Executions in Persia.

A curious and dramatic scene is reported to have taken place at the court of Persia. The young Shah has been passing the holy month of Ramadan, which happens this year to coincide with the dog days, in a spacious garden not far from Teheran. The envoy of a great Christian sovereign, having demanded an audience of his majesty, an hour was appointed for the ceremony. His excellency, on arriving in due season at the royal encampment, was ushered into a tent, where he reposed a moment, while his arrival was announced to the Mahometan successor of Varius and Xerxes. Scarcely had he taken a seat, when his ears were assailed by the sound of repeated heavy blows, mingled with the most piteous cries of terror and agony. Scarcely had he time to comprehend that a grand public execution was the cause of these distressing sounds, when he was seized by the Shah's attendants, and hurried forward to the royal presence. On his passage a greater and more revolting shock awaited him. Executioners dragging the yet palpitating trunks of eight headless victims, decapitated before the Shah, met him in his path, and rudely shoved him aside to make way for their hideous train of carnage and mutilation. On reaching the court circle, pale, agitated, and confused, he remained for some seconds in an attitude of speechless horror. The Shah, with an air of composure which would have done him honor on the field of battle, enquired if the envoy was unwell; and then, for the first time, in language of just indignation, learnt what even the most despotic court of Europe would think of the bloody and barbarous reception just given to its representative. Besides the appearance of insult offered to a friendly sovereign, no light shade of odium was cast upon the throne, when thus converted from a seat of judgement and mercy into the shambles of a butcher. It is rumored that the king of kings, abashed by so well deserved a reproof, hung his head in the silence of youthful shame, and that the indignant envoy, on repeating his complaint to the prime minister, received the consoling assurance that he had probably earned by twenty minutes of annoyance the satisfaction of putting an end to a barbarous practice, which, though belonging to the good old times of Persia, was not the less a scandal to the age and a dishonour to the crown.

Western Live Stock--High Prices.

MAYS LICK, Ky. Saturday Sept. 14.
Mr. HORACE GREELY—Dear Sir: At a public sale held in this neighborhood, Sept. 7, two black boys, belonging to Benj. Ball's estate, sold one for $850, and the other for $640—nineteen and sixteen years old. The one sixteen years old sold for $8 per lb. He weighed eighty pounds net; 80x58—$640. Yours, &c. DIDIMUS JONES.
I send you this for your Northern abolitionists and fanatics to pick. I see your particular friend Frederick Douglass has been cutting quite a swell at the Battery in New York, with two women of white complexion, for which impudence he got thumped. Well done and right!
Remarks.—Mr. Jones is assured that we consider the above information cheap at the ten cents it cost us, and if he shall hear of any more 'transactions' as interesting, we will thank him to send them along. It is our effort and pride to make the Tribune comprehensive and complete in its Market, and though we have not had much to say of the Slave market, considering it rather a 'peculiar institution,' yet if our Southern friends will furnish us the data, we will give that feature of our domestic commerce all reasonable attention.
—As to Frederick Douglass, his crime consisted in consenting to show two English ladies, ignorant of the prejudice of color prevailing among us, their place of destination, they having missed their way. For this three or four of our white apostles of Democracy and the largest libery fell upon him and beat him severely. 'Well done and right!' says Mr. Jones.—Well: if Jones' visage is as villainous as his sentiments, there can be no danger that decent women will ever involve him in beating by asking him to show them their way. So he can afford to exult in the beating of others under like circumstances.—New York Tribune.

Price of a Pretty Foot.—A suit has just been decided by the Circuit Court in New York in which the New Jersey Railroad Company have been mulcted in the sum of $1000 in consequence of one of their cars crushing the foot of a lady at the depot in Jersey City in August, 1847.

Earthquake at Cleveland.

A very sensible shock of an earthquake was felt at this place this morning (Oct 1st) at about 20 minutes past five o'clock. The morning was very clear, with the exception of a few distant clouds resting upon the horizon in the North and the Northwest. The night had also been quite clear, with a beautiful display of Aurora Borealis, which was most brilliant about four o'clock. The first indication of the phenomena was a low rumbling sound, somewhat like distant thunder, apparently in a northwesterly direction. The sound increased in intensity for about three or four seconds, the deepest intonations, being like very heavy distant thunder, the earth at the same instant exhibited a trembling motion which lasted nearly two seconds when it gradually died away with the sound in an easterly or southeast direction. The concussion was so violent that it produced a jarring and rattling of the windows, furniture and crockery, and a very sensible trembling could be felt by one standing on the ground. In Euclid about eight miles east of this city, the shock was sufficiently violent to throw crockery from the shelf.—Christian Herald.

Yankee Inquisitiveness.—We see by the Boston papers that Mr. Andrews, the jailer is constantly beset by persons who are anxious to know if he believes Professor Webster to be really dead, the jailer's answer is that, as the man was hanged, the body confined twelve hours, and then put twelve feet under the ground, his sincere belief is that if he is not dead, he soon will be.
