ROME The people of Rome and vicinity deeply regret the departure of Mrs. J. H. Spalding, M. D., but highly congratulate the peo ple of Cortland Village, N. Y., that it is their good fortune to have her place abode with them. She is without doubt one of the most efficient and successful physicians in our country and her skill confirms it. Her ride has been very extensive both near and far during the six years practice, seldom losing a patient. Her skill in diphtheris cannot be excelled, as it has been very prevalent here in its worst stages for the past few weeks; she having been called in most every instance with marked success, losing but one patient from the vast number. Various diseases which were pronounced incurable by nearly all physicians were healed through her treatment. There is one instance in our own town of a lady who had been treated for 8 years by many eminent physicians with no wail. She at last applied to Dr. Spalding and the result was a cure. These are not alone her excellent qualities, but she is a very amiable lady and highly esteemed by all with whom she forms an acquaintance How much we shall miss her from our society and also the mirth which transformed the gloom of the sick room into sunshine The entire community are surprised and all are perplexed with the same query, "Why has she left us, when her rush of business is so enormous i" The unanimous wishes of success go with her, but such an expression seems useless for all are confident of this result. TROY. Prof. Homer, of Elmira, will hold another singing school in Troy this winter in the will join as they did last winter and a fine his readings in various places in the county.

Our building is still temporary. A part of it was once the Freight Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad. It has been built around and upon, until it looks more like a Turkish mosque on the old side: while on the new, it has taken in so many Chestnut-street stores, that it looks like any other part of Chestnut street. We hav'n't made money enough in these five years to put up a building worthy of the place and of the trade. You will be interested in seeing how we have turned and twisted these old buildings about, and how many commodious and really elegant rooms we have, without so much as wall-paper between them.
