

JEFFERSONIAN REPUBLICAN

Stroudsburg, December 29, 1841.

Terms, $2.00 in advance; $2.25, half yearly; and $2.50 if not paid before the end of the year.

The Citizens' Bank of New-Orleans resumed Specie Payments on the 13th inst.

Counterfeit $5 bills on the Tradesman's Bank of New York are in circulation. Also, $5 bills of the People's Bank at Paterson, letter A, payable to S. Avery, dated 12th March, 1839, H. C. Stimson, Cashier, and E. B. D. Ogden, President.

The receipts on the New York Canals to the 1st of December, were $2,933,504.27—being an increase over 1840 of $256,461.18.

The value of property assessed in the city of Baltimore, is $68,170,612.

LIBEL.—The President of the Jacksonville Bank has commenced a suit for libel against the editor of the New York Herald, who has been held to bail in the sum $10,000.

Mail Bags.
Queer uses of Uncle Sam's Property.—When the present Postmaster General came into office, his attention was drawn to an item of expenditure which he thought was susceptible of "retrenchment." This item was the heavy expense for leather and canvass mail bags. He accordingly instituted inquiries on the subject, and the answers which are now coming in give some idea of the neglect and abuse which has been allowed in the various branches of this Department. A letter from one of the new postmasters in Indiana, states that, on taking charge of his office, he found, from the dissection of two chair cushions, occupied by former clerks, ten canvass bags enclosed, and about the same number devoted to other unnecessary purposes in and about the office.

Letters from Postmasters at Farmville, Virginia; Rochester, New York; and Zanesville, Ohio, show a similar yet more aggravated abuse of public property. In these letters it is stated that the bags have formerly been given to the stage drivers to carry their horse-blankets, curry combs, brushes, grain and meal for the horses, and some of their own clothing.—N. Y. Express.

Cheap Living.
The Farmers of Illinois, it is stated, are obliged to take a cent and half a pound for their pork, or they could not raise money to pay their taxes—and very good turkeys may now be bought in Cincinnati for twenty-five cents a head—and good chickens for a dollar a dozen, as poor as the money is.

Dr. C. C. Edday, of Yazoo City, Miss. has gone on to Washington City to procure a patent for a perpetual motion. The Doctor's machine is operated upon by condensed air, and is contrived as to condense the air itself—so says the "Whig" of that place, whose editor seems to have considerable faith in the humbug.—Memphis Enq.

Record your Deeds.
A case came within our knowledge, yesterday, in which a poor woman lost all she was worth by neglecting to record a deed. The deed was executed to her ten years ago, but not knowing the importance of recording it, she did not bring it to the clerk's office, until yesterday, when it appeared that the person who sold her the property had since encumbered it with two mortgages. Several judgments have also been obtained against him, and the property is now advertised for sale by the Sheriff. So that by neglecting to get her deed recorded, the poor woman has lost her property.
A deed not recorded, is valid against subsequent incumbrances only 15 days.—Trenton State Gaz.

The Mutiny on board the Creole—The Release of the Slaves by British Authority—Full Particulars.

There has already followed the greatest excitement, especially in the south, in regard to the mutiny on board the brig Creole, a brief account of which appeared in last week's Courier. It will be observed that of Washington, the matter has already undergone considerations in the Cabinet. Readers no doubt will wish the full particulars. The Charleston Courier is indebted to a friend for the following extract of a letter from New Orleans, giving a more circumstantial account of this affair than has been published in any of the newspapers.—Phil'a. Courier.

"From the evidence of the acting captain, (who was mate at the time,) the crew and passengers, it appears, that on the night of the 7th November, while lying to, expecting to make Abaco the next morning, about 9 o'clock, the captain and hands having turned into their berths, except the watch on deck, a negro came into the cabin, and told the captain that some of the men were in the hold with the women. The captain requested Merritt, who was attending to the negroes, getting their food, &c. to go and see who it was among the women. Merritt went down among the females, lit the lamp, and discovered a negro named Madison, who attempted to get on deck; Merritt caught him by the leg, and Gifford, the mate, held him by the head and shoulders, his body being on deck, and his legs in the hatchway, they intending to chastise him.

While scuffling with him, a pistol was discharged, and the mate, Gifford, was struck on the back of the head by the ball, but it did not penetrate. Gifford and Merritt ran below into the cabin, woke up the captain and Mr. John Hewell. The captain took his bowie knife and rushed on deck. Hewell found a musket, and prevented the negroes from coming into the cabin; fired it at them—they threw a handspike at him, and took the musket from him—they were at the entrance of the cabin at this time—Hewell picked up the handspike, drove them from the cabin door, to the forward part of the vessel; some of them in his rear stabbed him several times, and he returned to the cabin and fell dead. The captain fought, but was overpowered, thrown down, the knife taken from him—succeeded in getting away from them and ran up the rigging. Gifford was already up the same mast, and finding the captain fainting from the loss of blood, lashed him to the mast, and went up higher—the sailors took to the rigging of the foremast.

Merritt hid in the cabin among the women, until the mutineers drove them out; he then went into a berth and pulled a mattress over him; they searched the cabin for him and eventually found him; he begged them to spare his life, and that if they did, he would take them to Nassau; they proposed going to Liberia; he told them the voyage would be too long, and that there was not water and provisions enough in the vessel to carry them that distance; his life was spared, and he was placed in charge of the vessel. McCargo, a passenger, and nephew of one of the owners, lay in his state-room until the next day, and one of the negroes belonging to his uncle prevented the others from injuring him. The next morning the captain was ordered below, and so was Gifford; the crew came down. They made the captain go into the fore-castle, where they had already placed his wife, child and niece, and ordered his wounds to be dressed—the vessel on her way to Nassau.

On arriving at Nassau, the American Consul being informed, by the mate and crew of what had taken place, went to the Governor of the Island and acquainted him with the facts. The Governor sent a file of soldiers on board. The third day after being in that port, the passengers, crew, &c., identified nineteen who appeared to be the principals, and the next day they were taken ashore and lodged in jail. The Attorney General of the Island then read, from the quarter-deck, the British Laws, and told the negroes they were free, and might go to "any place they pleased." During this time a large number of boats (those aboard of them armed with clubs) came alongside of the brig. After the reading of the laws by the Attorney General, those in the boats expressing impatience at the time, a signal was given by this officer, by waving a pocket handkerchief, and the slaves were pushed and shoved from off the vessel into boats, a portion refusing to go; five would not go, and hid themselves. The captain was taken on shore by the American Consul, and his wounds dressed by a physician.

On the arrival of the brig Creole at Nassau, as soon as the news was known among the shipping, a captain commanding a vessel from Maine, lying in port, collected up all his pistols, cutlasses, and muskets, and the Consul purchased arms—took his crew in a boat with these arms, and went to the brig for the purpose of manning her and taking her into this port; the soldiers ordered him to keep off—that if he attempted to get on board they would fire on him; he was compelled to return. The brig proceeded on the voyage with only five out of 136 negroes."

The President of the United States has officially recognized Daniel J. Desmond as Consul General of his Holiness the Pope, to reside at Philadelphia.

Information
Is wanted of PHILIP HINKLE, son of the late Philip Hinkle of Berks county, a carpenter, between 23 and 24 years old, about 5 feet 8 inches in height, of a sandy complexion, somewhat freckled in the face, dark sandy hair, and having three marks on the right cheek from the small pox, which might be mistaken for scars. He has not been heard of since June last, when he was working at a bridge about 14 miles from Hollidaysburg. It is thought by his friends that he was the young man whose murdered body was found on Rayshill, Bedford county Pennsylvania, in September last, a description of which in the Ledger corresponded with the above. Any intelligence in relation to this mysterious circumstance will be most gratefully received, and if alive, and this should meet his eye, he is earnestly entreated to write without delay to his afflicted mother and family. SARAH HINKLE.

Greek, Latin and French languages, Belles-Letters, Modern Sciences including Geography, Ancient and Modern; Natural, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy, Logic, Rhetoric, Mathematics including Algebra, Geometry, Surveying, Navigation, &c.

Terms.

Tuition for any of the above branches not to exceed (per quarter) $2 00
Music on Piano Forte, extra 5 00
Board for young Gentlemen with the Principal, per week 1 50
Do. for young Ladies with the Teacher of Music, per week 1 50
Not including incidental expenses.
N. B.—Board can be obtained for lads from 10 to 14 years, of age in families of the first respectability near the Academy, from $1 00 to $1 25 per week.
The Trustees feel that they need say nothing in commendation of this school. The terms are easy, lower than any other Academy in the State. The course of instruction thorough, and discipline strict; the Academy situated in a part of the country proverbial for health, is likewise removed from those inducements which lead to a neglect of studies. With full confidence they recommend it to the patronage of the public.
