

AN HONEST LAWYER.—An attorney on the marriage of his son, gave him £500, and handed him over a chancery suit, with some common law actions. About two years afterwards the son asked his father for more business. "Why, I gave you that capital chancery suit," replied the father, "and then you have got a great many new clients, what more can you want?" "Yes sir," replied the son, "but I have wound up the chancery suit, and given my client great satisfaction, and he is in possession of the estate."—"What, you improvident fool," rejoined the father indignantly, "that suit was in my family for twenty-five years, and would have continued so as much longer if I had kept it. I shall not encourage such a fellow." The sequel of the story is, that the father died a few years afterwards in comparative poverty, while the son continued to conduct his business honorably and uprightly for fifteen years, and has now retired on an estate, which he purchased, and where he resides, respected and esteemed by all who knew him.
