A Chapter on the Weather.

We are not in the habit of often moralizing upon the mutability of the weather, or r oubling our readers with long accounts of its freaks and fancies: The weather at present, however, is so ont of all character, that we must be pardoned for saving a few words about it. It is now the 22d of March, and the snow, in many places is still three or four feet deep, and that too after nearly a week of bright sunshine. The air is as cold as December, and the ice many inches thick. Who ever heard of the like !

About a year ago Richard Adams Locke, of New York, the author of the celebrated Moon Hoar, delivered a Lecture on Terrestrial Magnetism, in which he endeavored to prove that the equator and axis of the Earth were constantly undergoing changes, which had already made our winters much shorter and milder than they formerly were, and would ultimately render this climate equal at themselves blessed with the gift of divination. would go into at least two of them! have prophecied that as our forests would be cleared away, the swamps drained, and the land cultivated, the severity of winter would in a great me asure be destroyed, and we would no more have such cold weather as we had in old times.

This Winter has proved fatal to all such elaborated theories and nice made calculations. We think it would furnish some other ephemeral philosophers with equally strong arguments in favor of a theory that our climate is verging towards the frigidity of Greenland-that we shall ere long have to provide ourselves with clothing made of furs, to keep ourselves warm; and that we must soon import a breed of reindeers to supply the place of our horses, who will all freeze to death.

In contemplating the present, we cannot help sighing for the good old times when we were young, and thought nothing a hardship but being oblized to sit in school six hours a day. Those were happy times. Every thing then seemed to cheerful and contented. The operatives of the remarkably well. country received the wages of their labor without being shaved. The currency was good-there of none of those Institutions breaking and ruining their Stockholders and Creditors. Even the Seasons were more certain. We had Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter, and knew just when to look for each. Oh! how we used to long then, for the first of April; and when it came round, we would fling off our shoes and stockings, skip about like lambs under the influence of the gentle breath nothing, during the year 1842. of the early Spring, nor think of resuming them again (except on special occasions,) until the first of October.

Time, they say, changes the same as the feelings of individuals. If it is so, we need never look for a return of the same genial seasons which blessed our school-boy days. They have departcan never be enjoyed again. But moralizing their hide and tallow. apart, we can certainly look for more seasonable weather than we are now, and for some time past have been, experiencing. And we do hope soon again to see Spring burst upon us in all its joyful-

Noseology.

The quarrel between Messrs. Hinchman and Deford, of the Legislature, which we noticed last week, has been amicably settled, and in a manner highly honorable to both parties. Mr. Deford's nose, it is said is quite well again, and no longer shows the prints made upon it by the member from the City, when he took hold of it after such a barber-ous manner. The soft spots left, by the application of the umbrella, upon the head of Mr. Hinchman, have also yielded to the influence of the healing art, and that honorable gentleman's knowledge-box is as hard again as ever.

The New Secretary at War.

We understand that a letter has been got up in Easton, signed by a large number of citizens, congratulating James M. Porter, upon his recent appointment as Secretary at War. The letter is said to contain the names of a large number of influential men, who were heretofore considered, the personal and political enemies of Mr. Porter.

Done at Last.

The Legislature has at length agreed upon a Bill to District the State for the election of Members of Congress. Monroe, Northampton, Pike and Wayne, will form a District and elect one Member. No change. Under this apportionment 656,387. the Whigs can probable elect five or six members. and the Loco Focos eighteen or nineteen. Quite conscionable!

twelfth Judicial District, over which the Hon. N. B. Eldred, formerly of Wayne county, has just been appointed to preside, in the place of Judge Blythe, appointed Collector of the Port of Philadelphia.

Another Flare Up.

There was another flare up in the House of Representatives, at Harrisburg, on Wednesday morning last. Messrs. Lowry and Deford were the actors. They accused each other of almost every thing bad, and came very near impressing their words with their fists. Deford's nose had just got well, and he could twist and screw his of the same day, a paper, signed by fifty-three closed within a small tabletmembers of the House, was handed to Speaker Wright, by Mr. Elton, of Chester, protesting against the unlimited and disgraceful range allowed to individuals in debate; and stating that if he does not preserve order in future, they will be compelled to resign their seats in justice to the character of their constituents. A severe rebuke, but not severer than was deserved. A Legislative body, like a family, depends a great deal for its Saturday Courier. character and respectability, upon the firmness and decision of its head.

Our neighbours of Easton, have been enlightened, during the past week by one of Fa ther Miller's end-of-the-world prophets. He held forth in the Court House, which was crowded daily and nightly to hear his explanations of the Scriptures. We have not heard how many converts he made. Some no doubt.

LADIES' COMPANION!

A STANDARD NATIONAL MAGAZINE, Published Monthly in the City of New-York, by WILLIAM W. SNOWDEN.

NUMEROUS ENGRAVINGS IN EACH NUMBER The exalted reputation of this popular magazine has been so long and so widely established that it may perhaps be deemed by some supereis an "inverted truncated pyramid," with cover rutcy, at the District Court Room, in the City rogatory on the part of the proprietor to offer a diforce it into a precarious existence: it has, for a number of years, spoken for itself, and in a voice which has found a most satisfactory response to the literary taste of the age. Conforming, however, to custom, which seems to demand a few words occasionally from the proprietor to his patrons and the public, we will simply and suscinctly enumerate the chief titles which this standard national magazine has to the enormous patronage which it has for so many years enjoyed, and to that regular and uninterrupted advance in the favor of the critical, the literary and the refined, which has ever, in a degree peculiar to itself, characterized the progress of the work:
