24 Saml. A. Purviance Mr. Stewart's Speech.

To the exclusion of much other matter, we lay before our readers the speech of the Hon. AN DREW STEWART, which should be read by every cuizen who has a vote at the uext Presidennal Election. Its facts exhibiting the past official conduct of General Cass, its exposition of his inconsistencies upon matters of civil policy, and its unanswerable argument against Locoloco measures and policy in general, cannot fail to show every honest, unprejudiced mind, the inexpediency of electing Mr. Cass to fill the Chair of a Washington. Read the Speech.

Daguerreotype Portraits.

Mr. J. De La Montanye, of New York, is now in Stroudsburg, and will remain for a few days, for the purpose of taking miniatures by the Daguerreotype process. We have examined several likenesses taken by Mr. M., and we do not hesitate in saying that they are superior to any ever taken in this place; and persons wishing to transmit their physiognomy to posterity, just as it is, should not leave the present opportunity pass by. There is is no mistake about the Daguerreotype, we have seen it tried. If any one wishes to satisfy himself in this matter, let him call on Mr. M now at the Court House, who will be happy to attend to all requests of this nature.

Adjournment of Congress - Both Houses of Congress have resolved to adjourn on Monday next, the 14th inst. It will now be conceded that Congress has performed at least one good act during its long session.

A Large Eel.

Mr. John Eilenberger informs us that while engaged in fishing with a pole and line in the Mc- nity. Michael's Creek, near Stroudsburg, on Monday last, he caught an eel that weighed four pounds and three ounces. The line Mr. E., had on his pote at the time he caught this eel, was horse-hair, and only five hairs in thickness.

IT The King of the Ashanes is allowed by law, 3,333 wires.

The Locofoco press is pluming itself upon the fact that Gen. Cass, at the eleventh hour, bore testimony to the courage and skill of Gen. Harrison. If Gen. Cass bore true testimony in the case referred to, what infamous libellers our opponents must have been in 1840, when they almost unanimously joined in the cry that Granny Harrison had never been within nine miles of a battle What becomes of Petticoat Allen, and his cowardly frabrication, if the testimony of Cass in favor of Harrison is to relied upon ! It is scarcely worth worth while to "pause for an answer" to the above question .- Somerset Whig.

FRANCIS P. BLAIR, Esq., the editor of the Globe, and the legatee of Gen. JACKSON'S political papers, opposes the nominees of the importance. Dublin was placed under martial Baltimore Convention. This truly comes no der the head of defection in high places.

Cass the Monopolist.

Laborers and Poor men! How do you like the idea of voting for a LAND MONOPO-LIST, as Lewis Cass is now shown to be. When Secretary of War he took advantage of his office to SPECULATE in the PUBLIC Regent. LANDS-to pick out all the best of them, and leave the worst for the POOR EMIGRANT unless he could afford to pay him three, four and five times the government prices for them. This is the way he accumulated his boasted fortune of a million and a half of dollars. Voters; remember the Land Speculator and Extra-pay Cass, at the polls .-- The Bomb-Shell.

If General Cass, at Hull's surrender, broke his sword, we apprehend, that at the great Locofoco surrender in November he will jump out of his window and break his neck.

Gen. Cass's presnt position may be very well illustrated by an anecdote told by an old lady whose horse ran away with her. In relaing her sensation, she said she felt very much alarmed while dashing over hills and through valleys, "but she put her trust in Providence till the britchin broke, and then she didn't know what to do." Gen. Cass was quiet sure of his election, and put his trust in Providence until he heard that General TAYLOR was nominated, and then he gave up in despair. That nomi nation "broke the britchin." - Abany Journal.

The Cambersburg Whig says :-- "The Ad ministration folks are peculiar in their tastes In 1840, we gave them a General who had whipped the "red coats," but they called him granny. In 1848, they bring forward a General who has surrendered to the "red coats," and they pronounce him a hero."

MARTIN VAN BUREN has written a letter to a Committee of the Industrial Convention which asembled in Philadelphia, in which he takes ground for the freedom of the public lands to actual settlers, and gives his reasons for acquiescing in his nomination for the Presidency by the Utica Convention.

Deserters from the Cass ranks are quite numerous. In Lancaster county, Pa., there are several hundred mentioned by the Examiner, and in Berks and Monigonmery counties the feeling among the democrats against the Cass ticket is reported by the papers of those regions o be very extensive.
