once or twice a day. Patients who were real sufferers rose from this treatment strong, fat and rosy. But unfortunately there are nervous patients who are shams to whom such a regimen would be intolerable. Dr. Dash was sent for once in haste to a wealthy woman in New ... York, supposed to be dying, though no phy sician could discover her ailment. She had not tasted food for days. He shricks were incessant, her features livid and pinched as in articulo mortis. Her friends, exhausted by months of nursing, stood waiting to see her depart. The doctor made a close examination of the case She recognized him and her eyes gathered

"I'm dying, doctor," she mouned. "Nothing of the kind," shortly.

"What ails me?" she said, after a loude He looked her steadily in the eye. "A husband who has too much money," he answered, briefly. Then, turning to the at-

Another case was that of a leader of fashion in a Southern city, who came with her suite of husband, maids, lap-dog, etc., to him to be cured, declaring herself "a perfect wreck." For a couple of days ha watched her through her usual routine; lolling on a couch through the day, -groaning, shuddering, helpless —then up at night brilliantly dressed for ball or opera. As the result of his watching he ordered her into the hospital and put her through the usual regimen of bed, absolute inaction, solitude and manipulation On the second day she dressed herself unobserved, stole out of the house and to the station, and literally run away, never halting antil she was at New Orleans, from which city she telegraphed for her husband and for her clothes.

Nervous diseases are alarmingly rife in this country. But there is a nervousness born of idleness, or of fashionable dissipation, or of morbid sensibility, which makes victims, not only of the patient, but of her victims, not only of the patient, but of her family. AS THEY WISH TO BE SEEN. Men and Women Who Delight in Having Their Photographs Taken.

There are many persons who have. almost a mania for seeing themselves photographed," a Browiway photographer said. "I have some customers who come two or three times a year. Sometimes they get new negatives and sometimes use the old ones. It is not an uncommon thing to print half a dozen orders from the same negative for a law if we happen to get good picture. Then the friends who judge her age by her picture wonder at the slight change in her appearance. That sort picture is the favorite for sending in the country. Generally speaking, I may say that good looking yomen are our best customers for repeated orders. But if a woman is not good looking she sometimes makes it up with fashionable dress. I have some customers who are photographed in every new bonnet or dress. Most women nowadays like to be pautographed in their wed

"The babies are among our best customers. Mammas who can afford it have their babies photographed often in early years. A baby changes so much every few months that a set of pictures soon becomes invaluable. A gentleman showed me the other day a full set of portraits of his son from one month to twenty-one years old. It included all styles, from the old-fashioned daguerreotype to the latest, cabinet size. Many parents have their children photographed in uniform imperial or carteade visite size. There is no reason why the poorest persons should not keep such records of their children's progress. It is this sort of trade that furnishes business to photograph galleries generally. There is, of course, an immense business done in photographing actresses, but that generally falls nto the hands of a few galleries."

THE GOOD FELLOWS.

This world is full of a class of men who are popularly known as good fellows. They are in every walk of life, in greater or less numbers, but are especially apt to occupy political positions and places of trust in oneyed or commercial institutions. The good fellow has many amiable and attractive qualities. He has a pleasant smile for everybody and a hearty grasp of the hand for all his acquaintances, Ho hates to wound anybody's feelings by saying no t their requests when the word yes is just a easily pronounced. If he is in politics he has cigars and drinks for the boys as often as they want them. If he is a bank cashier he is ever ready to accommodate his friends with loans to the full extent of his discretionary powers without very strict regard to their financial soundness. He dislikes to stop peoples mouths with questions about security. His name heads the church subscription list and the poor are loud in their praises of his liberality. He delights in making other people enjoy themselves, and on the whole is a mighty good fellow. So everybody says, and what everybody says must be true. And being a good fellow the avenues to place and enjoyment seem to open to him much more readily than to common mortals. If he runs for an office he is sure to be elected. The average voter is extremely fond of the good fellow. If he is an applicant for a public position he can get more indorsers on his petition than General Grant could. Everybody wants to see him prosper, he is such a good fellow. He has no trouble in getting cashierships, confidential clerkships, treasurerships and in fact any place of trust or profit he may desire. All roads to prosperity scem to be open and smooth to the good fellow. People who enjoy his acquaintance rarely get envious at his good fortune, either. He is such a good fellow that he disarms envy and captures With all this wealth of good will at his command and the advantages which popularity is sure to bring it would appear that the good fellow ought to prosper and increase in goods and graces to a green old age. But he hardly ever does. If he is in politics he somehow acquires the fatal habit of spending the public funds when his own are exhausted. He drinks for companionship at first and ends by drinking to gratify appetite. If he is a bank cashier he spends his salary and makes up for its deficiency by spending the money of the depositors. If he is a salesman he has an unconquerable tendency to put his hand in his employer's till. The outcome of his good-fellowship is an involuntary trip to Canada or Brazil to avoid the minions of an unsympathetic law. Then everybody declares that the aforetime good fellow is a very bad fellow.

The temptation to young men to embark in the calling or profession of good fellows is very strong. But it doesn't pay in the long run. There is no more pitiable sight in the world than one of these played-out good fellows. Poor fellow is the kindest epithet which will be betwowed upon him, even by the best friend he has left, while by the great mass of mankind he is denounced and cursed without stints. It will be better for young men not to be quite such good fellows at first. They will last longer and be more useful in the end. - Philadelphia

CONSUMPTION.

It is said that 50,000 people die annually and Lung Syrup will relieve an ordinary cough or cold. It does not dry up a cough like many preparations on the market and leave the disease behind it, but acts directly on the throat and bronchial tubes, remo ing all the phlegm and morbid matter that accumulates in the throat and lungs. It allays all irritation, and renders the voice clear and distinct. Sold by C. B. Porter's Ward House Drug Store. july271y.

DOLLS WORTH MANY DOLLARS. Baby Pets o' the Petted Bables That Cost Enough to Make Papa's Head Hum.

Said a doll dealer to a Journal reporter: The value of the last few week's importation may be put at $600,000. Three hundred thousand dollars' worth are now in the retail shops to be sold to private customers for holiday presents to children. The rest will be purchased from the wholesale shops by out-of-town dealers. Why, a ready-made doll's costume of ordinary elegance is worth $50, and such costumes are made for spring, summer, winter and autumn, as a doll could not reasonably be expected to wear the same clothes the year round. The banner doll in this shop is valued at $95. Her dress and iewels are very rich and elaborate."

"Show me an economical doll." "Certainly," said she; " here is one in white satin, with a white satin cape trimmed with swan's down, poke bonnet ditto, silk stockings and kid slippers. It is $50. Here is an æsthetic doll in old gold plaid plush sacque, with a blue satin dress and red satin bonnet with ostrich tips; a mere matter of $45."

The reporter gasped and turning to the uperintendent of the department, said, Do these dolls goout of stock alone?" "No," said he; "they require elegant ssean boxes of foilet articles, trunks, andboxes, &c. A folerable wardrobe includes two extra dresses-one of fancy satin the other of white satin; a full line of underwear; lace caps, fashionable hats, neck laces, earrings, brooches and a basket of flowers. Some wardrobes are arranged i handsome boxes; others in trunks, ready for starting. A fair wardrobe costs $12; some are $9, while a limited wardrobe for a very young doll is only 98 cents." A miniature bedstead with a brocade velvet spread and tardinal satin cushion costs $9. More luxurious couches for dolls cost $15. Cunning rustic chairs are $3 and $4. It was a sight to move the pity of strangers, even without the tears of the unhappy little traveller himself, and speaks of deeper sorrow left behind.

The other night says the Philadelphia Times, when the day express from the West arrived in the Broad Street station, there was one boy passenger among the throng less than four years old. When the little fellow was taken into the station-master office tears were trickling down his cheeks, and successive sobs made his words unintellgible, but the conductor on the train and a tag on the boy's back, made of card-board, sewed strongly to his coat, told his story. In a feminine hand was written: "This is the only son of a widow, whose ircumstances compel her to part with him.

His name is Nathan, and he is on his way to his grandfather, Jacob Shem, Chester, Delaware County, Pennsylvania." The juvenile traveller started from Illinois, three days ago, and his little gripsack of lunch and a diminutive bundle of clothing completed his outfit. He had barely touch ed the lunch, so dazed and bewildered was be with the excitement attending his journey.
