

Correspondence of the Richmond Whig

AUGUST 21, 1843.

Mr. Editor—I have lately read with pleasure, the correspondence between a Committee of North Carolinians and one Henry Clay of Kentucky, and I am rejoiced that that glorious old patriot has consented to visit the Old North State next spring. I doubt not he will comply with his promise, but should he fail to do so previously to the Presidential election in 1844, I, who have been his political friend ever since I was old enough to vote, and preferred him to all others, from that day to this for the Presidency; will certainly give him up. North Carolina has high claims on Mr. Clay's attention, as she was the first State to denounce the Traitor, and nominate for the Presidency the first man of the country; if, therefore, I were Mr. Clay, I would, on leaving Ashland for the Sea-board, pursue the most direct road to Old Raleigh, neither turning to the left nor the right until I had reposed upon her soil. If Mr. Clay take the beaten track to Raleigh he will be arrested at almost every cross-road, and may be killed off with kindness, &c. ere he can reach his destination.

Before he gets through shaking hands with the North Carolinians and partaking of their generous hospitality, invitations will pour in on him from the entire sea-board, when he will not be permitted to do as he did in the South last winter. If he sends word he can't come, the people will go after him and carry him, volens volens. He will be required to go to the Palmetto State, in which, especially in Charleston, we all know he has very numerous friends. Progressing that far South, he will find it utterly impossible to tear himself from the generous Southerners till he plants his feet upon the glorious Whig soil of Georgia—a State, the vote of which he is as certain to get as that of Kentucky—and there he may witness, in its "pride of place," the lofty and magnificent magnolia. En passant: That presentation of Magnolia Trees, by a citizen of Mississippi, to Mr. Clay, was most happy and timely; and the letters of both, how beautiful! We Americans like a variety; so let us Whigs drop the log cabin and hard cider, and establish a new motto, the Magnolia; a tree, grand and lofty—a fitting emblem of our principles and our candidate. Some ten years have rolled away since I first saw this noble tree:—I was one May evening riding on the road that leads from the beautiful and hospitable city of Savannah to that favorite and charming resort, Bonaventure, when a tree, the top of which almost kissed the clouds, caught my eye. I involuntarily drew up my horse, to gaze and wonder.—There it towered (above the lofty pine) monarch of the forest, and on its branches bloomed the largest and most beautiful white flower man's or woman's vision ever rested on. The South Carolina Palmetto is a neat tree with its foliage concentrated at the top; but by the side of the full grown Magnolia, imagine a sapling taking shelter under one of those large oaks in the Slashes of Hanover.

After Mr. Clay shall have visited Georgia, he will be compelled to come to his native Slashes in the Old Dominion—and what a reception awaits him there in the Metropolis and elsewhere? Before half done shaking hands, he will be beset by committees from Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts, and from all the way down to the east of sunrise, (as a friend of mine says when he goes beyond Portland) and the burst of joyous, patriotic feeling and plaudits that will announce his coming, will rend the air and gladden his old heart. It will be a scene worth looking on, Mr. Editor: as such an one may not again occur in our day. Mr. Clay should throw aside all delicacy in the matter and go among the people from Georgia to Maine. Let him disregard all comment by the Richmond Enquirer and other respectable local papers—but go wherever he may be invited and see the people. It is his duty to do so, because the people cannot go to see him at Ashland. Mr. Clay can be elected without leaving Ashland, but conditioned [an imbecile at his head] and the country are at present, it is important that he should go into the Chair of State with a large majority; as in that case reform will be more complete. A TRUE WHIG.

Fatal to Swine.

Saltpetre is as fatal to swine as arsenic to man. Our foreman last year salted some swill with refuse salt, which had been taken from a beef barrel and stored away; within twelve hours two out of three which ate of it died, and the third was much injured. As farmers at this season are emptying their meat barrels, instead of preserving the refuse salt for the future, they had better bury it in the compost heap.—Our beef was but slightly salted, and but very little could possibly have been taken by the swine. [New Hampshire Patriot.]

Who is wise? He that fears from every one. Who is powerful? He that governs his passions? Who is rich? He that is contented.

Gen. Cass states that the pay of the French soldier, "after making the deductions that go to the government for indispensable supplies, amounts to one cent a day, or twenty-five dollars and a half for seven years service!" What magnificent! Yet the service is popular, and the 8000 men yearly demanded by the conscription are readily supplied!

Counterfeiting.

The Cincinnati Sun says: We have heard it asserted that a process of counterfeiting bills has been discovered in this city, by the daguerreotype, which will become a subject for legislation, or the whole country will be flooded with notes that cannot be detected, so perfectly are they drawn from the original.

Tomato Ketchup.

Gather the tomatoes on a dry day and when quite ripe. Peel them, and cut them into quarters. Put them into a large earthen pan, and mash and squeeze them till they are reduced to a pulp. Allow half a pint of fine salt to a hundred tomatoes, put them into a preserving kettle, and boil them gently with the salt for two hours, stirring them frequently to prevent their burning. Then strain them through a fine sieve, pressing them with the back of a silver spoon. Season them to your taste with mace, cinnamon, nutmeg, ginger, and white or red pepper, all powdered fine.

Put the tomato again over the fire with the spices, and boil it slowly till very thick, stirring it frequently.

When cold, put it up in small bottles, secure the corks well, and it will keep good a year or two.

It is stated that the pictures in the Palace of Versailles would, if they were all placed side by side, reach five miles.

Vermont Election.

Later returns render the election of a Governor by the people very doubtful, although the majority for Mattocks, the Whig candidate, over all others, is 272. There are ninety towns yet to be heard from. It is the general impression, however, that Mattocks will be chosen Governor by the Legislature, as that body will be largely Whig. The House last year stood 130 Whigs to 101 Democrats. The majority this year will probably be somewhat greater; and the Senate will also have a Whig majority. We stated yesterday that George P. Marsh, Whig, had been elected to Congress in the Third district. It is now confirmed. From the other three districts we have nothing definite. In the Fourth, Montpelier, District, the probability is there has been no choice. In the Brattleboro' District, Foote, Whig, will have a large majority; and in the Woodstock District, Collamer, Whig, will probably be elected by a small one. Thus the Delegation will stand 3 Whigs, 1 Democrat—or more probably, no choice.—Daily Chronicle.

SAVANNAH, GEO. ELECTION.—An election took place in Savannah, Geo., on the 4th inst. for fourteen Aldermen, which resulted in the choice of eleven Whigs and three Democrats. Last year there was a Democratic majority.

A VERY GOOD ONE.—We are informed that when the Acting President Tyler was on his recent Northern tour, application was made to the managers of one of the railroads, to provide a special train to convey the President and his suite. This was refused on the ground that it would be attended with great inconvenience and danger to the regular trains, and that it was against the rules of the road. In reply to this, the applicant, in behalf of Tyler, stated that special trains had sometimes been furnished on the road—and he instanced the accommodation of this sort, furnished to convey the remains of President Harrison. The Superintendent instantly replied, that if they would bring on the Remains of President Tyler, a special train should be forthwith provided.—Boston Atlas.

THE LAST CONTRIVANCE.—The New York correspondent of an eastern paper, says:—"I saw in the street, to-day, a novel sight—a horse in trowsers; a christian drayman having adopted this method of keeping the animal's legs from the flies.—They were made in the modern fashion, loose, without straps, and gathered at the top."

A DOG PICKED UP AT SEA.—The ship Oswego at New York from Liverpool; on the 27th ult., on the Grand Banks, picked up a large Newfoundland dog. The noble animal when taken up was nearly exhausted. It is probable he fell overboard from some fishing smack in that vicinity.

A Leeds, England, paper contains an advertisement of premises to be let at a place where there is a Gospel ministry and salmon fishing.

IN PRESS. Edited by J. WINCHESTER, 30 Ann Street, N. Y., about 1 1/2 pages.

THE AMERICAN RIGULTURISTS ALMANAC FOR 1844.

EDITED BY Y. A. B. ALLEN, ESQ. ASSISTED BY AN ASSOCIATION OF EMINENT AGRICULTURISTS.

This important and valuable work has been in preparation for four months past, and will unquestionably be the most complete, in all its departments, of any Almanac yet got up for Farmers. It is calculated alike for the Northern, Middle and Southern States, and for the Canada—and consists entirely of ORIGINAL MATTER, by the best practical writers on Agriculture in this country.

This Almanac will comprise: 1. Astronomical observations and tables calculated for the meridian of Montreal, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, and New Orleans. Also, valuable Static and Geol. Tables.

2. A complete Northern Calendar for every month in the year, embracing all necessary directions for the management of the farm, garden and orchard.

3. A complete Southern Calendar for the Plantation, &c.

4. Miscellaneous matter, such as is designed to advance the interests and improvement of the Planter, Farmer, Stockbreeder, and Agriculturist.

Notwithstanding the labor and expense bestowed upon the AGRICULTURISTS' ALMANAC, in order to obtain for the work a large circulation, and render it more acceptable to the community, it will be published at the low price of 12 1-2 CENTS PER COPY!

Agents, Booksellers and Country Merchants will be supplied at the rate of 25 per hundred. Pedlars will be supplied on liberal terms.
