EDITED BY JOHN INMAN AND ROBERT A. WEST. Prospectus for the Second Year.

At the close of his second volume, the magazine principles and improvement of American literature. having been commenced on the first of January, The undersigned, Whig members of the Twen- 1844, the publisher finds himself irresistably call unexampled success that has attended his endeavors to win the public favor. Notwithstanding And that confidence may be extended by the the difficulties, disappointments and vexations that must be the harmonious co-operation of many heads and many hands-notwithstanding occasional short-comings, especially in the pictorial department, which no care or diligence could avert and no expenditure prevent, the Columbian Magazine has gone on steadily increasing in support and popularity from the opening number, and if the unbought unsolicited testimony of the press may be received as unswayed by partiality and unbiassed by friendship, the efforts of contributors and editors have been satisfactory to the public and accepted as fulfilling the promises made for them at the commencement of the enterprise.

The publisher undertook the work with a firm conviction that the great city of New York was ing goods and work into cash, he can put them the best and the true home for a magazine of gen- very low. eral literature; that notwithstanding the failure of many previous attempts to establish such a work, there could be no impossibility of success with sufficient capital, perseverance and the right system of management both by publisher and editor; stimulated by this conviction he embarked in the enterprize and the result of the first year has proved that his judgment was correct. It has long ceased to be necessary, or reasonable, that we should speak of the Columbian as an experiment. At all events, it is now an experiment substantially tried. We feel ourse'ves upon as firm a basis as any similar journal in the world. Our principal cares now regard not so much the securing what ground we have gained (for we consider this sufficiently secure) as the extension of our sphere of action and utility-not so much, even, the mere enlargement of our subscription-list, as the most suitable modes of catering for the amusement (and shall we say occasionally for the profit!) of our subscribers in the present and in the future-the many whom we have, and the many
