Prospectus for the Second Year. At the close of his second volume, the magazine The undersigned, Whig members of the Twen- 1844, the publisher finds himself irresistably call fors to win the public favor. Notwithstanding And that confidence may be extended by the the difficulties, disappointments and vexations that heads and many hands-notwithstanding occasional short-comings, especially in the pictorial department, which no care or diligence could avert and no expenditure prevent, the Columbian Magazine has gone on steadily increasing in support and popularity from the opening number, and if the unbought unsolicited testimony of the press may be received as unswayed by partiality and unbiassed by friendship, the efforts of contributors and editors have been satisfactory to the public and accepted as fulfilling the promises made for them at the commencement of the enterprise.

The publisher undertook the work with a firm conviction that the great city of New York was ing goods and work into cash, he can put them the best and the true home for a magazine of general literature; that notwithstanding the failure of many previous attempts to establish such a work, there could be no impossibility of success with sufficient capital, perseverance and the right system of management both by publisher and editor; stimulated by this conviction he embarked in the enterprize and the result of the first year has proved that his judgment was correct.

It has long ceased to be necessary, or reasonable, that we should speak of the Columbian as an experiment. At all events, it is now an experiment substantially tried. We feel ourse'ves upon as firm a basis as any similar journal in the world. Our principal cares now regard not so much the securing what ground we have gained (for we consider this sufficiently secure) as the extension of our sphere of action and utility-not so much, even, the mere enlargement of our subscription-list, as the most suitable modes of catering for the amusement (and shall we say occasionally for the profit?) of our subscribers in the present and in the future—the many whom we have, and the many It is unnecessary to set forth the reasons that more we shall undoubtedly have as time rolls on.

Spitting of Blood,

NIGHT SWEATS AND PAIN IN THE SIDE. Jonathan Haworth, Esq. the well known Tem-Exchange .- Bills of exchange and Bank Checks | perance Lecturer, was attacked with a cold from sleeping in damp sheets, in the winter of 1841. He neglected it at first, but soon found it assuming a somewhat alarming aspect, and then resorted to the various remedies usually recommended for lung complaints. When one thing failed he tried another, until he had exhausted his patience and the Tuesday. It is devoted chiefly to the condition of whole catalogue of remedies. His cough was almost incessant, so that he could get little or no sleep-attended with pain in his side, spitting of blood, night sweats, and all the usual symptoms of Consumption. While at Rome, (N Y) he felt that his end was nigh-that in that place he must soon end his journey of life. Providentially, a lady who visited him advised a trial of Dr Sherman's Cough Lozenges. He accordingly sent and got a box, and the first dose gave him more relief than all the other medicines he used before. By the time he had taken one small box, he was able to start for the city of New York, and in three weeks CHILDREN are most subject to them, but per- time he was perfectly restored to his usual health. sons of all ages are liable to be afflicted with He often announces the fact to his hearers, when lecturing on Temperance, and says he owes his
