Der deutsche Kompaß.

Mit dem 1. Januar 1914 hat Frankreich, wie früher schon England, das deutsche System der Kompaßeinteilung auf allen seinen Seekarten, in seinen Seehandbüchern, Nachrichten für Seefahrer und Leuchtfeuerverzeichnissen eingeführt. Damit treten höchst wichtige Aenderungen ein, die im Interesse der Seeschifffahrt sehr zu begrüßen sind. Die bisherige Zugrundelegung des Meridians von Paris auf allen französischen Seekarten hatte von jeher Umrechnungen erfordert, die nunmehr fortfallen, da vom 1. Januar ab alle Neuerscheinungen oder Neudrucke auf dem Gebiete der Meereskartographie, soweit sie in Frankreich herausgegeben werden, als Nullmeridian den Meridian von Greenwich zur Grundlage nehmen. Mit der Annahme der deutschen Kompaßeinteilung werden jetzt alle Peilungen und Kurse rechtweisend in Graden von 0 bis 360 Grad angegeben werden. Bisher fand sich auch auf allen französischen Seekarten als Abkürzung für das Wort „Ouest" die Bezeichnung O. Es liegt auf der Hand, daß durch dieses O, das unserem „Osten" entspricht, sehr häufig schwerwiegende Versehen in Bezug auf die Kursrichtung der Schiffe herbeigeführt wurden. Hierin tritt nun eine Aenderung dahin ein, daß als Abkürzung für „Ouest" an Stelle des bisher gebräuchlichen O ein W tritt.

Im Zusammenhang mit diesen einschneidenden Aenderungen auf dem Gebiet der nautischen Kartographie verdient auch die Tatsache bemerkt zu werden, daß die deutschen Seekarten im Auslande immer mehr Verbreitung finden. Gerade England, das Land, welches in Bezug auf die Anzahl der schon herausgegebenen Seekarten und ihre praktische Verwendung im Seedienst bisher an erster Stelle stand, hat bezeichnenderweise die deutsche Seekarte nicht nur in der Handels, sondern auch in der Kriegsflotte mehr und mehr bevorzugt. Diese Tatsache muß um so höher bewertet werden, wenn man bedenkt, daß noch vor kurzem auf deutschen Schiffen ausschließlich fremdländische Seekarten in Gebrauch waren. Man darf heute feststellen, daß die deutschen Seekarten die englischen wenn nicht überholt, so doch zumindest eingeholt haben. Dafür zeugt der Absatz der deutschen Seekarten, über den jüngst der Staatssekretär des Reichsmarineamts in der Budgetkommission des Reichstags Zahlen anführte, die einen trefflichen Beweis für die Bedeutung der deutschen Seekarten in der internationalen Schifffahrt bilden.
