

JEFFERSONIAN REPUBLICAN

Stroudsburg, April 26, 1843.

Terms, $2.00 in advance; $2.25, half yearly; and $2.50 if not paid before the end of the year.

Adjournment of the Legislature.

As was anticipated, the Legislature of Pennsylvania adjourned on Tuesday the 18th inst. after a protracted session of one hundred and sixty days, during which time one hundred and six Acts, and fifteen Resolutions were passed. Several of the Acts are of great importance, and if carried out, may be highly beneficial to the State, in its present emergency. We allude particularly to those which authorize the sale of the Delaware Division, and the main line of improvements from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh. The latter Bill, however, the Governor has not yet approved of. If Companies are formed, and those two sections of our improvements disposed of, our State Debt will be nearly one-half cancelled. We hope this may be realized. With but very few exceptions, all the other Acts are of little or no consequence, and possess no provisions of general interest. Nothing further was done to provide money for the payment of interest on the State Debt. Therefore, if the sale of the improvements cannot be carried into effect, our creditors will receive nothing for the loan of their money during another year. We have already so often spoken of the character of this Legislature, that the subject has become hackneyed with us, yet we cannot bid them farewell without remarking, that it will be long remembered and renowned as one of the most disgraceful and inefficient bodies which ever assembled to enact laws.

Canal Commissioners.

The Bill giving the election of Canal Commissioners to the people, has become a law without the signature of the Governor, he not having returned it to the House in ten days after its passage, with his objections. Three Commissioners must therefore be elected under it next fall.

Another Murderer Acquitted.

Godfrey Pope, who was tried at Louisville, Ky. for killing Mr. Bliss, under the most unjustifiable circumstances, has been acquitted and set at liberty. In the face of the numerous acquittals which are constantly taking place all over the country, it is scarcely surprising that so many murders occur. Unless homicide, like other crimes, is punished in the most exemplary manner, the people will soon become familiarized to scenes of blood, and think no more of the murder of a fellow being, than of the most ordinary occurrence.

James M. Porter.

We learn that Mr. Porter arrived at Easton on Thursday evening last, from Washington. He was serenaded by the Easton Band, in the evening, and a number of his friends prevailed upon him to partake with them of a public entertainment, which is to be given this evening at Mr. Connor's American Hotel. He will continue in Easton during the present week to try a number of cases which are pending in Court, and return to the Seat of Government, on Monday next, to resume the superintendence of the War Department.

Jefferson K. Heckman, Esq.

We are also informed that our efficient Representative, Mr. Heckman, reached Easton, after the adjournment of the Legislature, on Thursday last. His fearless and straight-forward conduct, whilst at Harrisburg, receives the warmest approbation of his neighbors and friends. Preparations are being made to tender him a public dinner.

Stocks.

There appears to be quite an unusual animation in the Stock market at present. During the past week, large quantities of almost every description, have been disposed of at the Broker's Board in Philadelphia, and that too at considerably advanced prices. Pennsylvania State Fives, which a month ago were sold as low as $34 on the hundred, readily brought $45 and 46 on Thursday last. This rise is probably mainly attributable to the passage of the Bills providing for the sale of some of the Public Works.

Fips, Levies, and Quarters.

The rule adopted by the Banks and Brokers in the cities, to receive the old Spanish coins only upon the following conditions, viz. fips, for five cents, levies, for ten cents, and quarters, for twenty-three cents, has not yet been extended to Stroudsburg. These old fashioned coins pass as freely here as ever, at their nominal value. In the cities, however, we are informed, they are fast disappearing, and getting out of circulation. They are sent to the Mint to be re-coined into dimes, half dimes, and quarter-dollars, our own currency, which will shortly supply their place.

Judge Banks.

The Easton Whig of this week announces that Judge Banks, has recovered from his indisposition, and is now in that Borough busily engaged in holding Court.

The Freshet.

The freshet in the Delaware, which it was feared would do so much injury to the Canal, had happily passed by without doing half the damage which had been anticipated. With the exception of a break at Rocky Falls, and another at Johnson's Tavern, the damage has been very slight, and with a moderate force can all be repaired by the latter part of this week.

Latest Fashions.

We observe by our exchange papers that the ladies of Boston are endeavoring to introduce the fashion of carrying walking-canes. Several of them have already made their appearance in the streets with these appendages of authority, and used them in the most graceful manner. It is said that the fops and dandies are very much alarmed in consequence, and protest against it as a downright infringement of their prerogatives of manhood! They aver that if the ladies do not desist, and lay by their canes they will be obliged to carry cudgels, else they can no longer way-lay, stare at, follow, speak to, and otherwise insult them with impunity.

Plum Trees.

A writer in the Massachusetts Ploughman, gives the following as a remedy for warts, worms, &c., in plum trees.—"In April or May, or before the blossoming, make some half dozen slits (according to the size of the tree) up and down the tree from the limbs to the roots." The writer assures this to be a perfect remedy.

Surrender of Fugitives.

France and England have entered into a treaty for the mutual surrender of fugitives. It has never been done before. The same has been effected between this country and England.

Lynn, Mass., has been noted for the manufacturing of shoes. In the course of the year 1842, it is said that one million pairs of women's morocco shoes were made by the industrious inhabitants of that town!

The Lowell Courier states that some boys who were out gunning near the town, discovered a man named John Favro, suspended from a tree; a Miller book and bible, were found in his pocket.

Trees.

It is a custom in Turkey, says Dr. Walsh, to plant a platanus orientalis, (buton wood tree) on the birth of a son; and a cypress on the death of one. Were this custom adopted in the United States, it would give us, at the end of forty years, about twenty millions of trees more than we shall probably have; a consideration of no mean appearance to posterity. And were the trees to be planted by the roadside, most of our public highways would at the end of the period, be converted into delightful avenues. Let it be remembered that the road from Strasburg to Munich, a distance of 250 miles, is already an avenue of fruit trees.

Something worth Knowing.

In conversing with a gentleman of the bar a few days ago, he gave us some information in regard to a law now in force, of which we presume but few know of its existence, and which we consider highly interesting to a large portion of the community. For the advantage of our readers we will endeavor to give a synopsis of the law, as nearly in his own language as possible. He informed us that by the laws of this State, no person under the age of twenty-one years can dispose of his or her property, either real or personal, by will. By the same laws, it is declared that if a person die intestate, unmarried and without lawful issue, the real estate of such intestate shall go to his or her father and mother, during their joint lives, and the life of the survivor of them; and the personal estate of such intestate shall be vested in his or her father and mother absolutely; or if either the father or mother be dead at the time of the death of the intestate, the parent surviving such intestate, shall enjoy such real estate during his or her life, and such personal estate absolutely. If, therefore, a man having a child or children, die without having made a will, leaves his estate to such child or children, without declaring in what manner such estate shall be disposed of, in the event of such child or children dying under the age of twenty-one years, unmarried and without lawful issue; and should such child or children die unmarried and without lawful issue, and under the age of twenty-one years, and in the life-time of his, her or their mother, the real estate of such child or children would go to the mother during her life—and the personal estate would go to such mother absolutely—and if it should so happen at the time of the death of such child or children, that the mother should be again married, such personal estate of the child or children would go directly into the hands of the step-father and the rents and profits of the real estate would be his during the life of his wife, should she survive her, to the exclusion of the surviving brothers or sisters of such child or children, if any there should be.—West Chester Examiner.

The value of the lard oil, made at Cincinnati, the past year, is estimated at $75,000.

This world is like a chesnut bur, and when lightly handled, may be used with safety—when too eagerly embraced, it wounds to the quick.

Office Beggars.

It is said that Mayor Morris, since his election, has had more applications for office than he had of majority votes on that occasion—something like six thousand.
