Prospectus of the Farmer's Library, and Months

Journal of Agriculture. JOHN S. SKINNER, Ed. tor. None can well have studied the true sources of National welfare, without perceiving the national ral and friendly connexion existing between Manufactures. Commerce and Agriculture. The policy which strikes at the prosperity of the Mann. facturing consumer, must damage the Agricultural producer, and neither can be injuriously affected without detriment to the Merchant, at once consomer and carrier for both. As, however, the elements of manufacturing and commercial industry must be derived chiefly from the soil, is it not the obvious interest of all other classes that the one which gives to all their employment and subsist. ence, should be encouraged and benefitted with every advantage that science can confer and the most enlightened industry make available! Yes it has not been until comparatively a late period in Europe, and still later in America, that the pullic mind has been made properly sensible of al. necessity of science to Agriculture, and so to pe spect Farming as essentially an intellectual and dignified pursuit-one which should imply for it a followers high mental cultivation and various attainments. Happily, however, educated vouns men are now betaking themselves to Farming, as a business, which, like the learned professions, has its own principles and will have its literature : and truly it may be asked what subject has lately given rise to memoirs and works more profound and instructive, or been fruitful of more interest ing results of scientific investigation, than Aven more enviable distinction than Liebig and Julian ston, and Boussingault and Candolle ! The taste for Agricultural Literature in our country, thanks to the able journals that encourage it, keeps pace with its progress in Europe. The more fully to meet the demand thus created, we have decided to publish on the first day of July, and mountly thereafter, the Farmer's Library and Monthly Journal of Agriculture, to be edited by John S The parinership heretofore existing between Skinner, late Assistant Postmaster General and lished in this country.

Far from being designed or in any way calenlated to affect injuriously the circulation of existng journals of less price and wider circulation, they may supply the Farmer's table with higher and more agreeable refreshment, while in the Limore costly food.
