Business and Money in Philadelphia.

The Southern and Western merchants are coming in briskly to select their fall stock of goods in the Atlantic cities. They do not, however, buy wildly and recklessly, and run up large bills on credit as formerly, but select with taste and economy, and have the cash in hand to "plank down," and save all discounts. Our wholesale streets are again becoming lumbered up with boxes, hogsheads and crates; drays, wagons, and carts; and our merchants and their clerks scarcely find time to snatch a hasty dinner from the eating houses ere they must fly back to their laying out and packing up operations. The merchant hotels are overflowing with shrewd and sensible persons, who have crossed the mountains," perhaps, for the fiftieth time in quest of supplies. One old gentleman, we are told, who is now staying at Bridges' Hotel, has crossed the Alleghenies one hundred and five times to purchase goods, accumulating, by his industry and perseverance, an elegant fortune, and enjoying a happy and green old age.

Our Banks discount freely but safely, and every thing appears to be steadily rising from the leathergy of years which has overpowered are omitted and a dash (-) substituted, are not Exchange in the South, on Philadelphia purchased by the brokers. and New York, is steadily coming down, and the long festering Relief notes of our own State are now only at 2 1-4 a 2 1-2 discount for spe-We need scarcely say that these symptoms of returning mercantile and monetary health give us unfeigned gratification, for they are undoubtedly the lungs of the social system, and when in a sound and active condition, the whole body will feel the benefit of their operations .- Courier.

A fellow calling himself William Turner, arrived at the town of Norwich, Conn., a few days since, and on the strength of a bandaged and splintered arm, which he said was fractured, and a mournful story of shipwreck and disaster, contrived to make many successful appeals to the charity of the good citizens of that town. Unfortunately for him, however, a Dr. Burgess who he encountered, became very desirous of riewing the fractured arm, and the other positively refusing to grant him his wish, suspicion was awakened, and by the aid of a little force the bandages and splinters were removed and exposed to view a quantity of gold eagles and bank notes carefully deposited along an arm as sound as it possibly could be. The impostor was straightway introduced to the notice of the Mayor, by whom he was assigned quarters in the House of Correction, with the injunction that he should be worked at proper intervals. Notwithstanding his arm he doing well at the last accounts.

Another Brave Old Oak Fallen.

James Draper, one of the stout hearts of '76, died at Warrenton, Ga., on the 14th ult., aged 83. He entered the army when only 18 years of age, and was with Gen. Green at the battle of Guilford Court House, and in many other engagements during the war.

A Father Murdered by his Son.

John Barnett, of Maysville, Ky., was lately killed by his son James, a youth of 21, in a quarrel between them. He struck his father on the head with an axe, mangling him horribly. He was drunk at the time. He was committed for trial.

The editor of the Bangor Whig gives somehody in that region the following "palpable lm:" "A printing office is, of course public property. If a man wants a paper, of course he has a right to it, and to half a sheet of letter paper to wrap it in and wafers to seal it and the right to take the editor's pen out of his hand to direct it with. What is the use of having printing offices unless people can be accommodated at their without money and without price?"

The Ourang Outang at the Boston Museum, which was lately imported, died on the 31st ult., of cholera morbus.
