent authority the grand total of eggs annually consumed in the United States aggregates in value the sum of $75,000,000. Of course, if the prices that prevail here ruled in all parts of the country this would not imply a very large consumption of eggs, but the estimates are based upon the prices current in local markets and hence the number of eggs eaten, whether on the table or in the form of egg-nog and other enticing mysterics, must be very considerable. The same authority estimates, the value of the egg consumption in New York city at $18,000,000. No estimates are made of other cities, but all are grouped in the grand total.

Nor has the genius of man been idle in the matter of preserving eggs. Various less success, that serve to show that in a select circle the importance of the egg has been recognized. Everybody is familiar with the liming process, and homely methods peculiar to each community are as numerous as the sands of the seashore. But the latest development consists of crystallization. This is the withdrawal by artificial process of the water from the shell, leaving a consolidated mass of yolk and albumen, which is capable of resisting climatic and other staling influences indefinitely. This multiplication of methods is more important a indicating a general concern in the subject than by reason of any inherent merit, however. An egg fresh laid has advantages over all systems of curing and the hen will only attain her rightful position in the body politic when all plans of preservation fail and the egg is forced to market and the breakfast table fresh from the nest .- Philadelphia Times.

THE CRAZE OF CLEANLINESS.

Cleanliness in Holland is a mania, almost a craze: It is the only thing to which they are extremists, and though the leaning is to virtue's side, it is inconvenient to a degree There is not a speck, nor a millionth part of a speck of dirt to be found in any of their uses, and as for vermin it is unknown. A spider is a Holland woman's especial aversion, and such a thing as a bed-bug would arouse a street into action. Their beds are SURPLUS FUND..... 80,000 miracles of cleanliness, and their floors are scrubbed till they shine again.

I should say that the life of the average Amsterdam woman is divided up something This Bank offers unusual facilities for like this: Six to 8 A. M., scrubbing inside the house; 8 to 8.30, shaking the carpets and rags on the sidewalk, breakfast of coffee and bread; 9 to 10, scrubbing outside the house; 10 to 11, scrubbing the sidewalk; $11 to 12, preparations for dinner; 12 to 1, dinner; 1 to 3, scrubbing upper part of the house; 3 to 4, shaking carpets of the upper stories; 4 to 6, finishing up the scrubbing of the house and getting the soap and brushes ready for the next morning. At 6 she takes her supper and retires to dream of that takes her supper and retires to dream of that the scrubbing carpets and scrubbing.—Nasby in Exile.

A WALL STREET MILLIONAIRE. Yet there is at least one man who always makes money in the street; but then he is an exceptional being and his resources are unfathomable. That man is the Hon. Russell Sage. His main income comes from the mle of privileges. Never mind how dull the market may be or which way it goes, there are always people willing to buy puts and calls, as a protection against big losses, and Uncle Russell is always ready to sell them, especially if the broker is a man of the world and treats him nicely. The other day one of them promised a customer to buy for him a ninety-days' put on 200 shares of Wabash preferred at 46. The stock was selling at 54, and the broker thought he was sure to get it. But Mr. Sage happened to be in mone of his close-fisted moods and would not sell it above 45. The broker showed him two brand-new hundred dollar bills. But nothing seemed to work. "Pil tell you, Mr. Sage, what I will I'll give you $200 in cash and send to you self and a basket of flowers for Madam. You would really oblige me by selling that put. I promised to get it for a good custo

"Never mind the flowers," answered the old gentleman somewhat less harshly than he had spoken before-" Never mind the flowers. I don't want no flowers. Send me something else. Send me a gallon of good Keystone whiskey. You know where to send it-406 Fifth avenue. Give me that money and go and make out the put," The broker's commission was only $10. while his bill for the keg of Bass and the demijohn of whiskey was $15.85; but he was delighted at being enabled to accommo date his customer. When the bargain was broker retorted: "Why, there is nothing new in that. I have been keeping the old fellow in groceries for two or three years past. But there is one thing to be said about Sage. If you spend a dollar on him you are almost sure to make $10, and if you pend $10 you make $100. I think if any sort, he would make his fortune, provided the old man did not jump the game after he got the horse." Mr. Sage is supposed to be worth $20, 300,000, and his fortune has been accumu lated solely by this kind of strict personal attention to the details of all business transactions. A MAMMOTH MONTANA MINE.

An important transfer of mining ground in Emigrant Gulch, of 160 acres of placer, has recently been made by Messrs. Edwards & Harper, formerly of the Black Hills. A ditch ten miles in length, 14x2x4 feet, and to carry 2,000 inches of water, is now being dug, and operations will commence as soon as water can be brought on the ground. The ground is very rich, and will be worked with giants. A saw mill is now on the way to the gulch from the East. It will cost $40,000 to get in readiness for mining, but the owners are confident they will be able to cake out between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 the first season. The ground was purchased by Messrs. Doty, Gliddon, Campbell & Chaffer, for the sum of $31,000. Emigrant Gulch was one of the first mining camps in Montana, and yielded rich returns on placer works until the Indians raided the camp and forced the miners to flee for their lives. since then the camp has been deserted and the cabins have crumbled into decay until hardly a vestige of the ruins remains. There is quite a stretch of agricultural land on ither side of the Yellowstone River at this point, principally on the northwest, which is well watered and in a fair stage of developement. In fact, Paradise Valley, as it is called, is the finest agricultural land on the Yellowstone, and if the old mining camps are to be restored at Emigrant Gulch, Bear, and Crevice, supplies would be of easy access __ Bozeman Courier.

The "Hermitage" is approached through a long row of cedars on either hand. Here, and wooden coping in front, reside. Colonel Andrew Jackson, adopted grand-son of the hero, with his wife and mother and two old negroes, man and wife, about sixteen years old when purchased by Jackson, nearly sixty years ago. General Jackson and his wife sleep side by side in the little garden near the residence, each beneath a broad granite slab. Inscribed in old-fashioned Roman letters are the words on the slab which covers Mrs. Jackson, composed by her devoted husband:

"Here lie the remains of Mrs. Rachel Jackson, wife of President Jackson, who died 22d December, 1828." The old hero had been elected President his first term, but did not take his seat till March 4, follow-

"A being so gentle and yet so virtuous, vile slander might wound, but could not dishonor. Even death when he tore her from the arms of her husband, could but transport the arms of her husband, could but transport her to the bosom of her God."

The day of the funeral, Jackson, feeble and heart-broken, walked slowly behind the coffin, leaning upon a long cane he was accustomed at that time to carry about his worth its weight in gold for all Itching Disfarm. As the friends of the dead gathered about to look for the last time upon her about to look for the last time upon her face, General Jackson lifted his cane as if appealing to heaven, and by a look commanding silence, said, slowly and painfully and with a voice full of bitter tears:

"In the presence of this dear saint I can and do forgive all my enemies! But those look to God for mercy." One of the most beautiful and redeeming traits in all this rugged and heroic nature was the unalterable love and devotion he bore his wife. For seventeen years after her death the memory of this noble woman was cherished, until the summer of 1845, when he was laid to rest beside the only woman he ever loved—loved with a romantic tenderness and strength surpassing the dreams of fiction .- Nashville Correspondence Courier Journal.

DB. B. J. ERRDALL & Co.-I had a very value. Dr. B. J. Empart. & Co:—I had a very valuable Hambletonian colt which I prized very highly, he had a large bone spavin on one nont and a small one on the other which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two veterions day reading the advertisement of Kenda 14 Spavin Cure in the Chicago Express, I determined at once to try it, and got our arragants here to send for it, they ordered three bottles, I look them all and thought, I would give it a thorough trial, I used it according to directly and the control of the control of the colt cased to be laime, and the lumps have disappeared. I used but or ebottle and the colts limbs are as free from immes and as mooth as any horse in the state. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that itself two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles, who are now using it.
