The day being cloudy they soon exceedingly cold wet gloomy day, as many of our teaders will recollect; taining from morning to nesday's exertions, shivering with wet and cold, and almost exhausted with hunger, yet they kept on in their fruitless attempts to find a way out .-But night again closed on them-and a most childespair of finding their way out increasing every hour, how painful must have been their situation!

On Wednesday evening search for them commenced, and was continued throughout Thursday India bound ships have also taken considerable and Thursday night. On Friday morning some quantities. They are also finding their way two or three hundred persons met and formed a into all the ports of Europe at a great profit to line to " sweep the mountain," as a last effort for the enterprising makers. In their extremity she had stripped her own person to afford relief to one of her little companions, (a child of 4 years old) which was near perishing. They were all in the last stage of exhaustion, and must inevitably have perished if relief had not been afforded that day.

One little incident is worty of note, as it serves to illustrate the happy effects of religious training in childhood. The young woman, having given up in despair, and being touched to the heart with sympathy for her little sufferers, at one time gave vent to her feelings in tears and lamentations .lated with her for her despondency, and told her to be of good cheer, " for the good Lord would deliver them."

Bors in Horses .... There is no truth better established, than that no medicine can remove the bot from the stomach of a horse, or destroy it, that will not kill the two. Its head is provided with two little hooks which enables it to fasten itself upon the insensible coating of the stomach, and by burying its head it can live surrounded with poison that will kill the horse. In its own proper time it will become disengaged and be voided from the stomach. The cure therefore lies in prevention alone, and this is easily done by any one careful of his horses. Every one is acquainted with the gad fly which lavs its eggs on the hairs of the horse, generally in August and September. These should be carefully destroyed, every day at least, which can be done by a cloth with warm water, which will prematurely hatch the egg or temove it from the legs or other part of the horse where the parent fly has deposited it; or I may be scraped off with a knife. They are resuly seen, and no farmer, or other owner of horses, should suffer them to stand over night reschool removal of the eggs. When the horse remains healthy and the stomach not overloadened with them, they do no injury to the animal. But disease disturbs them, and they are and then to eat through the stomach, and when very numerous, settle on the edge around the opening of the windpipe, and produce deathwhen fastened here nothing will remove them. They will live 24 hours in rum, 10 or 12 hours in a strong decoction of Tobacco -one hour in Spirits of Turpentine--- 10 hours in a solution of Indigo, and three hours in a strong Elixer

But of all animals, the horse is perhaps the most subject to the cholic, and this disease is too often mistaken for the bots. For this a warm decoction of Tobacco will generally aftord immediate relief, by producing a tempora- which he will sell at from 10 to 10 1-2 and 11 ry prostration or at least relaxation of the sys. cents per pound, according to quality, for eash. ten.
