What is that we call the Constitution? The nd that which constitutes is the blood. We, therethe certain result: for all pains or unpleasant feelings proceed from the presence of corrupt or vitiated humors, which are the real cause of every of the blood.

They have cured since their introduction into this country at least 20,000--twenty thousand persons-of diseases heretofore always considered incurable. It is only five years since I opened the first office for the exclusive sale of this medicine in New York; yet, in that time I have sold over twelve miltions of boxes, and have now eighteen offices for their exclusive sale, at least one in every principal city in the Union, at an expense of near forty thousand dollars per year-And with the expenses of advertising, and other incidentals, the sum was a little over One Hundred and Thirty Thousand Dollars for the year 1839; some idea may be formed how the medicine the greatest blessing that ever yet has been be- that it is beyond all comparison the best remedy swallowing so many black currants.

This will always have a good effect, because it is impossible for pain to be in the body without the presence of those humors which produce it, and it is only by their being forced out with purging that health can be restored

All that I have been able to ascertain, either by experience or from books has confirmed me in the opinion, that pain, every feeling contrary to health, is produced when the natural outlets of the body become incapable of discharging the corrupt humors generated in the body, as fast as nature requires their expulsion. And that to secure health, we have only to purge ourselves, until health is restored. A practice which experience has established, is fully able to produce this result, without the possibility of any injurious effects. They robust have become more so. All mankind would be benefitted by this practice, except physicians; and they would be bodily, though not profession-

Let me now recommend two things, never be bled, and never go to a Druggist for Brandreth's Pills. The first weakens the principle of life, and long keeps the blessings of health from the body. And the last, to purchase a Pill called Brandreths of a Druggist, is to insure the purchaser a base counterfest, entirely incapable of producing the beneficial results of the genuine medicine.
