

JEFFERSONIAN REPUBLICAN

Stroudsburg, July 13, 1842.

Terms, $2.00 in advance; $2.25, half yearly; and $2.50 if not paid before the end of the year.

Congressional Districts.

Bills have already been introduced in both branches of the Legislature, to district the State according to the new Apportionment Act of Congress. The Senate Bill, which was reported by Mr. McClay, is about as fair a thing as can be devised; and were it not that it tears our old district all to pieces, could wish it to be passed without alteration.

Table listing Congressional Districts with columns for County and Population.

Northampton county, with a population of 40,996, and Lehigh county with one of 25,787, form the Eleventh District.

In the House, a majority of the Committee could not agree upon any Bill, and Mr. Wright, of Luzerne, was permitted, by courtesy, to report one that he had prepared. It is very imperfect, and cannot pass even the House, without material alteration.

Rhode Island.

We neglected noticing in our last, that the recent outbreaking in Rhode Island, had been suppressed, and that Gov. Dorr, had again deserted his associates, and fled for his life. He had made his boast, that he would meet his adherents in the State, on the 4th of July, and set up his government against all opposition.

The Fourth at Easton.

The friends of Temperance, had a glorious time at Easton, on the 4th of July. Between one and two thousand walked in the procession, among whom were the ladies of the Martha Washington Temperance Society, of that place.

Military.

We learn that the arrangements for "Camp Delaware" at Easton, are progressing in a satisfactory manner. General George Cadwalader, of Philadelphia, has accepted an invitation to become the Commander; and Major General Patterson, one to be present with his staff to review the troops.

The Legislature.

Has been in Session, again five weeks, and as yet done nothing of general interest. They have plenty of private matters before them, upon which they agree very well; but as soon as one house passes a Bill of more than common importance, the other is sure to amend it in every provision.

Political Dinners.

There were no less than four political dinners in Philadelphia, on the 4th. The "Corporal's Guard," or friends of Captain Tyler, dined at McArran's Garden, and by means of free tickets, &c. mustered about 350.

Important Rumor.

It was currently reported at Washington last week, that a treaty had been concluded between the American Commissioners and Lord Ashburton, which settled all the agitating difficulties between the two countries. The treaty is said to provide, first, That Great Britain shall give up the right of search, and the U. States is to use all her exertions to suppress the Slave Trade.

The Tariff and Congress.

Congress has been busy, since the Veto of Captain Tyler, in framing another Tariff Bill, which will meet the wants of the government and give protection to our home industry. It is uncertain yet what will be done with the Land Distribution Clause, but it is to be hoped that our Representatives will not yield that source of revenue to the States, to suit the whim of any man.

Indignation Meeting.

The citizens of Easton, were informed, without distinction of party held a large and enthusiastic meeting at the Court House, in that Borough on Thursday evening last, and unanimously passed Resolutions condemning John Tyler's Veto of the Provisional Tariff Bill, and expressing their want of confidence in his administration generally.

4th July celebration at Milford.

The anniversary of our Independence was ushered in by the firing of a national salute. A procession was formed in front of John Cornelius' Hotel, at 10 o'clock, which, under the direction of Maj. Richard Eldred, Marshal of the day, marched to the Presbyterian church, where, after the customary exercises of the day, the audience were entertained with an excellent oration by Doct. Alexander Linn, together with some splendid music by the Milford Brass Band.

REGULAR TOASTS.

- 1. The day we celebrate.
2. The departed heroes of the Revolution.
3. The survivors of the Revolution.
4. Our country, her people, and her institutions.
5. Universal suffrage and the sovereignty of the people.
6. Our gallant Army and Navy.
7. Our Commonwealth; although by improper legislation, involved in an immense state debt, yet the integrity and patriotism of her sons, will repudiate repudiation, and sustain at all cost her character and honor.
8. Education and intelligence.
9. The memory of Washington and Jefferson.
10. The President of the United States.
11. The Governor of this Commonwealth.
12. The cause of temperance, destined to accomplish a grand moral revolution.
13. The Ladies.

There's naught but care on every hand, In every hour that passes, O! What signifies the life of man, If 'twere not for the lassies, O!

VOLUNTEER TOASTS.

By Henry S. Mott. Pennsylvania's favorite son, James Buchanan: his moral character above suspicion—patriotism undoubted, and statesmanship undisputed—higher honors await him.
By Anthony Van Aukin. Winfield Scott. The statesman, patriot and soldier.
By Solomon Dunning. Abolition tending to consolidation, and nullification to dis-union, of the two, the latter is preferable.

in her inexhaustible resources. She will surmount the difficulties with which she is at present surrounded, and retain with justice the appellation of the Keystone State.

By Cornelius W. DeWitt. Henry Clay. The tried patriot and statesman, when the political sky was darkened with portentous clouds, he was always found at his post, devoted to the support of the best interests of his country, and ready to defend her honor at all times.

By Henry Barnes. May the principle upon which this day is celebrated become universal throughout our land, and our country be redeemed from the degradation and disgrace into which it is plunged by intemperance.

By John M. Heller. The pledge of total abstinence from all intoxicating drinks as a beverage, like the declaration of Independence, the ground work of our liberties, is the true principle of temperance and its only sheet-anchor.

By Theophilus H. Smith. The signers of the second declaration of Independence, may they sit in their cottages and sing the song of freedom under the protection of the temperance star.

By Hon. Wm. Brodhead. The American people. May they as freemen be conscious (ere it be too late) that the use of intoxicating drinks, bribery and corruption at the ballot boxes, in the halls of our national and state legislatures, and by our chief executive officers, is a direct rail road to despotism.

By James E. Eldred. David R. Porter, the high minded and patriotic Governor of Pennsylvania; his enemies, the purse proud aristocratic bankers and swindlers, have been unsuccessful in their late attempts to injure his character.

By Walter A. Colony. The ladies of the Milford Fair. May they be liberally patronized this day, and may they in the distribution of their funds, show forth the chief of all virtues, charity.

By B. A. Biddis. Henry Clay. A true democrat and patriot. When he retired from his public services, his enemies and calumniators could not but acknowledge his patriotism and worth.

By John Brodhead. General Samuel Houston. Here's that he may pull Santa Anna's mustaches.

By Henry S. Mott. The Reader of the declaration of Independence.

By O. S. Dimmick. James Buchanan and Richard M. Johnson. One the talented son of Pennsylvania, the other the hero of the Thames, both favorites of the democracy of the union, either would make a good President.

By O. H. Mott. James Buchanan. One of the brightest stars in the democratic phalanx. May the wishes of his friends be realized in his elevation to the highest office in the gift of the people.

By Milton Dimmick. Richard M. Johnson. The statesman and a hero. His Sunday mail report is evidence of the former and his heroic conduct at the battle of the Thames evinces the latter, and justly entitles him to the Presidency.

By Henry Barnes. The President and Congress of the United States. We rejoice at the interest they are now manifesting in the cause of temperance. Let the enemy be driven from the Capitol, so that the nation may not be robbed of its brightest jewels.

After dinner, the ladies commenced their Fair at the Academy, and disposed of nearly all their night caps, and fancy articles, together with a large number of letters, many of which were well written, and full of fun.

The harvest in Virginia is over, and the crops are superior to those of the last five or six years. The Hon. Samuel G. Goodrich was, on Friday, nominated by the Whig Convention, assembled at Medway, Mass., as a candidate for Representative in Congress, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of the Hon. Wm. S. Hastings.

John Hopkins, Esq. of Northampton, Pa. has bequeathed seven thousand dollars to benevolent societies.

Croton Water--New York.

It is said the water in the Croton Pipes will rise 116 feet above the level of tide water, about 110 feet above the level of the Battery's Bowling Green.

Roasted Ice.

It is said that the Chinese viands in general are disagreeable to Europeans, as they do not use salt in their cookery, and do use an immoderate quantity of pork fat, besides ginger and garlic. At supper parties, given at houses of entertainment, the dainties provided are often furnished with great labor and expense—and are principally recommended by the difficulty of procuring them.

A Relic.

The packet ship New York, from Liverpool, which arrived yesterday morning, has Benjamin Franklin's Printing Press on board, consigned to J. B. Murray.—Jour. of Com.

The United States Gazette thus announces a murder: Rum and a man named Leavitt, killed a woman in Scituate, (Mass.) last week. The man was arrested, but rum was suffered to run at large.

Three dollar counterfeit notes of the Bank of Greenwich, N. Y., have been circulated in this vicinity. We have seen one, dated June 17, 1841, letter H., No. 425. The engraving is wretchedly executed.—Belvidere Apollo.

Table with columns for Certificates, Name, and Dis.

Note.—It may be proper to remark, that the notes of nearly all the country banks are redeemed in specie on presentation at their counters; and that the cause of their depreciation in the city, is owing to a resolution of the city banks to receive on deposit the notes of those banks only which have effected an arrangement with a city bank to redeem their notes when presented.

DISSOLUTION.

The Co-partnership heretofore existing under the name and firm of Dimmick & Compton, is this day dissolved by mutual consent. JOHN A. DIMMICK, ELIAS COMPTON.

Bushkill, June 1, 1842. N. B.—The accounts of the above named firm can be settled with the subscriber, if attended to within one year, as he intends driving on the fulling and carding business at his old stand. JOHN A. DIMMICK. June 8, 1842.—3t.*
