An Excursion Frustrated.
While Jimmy O'Neil, at 4 o'clock, P. M., yesterday, was hammering away upon an old shoe, left for repairs at his officium in Lombard street near Sixth, he heard a noise in the little entry which leads to the interior of his residence, and, having some reason to suspect that all was not right, he crept noiselessly to the side door which opens into the entry aforesaid, and—but before we proceed further, it will be necessary, for the purpose of elucidation, to apprise the reader that Mrs. Nelly O'Neil—Jimmy's partner in the holy bands of wedlock—had been in the habit for a long time of receiving visits, (unknown to Jimmy,) from a Mr. Michael Kennedy, an old beau of hers, whom she jilted at the time she bestowed her heart and hand on the happy O'Neil. Nelly and her gallant, Mr. Kennedy, were accustomed to slip out the entry door, (while Jimmy was engaged in his noisy occupation,) and take a long ramble, when the weather permitted, o'er the green fields and through the solemn woods; and on these occasions it was customary to carry with them some of Jimmy's property, some portable article of dress or furniture, which they sold or 'spouted' for the purpose of raising a fund to supply them with a flask of liquor, gingerbread, crackers and cheese, and other appliances to rake their little excursions more agreeable. Jimmy had missed so many things out of his house that he was particularly anxious to detect the plunderers. It is presumed that he had no suspicions of Mrs. O'Neil's virtue, but several of the neighbors had advised the lady to be more cautious in her movements, not to be seen 'parading' with a gentleman of Mr. Kennedy's notoriously gay character. It was arranged, therefore, that the next time they went out for a walk, Mrs. O'Neil should be put up in a neat parcel, covered with a blanket or bed quilt, and that Mr. Kennedy should carry her, in this envelope, out of the tattling and prying neighborhood of Lombard and Sixth streets. This noise made by Kennedy in stumbling down stairs with his precious burden, startled O'Neil, as previously stated; he encountered the burdened sinner in the entry.

"Och! an' is it you, Mike Kennedy, that has been after robbin' and thavin' about my house for these six months?" said Jimmy.—"Run, Tim, (to his apprentice,) and fetch me an officer. Troth, you murderous rogue, you've got the best bed quilt I can bless myself wid; and what's inside of it?" Jimmy uncovered one end of the bundle and discovered the head of Mrs. O'Neil. "Faix, an' by the soul of my Uncle Pether, you may go ahead, Mike, as soon as you please," cried Jimmy O'Neil; "if you'll take the whole lot together, I'll make ye intirely welcome."

Nevertheless, Tim, the apprentice, had succeeded in finding an officer, (they are not hard to find in that neighborhood) and by this time, Nelly, in struggling to release herself, had got her feet out of the parcel. The strange posture of affairs made the officer insist on arresting the whole party, though Mr. O'Neil assured him that it was "all a mistake," and that "the gentleman (meaning Mike Kennedy) had full permission to take off the baggage."

Pennsylvanian.
If every man had a window in his breast, blinds would be in great demand.
It looks nice to see a hearty, athletic man, going from door to door with a hand organ. Such fellows deserve to be blown out of every town with tin boat horns.

When Clarke asked in Sweden, what became of a woman who fell down the shaft of an iron mine that he visited.—"Became of her?" said the man to whom he put the question striking his hand at the same time forcibly upon his thigh, "she became a pancake!"

NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

The DAILY TRIBUNE is issued every morning except Sunday on a large sheet of fine white paper, forming eight pages of six columns each, or about the size of two average Country Newspapers. About six of these pages are new every morning; the aggregate of Editorials, News and Miscellanies being greater than that of any other paper in America, and greater than any but one or two in Europe, though its price is but half that of other first-class Dailies in this Country and less than one-fourth the cost of similar journals in England. Two Evening Editions are issued to supply each subscriber with the latest news up to the hour when his copy must be mailed.
The Tribune is edited in chief by Horace Greeley, who has special charge of all matters pertaining to the Politics and Legislation of our own Country. Its Foreign (Old-World) department is in charge of Charles A. Dana, assisted by able correspondents in London, Paris, Constantinople, &c. &c. Its California intelligence and its City department are in charge of Bayard Taylor, assisted by an efficient corps of Reporters. No expense is or will be spared to render its news from all quarters, by Telegraph, Expresses, Steamships and Mails, as early and reliable as that of any other paper.
The Semi-Weekly Tribune contains nearly all the non-advertising matter of the Daily, except such as is of local interest, or has been superseded by fuller and more exact advices before the Semi-Weekly is issued. It is of the same size with the Daily, and has few advertisements.
The Weekly Tribune is issued every Thursday morning, and contains most of the matter of the Daily with more summary accounts of such Events and Proceedings as cannot be published in full. We mean that no Weekly shall surpass this in giving a full graphic and faithful account of what the world is doing, whereof it is thinking, and how it is progressing.
The Tribune is not quite ten years old, and has obtained an aggregate circulation of not far from sixty-five thousand copies—about two thirds of them on its Weekly. Every subscription is paid in advance, and the paper stops when the advance pay runs out, so that no man need hesitate to subscribe from an apprehension of being cheated for arrears, perhaps after he has left the place to which the paper is sent, in ignorance that it is continued. Subscriptions from individuals and clubs are respectfully solicited by
GREGLEY & MELRATH,
Publishers, 151 Nassau st.
New York, Dec. 19th, 1850.
