Brother BROWNLOW of the Jonesborough (Tenn.) Whig, could not resist the temptation of being in Washington to witness the inauguration of Gen. TAYLOR, and while there he bestowed himself in seeing sights which he communicated by letter to the readers of his country journal. His impressions of men and events are decidedly original, and his descriptions are rich in the extreme. A letter from him under date of March 2, is before us, from which we make a few extracts:

"I have a seat in the House, as a Reporter, with a free pass, signed by Speaker Winthrop. And since it is understood that I am not one of the fifty and large odd thousands of creeping scoundrels, and unfortunate office-seekers, with which the city abounds, I am regarded as rather a clever sort of a man than otherwise."

"I have been present during the discussion of the Territorial question, or the proposition to admit California and New Mexico into the Union, as a State, or as States, in both the House and Senate. I witnessed discussions in these Houses in 1832, and again in 1844, and I am sorry to say that the tendency of men and manners, is downward. Especially is this the case in the Senate, more so in the Senate than in the House. Great confusion prevails in both, while that order and dignified deportment which characterized these bodies in the better days of the Republic, are numbered with the years beyond the flood. The Senate is the most contemptible looking body of the two. There are but few fine and imposing looking men in the Senate, Benton, Badger, Bell, Mangum, Underwood, Webster, Calhoun, Upham, Phelps, Hilditch, Johnson, and a few others, look like Senators, and will command respect. Most of the remaining Senators are young looking men, to a great degree inexperienced, and of disgusting mean and little carriage. Many of them are under size, and in their manners foolish. Douglas of Illinois, weighs 100 pounds, and wears dirty clothes."

"The most remarkable man in the House, is Horace Greeley a New York Editor. He speaks fluently, but without the manners and gentilities common to public speakers. He is an odd looking specimen of mortality. As he walks from you, you are struck with his stooping shoulders--his bald pate--his sandy whiskers--his hopping gate--he looks to be 70 years of age, while he is really a young man. He has a deep set, but benevolent eye--a constant but simple smile plays upon his countenance."

"President Polk is 20 years older in appearance than when he last canvassed for the office of Governor in Tennessee."

"Cave Johnson looks grey, old, dry and feeble, and a stranger would suppose had seen better days. Amos Kendall looks lean and lank, stoop shouldered and like the latter end of an ill-kept fowl. Old Marey looks up as usual, and whether drunk or sober, may fly over the upper crust of all political wisdom. George M. Dallas is the finest looking man in the loco-foco ranks, and is the best specimen of an English Nobleman to be seen in Washington. Millard Fillmore is the finest looking man in the Whig ranks, and Speaker Winthrop is next best in appearance. Calhoun is sinking fast, under the weight of years and of mental labor."

"A very large party of gentlemen and ladies dined with Mr. Polk yesterday, upon a special invitation--among whom were Old Zack, Gen. Cass, Col. Bell, and Mr. Marcy, Fillmore and others. Gen. Taylor was as familiar and playful with Marcy, as if he had never given him the Gaines letter, and as polite to Cass, as if neither of them had ever created any noise and confusion in the country."

"I was not present, my name having been overlooked (no doubt unintentionally) in the party of issuing the tickets of invitation. Having recognized the President's Grandfather, 'Old Zack,' in former days, it is certain that he included me to be present."

"In a subsequent letter he thus describes the events which occurred in the House just previous to adjournment:

"After a majority of the House became intoxicated, and many of them even beastly drunk, Mr. Meade of Virginia, loco, advanced upon Giddings of Ohio--took him by the throat, and rubbed his fist under his nose, denouncing oaths and bitterness suited to the occasion--causing great excitement, and a row generally on that side of the House! Mr. Clarke, of Kentucky, a loco, advanced upon Wentworth, and cursed him for a--d thief and scoundrel, and every thing else he could think of, all of which he bore like a Christian, but upon a principle of cowardice. This Clarke would charge with impunity, because Wentworth is known to be a common thief and public robber! The House last Session, had to pass a law to prevent him from stealing and coming home all the stationery. And the members throw up to him, his stealing enough of paper one year, with which to print paper of which he is the ostensible editor."

"The next scene of interest, and surpassing in grandeur, any thing yet named, was an attack upon Ficklin, of Illinois, a loco, by two other Locos, Johnson, of Arkansas, and Inge, of Alabama. The former struck Ficklin with his fist, and the latter knocked him down with a cane. After removing Ficklin beyond the Bar, and washing the blood off of him, the parties all returned and proceeded to business! One moved an adjournment, as the session had expired by limitation. Old Pettit, of Indiana, a loco-foco infidel, who was educated for the Ministry, moved "and adjournment of this Town Meeting," declaring the session to be nothing more. A third moved "for the dispersion of this mob"--while another called out from his seat for "more Whiskey." To this, another fellow replied, that it was contrary to rule to bring the article within the Bar, but just outside, in an adjoining room, there was lots. Well, all in all I never witnessed such a scene."

A writer in the Horticulturist says: "Wishing to stimulate a couple of old pear trees which stood among others in my garden, I directed my gardener to place around each tree a couple of barrowful of fresh horse manure from the stable. This was accordingly laid on the surface of the ground, and as work was rather pressing at the time it was suffered though rather strong in ammonia to lie thus for a fortnight. I think it was put about the trees just as the fruit began to swell, and before it became as large as peas. The result was that those two trees bore a good crop of fruit, while every other plum tree in my garden was stung by curculio and dropped all their fruit. There were no punctures, or scarcely any, to be found on the fruit of two trees."

Mr. Downing adds, in noticing the above, "that upon a couple of large nectarine trees growing directly against a fence which shuts in our stable yard, not a single fruit was punctured by the curculio, though other nectarine trees sixty or eighty feet distant did not escape." The inference naturally to be drawn from these facts is, that fumes of the fresh stable manure repelled the curculio.

A very similar instance was related to us not long ago by a gentleman of this city, an observing amateur fruit grower. It appeared that some of his servants made a practice for a considerable length of time of depositing human urine, daily, near an old plum tree that had lost its entire crop for many years past from the punctures of the curculio. Last season, however, it bore a full crop, suffering slightly, if at all, from the curculio. The gentleman said he could trace it to no other cause than to ammonia from the urine, that circulated in the atmosphere around the tree.

Here are three accidental cases confirming the supposition that the ammoniacal vapor ascending from the fresh stable manure and the urine is really so offensive to the curculio as to repel it entirely. This is a matter deserving of investigation by further experiments.

Great Surgical Operation.--Prof. Washington L. Adee, of the new Pennsylvania College of Medicine, performed an operation on Thursday, the 15th ult. which stamps him as one of the ablest Surgeons of the day. The operation was performed in the presence of several eminent physicians. The tumor, consisting of the right ovary, was of a solid, fibrous structure, and immovably attached to the bones of the pelvis. It weighed 8 lbs and measured around its largest circumference 2 feet 3 inches, its smallest 23 inches, being the largest fibrous tumor ever removed by this operation. The incision through the walls of the abdomen, necessary to remove it, was 15 inches in length. The patient, aged 29 years, a married lady, and a mother of four children, is now considered out of danger, no symptom having occurred to interfere with her rapid recovery. A mixture of chloroform and ether was used to an extent to destroy the sensation of pain, but not consciousness. This is the first time this operation has been performed in Philadelphia.

Fevers.
Fever of all kinds are peculiarly under the control of Clickener's Sugar Coated Purgative Pills, owing to their unrivalled efficacy in purifying the chyle, and thus depriving the blood of the nourishment that feeds its inflammation. The various Fevers are indicated by various symptoms, but cold shiverings, succeeded by a dry heat, with pains in the head, bones and limbs, are features common to all.

Mrs. Ann Seymour, of Troy, permits us to state, that being far advanced in the first stage of the Typhus Fever, she had recourse to Clickener's Sugar Coated Purgative Pills, which completely expelled every symptom of the disease in a week. She adds that they are the only medicine she could ever get to remain on her stomach.

Miss H. Allison of Orchard-st. New York, had a fever of 3 years' standing entirely broken up by Clickener's Sugar Coated Pills.

Prof. Burry's Wonderful Tricopherous, or Medicated Compound, cures baldness, prevents gray hair, and eradicates scurf and dandruff. This article differs from all other advertised nostrums of the day. Its manufacture is based upon a thorough physiological knowledge of the hair and its connection with the skin, as well as a knowledge of the various diseases which effect both. This celebrated Compound, in addition to its usefulness as a preserver and beautifier of the hair, is unequalled by any other article as an external application for bruises, sprains, erysipelas, swellings, ringworm, scald head, inflamed skin, prickly heat, scrofula, tetter, pimples, sore throat, tender feet, salt rheum, rough hands, headache, chapped skin, chilblains, internal pains, rheumatism, &c. &c.; and the pain occasioned by the sting of insects is immediately relieved by its application; and as a ready and effective resource for all cutaneous diseases of the skin, it merits a place among the household treasures of every family. Sold in large bottles, price 25 cents, at the principal office, 139 Broadway; and by all the druggists in the United States. For sale by JAMES S. WALLACE, April 12, 1849. Milford, Pa.

B. A. FAHNESTOCK'S VERMIFUGE.
A SURE REMEDY FOR WORMS.

The testimony in its favor is overwhelming. The proprietors are daily in receipt of letters and certificates, going to prove its remarkable efficiency to all cases of worms, both in children and adults. The relief given, and the immediate improvement of health which follows its use, has called the attention of physicians to this article, and they freely recommend and prescribe it in their practice.

The retail price is 25 cents per vial, which brings it within the means of all.

Brooklyn, L. I. January 16, 1847.

I do certify that I gave one bottle of B. A. Fahnestock's Vermifuge to my child, and in seven hours it passed 23 large worms. Any person doubting this may apply for further information at my residence corner of York and Jackson streets. JAMES McCAFFREY,
Poughkeepsie, N. Y. March 2, 1844.

I certify, that I took two vials of B. A. Fahnestock's Vermifuge, which I found to be the greatest cure for worms I have ever used. I have been troubled with tape worms for a number of years, and I have never found so good a medicine as B. A. Fahnestock's Vermifuge. I therefore recommend it. MARTHA CLIFT.

The public is cautioned against counterfeits and spurious articles, and to put no confidence in statements that "Kolmstock's" and "S. Fahnestock's" Vermifuge are the same or as good as the only genuine article, which is B. A. FAHNESTOCK'S VERMIFUGE.
