

Slave Case-Fatal Result.

Columbia, Pa., April 29.—An officer, named Ridgely, and another, named Snyder, (the latter from Harrisburg, came here to-day, in search of a colored man, named Smith, claimed as a fugitive slave; and whilst the man was in their custody, he was shot dead by one of the officers—whether designedly or not, it is difficult to say, as there are so many conflicting reports. There were a large number of colored persons present when the affair took place, and as may be supposed, an intense excitement has been produced. Smith, though supposed to be a slave, has been living here for several years, and has a family in this place.

Officer Ridgely is from Baltimore, and came here after Smith at the instance of a Maryland slave owner.

Columbia, April 30.—The evidence before the inquest, held upon the body of the colored man, claimed as a fugitive, of whose death I informed you yesterday, discloses the following facts. Deputy Marshall Snyder, of Harrisburg, accompanied by Officer Ridgely, of Baltimore, and Mr. Stansbury, of Baltimore, arrived here, yesterday, in pursuit of an alleged fugitive slave, whom the latter claimed as his property. About 3 o'clock, in the afternoon, the party went to a lumber-yard, in the southern part of the town, where they found the alleged fugitive engaged in piling up lumber, and made an attempt to arrest him. A scuffle ensued, during which the negro got Mr. Ridgely's finger between his teeth, and at this juncture the officer drew his pistol, which, while the two continued struggling, went off, and the ball passing into the negro's neck, he fell dead instantly.

Ridgely was pursued by the police, but he succeeded in escaping from the hotel where he was putting up. Officer Snyder took the cars for Harrisburg, where he was temporarily arrested, but subsequently discharged without an examination.

Mr. Fisher, the deputy coroner, held the inquest. The deceased leaves a wife and two children, having been a resident of this place about eighteen months.

Ridgely, after escaping from the town walked as far as Monkton mills, a short distance beyond the Pennsylvania line, where he took the cars for Baltimore.

The excitement here still continues, and it is positively alleged that the shooting was intentional and not accidental.—Application has been made to the Governor to issue a requisition, demanding the delivery of Ridgely for trial.

Baltimore, Md., April 30.—Police Officer Ridgely, of the independent Police, firm of Zell & Sidgely, of this city was the person who shot the fugitive slave Smith, at Columbia, Pa., yesterday. He was pursued by an excited crowd from Columbia, and with great difficulty succeeded in reaching this city this morning. He gives the following account of the transaction:

He says, that having arrested the negro, he was surrounded by an excited and infuriated crowd of negroes, and in order to intimidate them as well as the alleged fugitive, he drew his pistol. The crowd continued to press upon him—endeavoring to rescue the negro, who also made violent efforts to escape, and got his (Ridgely's) finger in his mouth.—Having the pistol in his other hand, under the sudden impulse of pain and excitement, he pulled the trigger, and the ball passed through the body of the negro, causing his almost instant death.—With great difficulty escaped to Shrewsbury, and thence to Baltimore, where he is now seeking legal advice.

The negro, killed at Columbia, was the run away slave of Mr. Stansbury of this city. Officer Ridgely declares that the shooting altogether was accidental.

A Tale of Extraordinary Suffering.

The Fredericksburg, Va. News narrates the following extraordinary incident in the life of a man named Watson who, some fifteen years ago, left Alexandria, settled in King George county as a merchant married a highly respectable young lady, by whom he had four children, and subsequently became a widower and a bankrupt.

With his little children, two of whom were daughters, he lived on a small farm which he rented, three miles below the line separating Stafford and King George. During the coldest of the weather in the latter part of December last his children were seized with whooping cough, and every one of them prostrated. Whilst thus confined, their father was taken with erysipelas, and in the same room lay the father and children, perfectly helpless.—Whilst thus confined, some fowls broke in his meat and fowl houses, and stole every fowl and piece of meat on the farm.

In doing so they passed through the garden leveling the fence, and thereby permitting the cattle and hogs to destroy all the vegetables intended for winter use.—The only thing left for the support of that family was a small quantity of corn meal and some unroasted coffee. In that condition they lay a large portion of the time without water, without fire, and without food.

A poor widow in the neighborhood sent them a small piece of meat, and the oldest boy, not quite so ill as the rest, did, as long as his strength would enable him, crawl to the fire-place, stir up the dying embers, half cook some bread fry a piece of meat, and with coffee without milk or sugar, attempt to relieve the hunger of his dying father and sisters. On one occasion, weak and feeble as he was he staggered thro' the snow to a neighbor's house to procure fire.—At one time the father and children would be crying for water, and not a drop in the house and no one to bring it. Thus they lay for several days until God, in his mercy, took two of the children. Two days did they lay corpses by the side of their sick parent, and no one to prepare them for sepulchre and convey them to the tomb. A man accidentally passing by, called in, found the family as we have described them, the father blind and insensible, with his two dead children—one frozen to death—lying by his side, and left them in that condition. Two days after this the father died. The night preceding his death he had hemorrhage and bled most profusely. By his side were his son and his daughter barely able to raise their heads, but nerved to the occasion they sat by him the whole night alone, using every means their infant minds could suggest in staunching the blood.—A poor widow, the day of Watson's death heard of it, came to his house had him and his two dead children buried, took the sick ones home with her, nursed them and has since restored them to health.

A Strange Phenomenon.

The New Orleans Delta has the following relation, which is singular if true.—It is rather strange that facts so interesting, if real, has not been noticed in some of the medical works.

We have a case which we were prompted to witness, by both motives of idle curiosity and philosophical inquiry. The case we allude to was post-mortem examination of a lad who died yesterday morning. He was three years of age at his demise, and the disease that carried him off was "dohin-enteritis." From the family of the lad, who readily gave their consent to the autopsy, and his physician, Dr. Fox Smith, who with the assistance of Dr. Sherjden, Dr. Hale, and others, performed the operation, we obtained the following particulars.

This lad, when born, was a twin child, and attached to one side of the other child, which also, at birth, be it remembered, was ALIVE. The contact between the children extended from the mana to the spino of the ilium, and there was a free interchange of nerves and blood-vessels passing from one body to the other. The former (the nerves) had the origin in the dorsal region of the vertebra, and the latter (the blood-vessels) rose from the arch of the aorta and merged into the vena cava ascendens. There was but one umbilical dimple between the twins and that was situated in the centre of the vital connecting septum. In all other respects, we believe, the conformation of the twins was normal. These children, thus singularly united, were large and healthy, at birth, and bade fair to live. But six months after birth, when dentition was beginning with both, one of the twins died. Dr. Smith was sent for to separate the living child from the corpse at its side. On examining the lifeless body, however, he discovered to his surprise, pulsation still continued in it, even in the extremities—as the temples, feet and wrists. He hesitated therefore for a time to resort to the knife. Yet there could be no doubt, here, of the death of one of the twins. Formerly, from its birth to the moment in discussion, it had nursed, cried, smiled, showed signs of consciousness, in short, as evidently as any infant possessing an independent and distinct vitality. But after this moment, it never nursed, it never cried, it never smiled, it never showed again a sign of consciousness. Its eyes remained hermetically sealed, its mouth closed, and all physiological functions terminated. Still the body did not decay. It did not grow any more, on the contrary, it rather diminished in bulk.—It shrivelled up, until it assumed the shape of one of those interesting infantile mummies that Professor Gliddon unfolds when he gives an exhibition to the scholars of the public schools. The circulation of living blood from the surviving twin, it would seem, preserved the body of the dead one.

In this manner the lad lived three years, as we have stated, carrying his brother to a living tomb, at his side.—Few, besides the family physician, knew of these extraordinary circumstances.—It was a conceit of the mother, originating in her grief and anxiety, that the child that first died, did not in truth die, (since there was no bodily decomposition) but its life—its spirit—receded into the body of the other, which became, then, the tabernacle, so to speak, of a dual soul. No mental phenomena characterized the lad we have described. In every respect except the anatomical peculiarities we have described, he was like ordinary children. We hope to see a more extended account of this phenomenon from the pen of Dr. Smith, published some of the medical journals.

Serious Effects of The Late Storm.

From all quarters we have accounts of the serious effects of the late storm.—The overflow of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers, is truly disastrous.—In addition to the loss of many valuable lives, it is estimated that $400,000 worth of property was destroyed in the vicinity of Pittsburg. The water was within three feet of high flood mark of 1832.—Upwards of five hundred families were driven from their homes in the little city of Allegheny. Many of the bridges on the Potomac have been swept away, and a large amount of valuable property along the river and canal, has been either carried off or wholly ruined. From the east we hear of numerous disasters to the shipping. Several vessels are either ashore, or totally wrecked, in the neighborhood of Boston. It is feared that the shipping along the coast has suffered to a far greater extent than is yet known.

There are 2,067,313,910 acres in the United States.

Louis Napoleon's Parentage.

The personal character of Louis Napoleon is somewhat enigmatical. His mother, Hortense Beauharnais, was a woman of exceedingly bad life, however history may have glossed her annals.—Before marriage she had two children—one by Napoleon which died early; the other by a Frenchman—Flahaut—the present De Morny, late Minister of the Interior. Louis Napoleon, born after her marriage with Louis Napoleon, King of Holland, is very generally regarded as the natural son of a Dutch Admiral, notorious as the Queen's lover. His physiognomy, his complexion, his air and habits, are all Dutch. He is slow and taciturn.

Still, he is himself convinced of his true Napoleonic blood and origin, and really has, or affects to have, an astrological faith in his high destiny. He believes himself born to walk in the footsteps of the great Napoleon, and hence we see him reviving the institutions of the Empire with a sort of Chinese fidelity of imitation. He has reached the point and power of the First Consul, and it is generally believed that he will soon put on the crown of the Empire.

The only money they use in the back part of Oregon consists of live stock—a hog paying for a dollar, a sheep for fifty cents, turkeys twenty-five cents, and young hogs for a shilling each. If Smith owns Jones $1.12 1/2, he sends him five hogs, and receives for change one sheep, one turkey, and two pups.
