

Intellect--Labor.

Are labor and self culture irreconcilable to each other? In the first place we have seen that a man in the midst of labor, may and ought to give himself to the most important improvements, that he may cultivate his sense of justice, his benevolence, and the desire of perfection. Toil is the school of these high principles; and we have a strong presumption that, in other respects, it does not necessarily blight the soul. Next we have seen that the most fruitful sources of truth and wisdom are not books, precious as they are, but experience and observation; and these belong to all conditions. It is another important consideration, that almost all labor demands intellectual activity, and is best carried on by those who invigorate their minds; so that the two interests, and self culture are friends to each other.

It is mind, after all, which does the work in the world; so that the more there is of mind, the more work will be accomplished. A man, in proportion as he is intelligent, makes a given force accomplish a greater task, makes skill take the place of muscles, and with less labor gives a better product. Make men intelligent and they become inventive; they find a shorter process. Their knowledge of nature helps them to turn its laws to account, to understand the substance on which they work, and so seize on useful hints, which experience continually furnishes. It is among women some of the most useful machines have been contrived. Spread education, and as the history of the country shows, there will be no bounds to useful invention.

Wright vs Fuller.

The Danville Intelligencer, a Loco-foco paper published in the contested district, thinks if Col. Wright had only a small share of modesty or self respect, he would come away from Washington, as he must be an idiot if he cannot see that the House is disposed to grant him the right to come into Congress, only in the regular way, and not in defiance of popular majorities, and a legal certificate of an election granted to his competitor. It adds further:

Col. Wright has tried for the nomination three times, and run twice for Congress, in this district. He failed at both elections, and charged his defeat to fraud, at each unsuccessful effort. He has now been knocking at the door of Congress for half a year to give him a seat—relying upon a Democratic majority to turn Mr. Fuller out because he is a Whig, and put him in because he now pretends to be a Democrat.

He has finally got a portion of the committee to report in favor of declaring the seat vacant—four of the committee maintaining that Mr. Fuller is fairly elected, all that Col. W. has said to the contrary notwithstanding. We have seen both reports, and no cause is shown for sending the election back to the people. The Democratic members of Congress will do themselves discredit if they set aside the verdict of the people. They will make great mischief in this Congressional District, without doing Col. Wright any good. Let the two verdicts alone!

Frauds on Government.

A system of fraud upon the government in false applications for land warrants, back pay for the Mexican war, &c., amounting to about $100,000 has lately been discovered in New York, chiefly by Judge Stuart. The following persons have been arrested: Thomas Dawson, land broker, of 111 Murry street; Horace C. Pike, land broker, doing business at the corner of Wall and William street; William Merrihue, of Brooklyn; Hamilton R. Boone, doing business in Broadway; William H. Griswold, lawyer, of 118 Nassau street; and Edward F. Nexsen, broker, of No. 66 Wall.

Judge Stuart some time since suspected that certain persons were in the habit of forging certificates, and wrote to Richard W. Heath, the Commissioner at Washington, who instituted an investigation, and discovered several instances of fraud.—In one case, 15,000 acres had been obtained. Judge Stuart, with the assistance of Capt. Taft, of the Police, pursued his investigation in New York, and, in conjunction with the U. S. Commissioner Brigham, issued warrants, of which the above persons were arrested. Others are yet at large. Mr. Heath is in New York with a large quantity of forged papers for evidence.

Mourning.

'Black is the sign of mourning,' says Rabelais, 'because it is the color of darkness, which is melancholy, and the opposite of white, which is the color of light, of joy and of happiness.' The early poets asserted that souls, after death, went into a dark and gloomy empire. Probably it is in consonance with this idea that they imagined black was the most congenial color for mourning. The Chinese and the Siamese choose white, conceiving that the dead became beneficent geni.—In Turkey, mourning is composed of blue or violet; in Ethiopia, of gray; and at the time of the invasion of Peru by the Spaniards, the inhabitants of that country wore it of mouse color. Among the Japanese, white is the sign of mourning, and black of rejoicing. In Castile, mourning vestments were formerly of white serge. The Persians clothed in brown, and their whole family, and all their animals, were shaven. In Lycia, the men wore female habiliments during the whole of their mourning.

Manufacturing a Hero.

We presume that Gen. Pierce forms no exception to the rule that American soldiers are all brave and chivalrous. He would no doubt have fought gallantly and demeaned himself bravely had that unfortunate affair of falling among the rocks not occurred at Contreras, or the fainting spell at Cherebusco never taken place.—As it is the attempt to make a hero out of the Loco-foco candidate, since the nomination, is simply ridiculous. The York Republican tells the whole story of his exploits in a nut-shell, which as it seems to be based upon credible authority we copy for general information. That paper says:

As to the military services of Gen. Pierce, so much vaunted now, they consisted in leading a Division of 2500 men without opposition from Vera Cruz to Puebla, after Gen. Scott had gained the battle of Cerro Gordo, taken Jalapa, La Hoya and Perote, and following immediately in the footsteps of Gen. Cadwallader, who had defeated and dispersed the guerrillas in several severe actions on the line of communication with Scott's head quarters, and the way had thus been opened for Pierce's command. He was not in the battle of Contreras, his horse having fallen with him among the rocks the day before, and he did not rejoin until after Contreras had been won, when he took part in the pursuit of the fugitives on horseback, but abandoning his horse when he came in range of the Mexican batteries at Cherebusco, his horse being all at once to fall to the ground, taking no further part in that battle. This we have in a letter of Gen. Pierce himself published in Grigg, Elliot & Co's. Work entitled "Gen. Scott and His Staff." At Molino del Rey (see Frost's Mexican War and its Warriors) "the battle was won just as Gen. Pierce reached the ground and had interposed between Garland's Brigade and the retreating enemy." He had, therefore, time neither to fight or faint then. At Chapultepec, "the immediate command devolved on Brig. Gen. Cadwallader in the absence of the senior Brigadier (Pierce) of the same Division—an invalid since the events of August 19." That is all we can find of Gen. Pierce in the Campaign against Mexico. He actually took no effective part in any of the battles of the valley, the only ones fought after he joined the army. Yet those who decried Gen. Scott manufacture a hero out of Franklin Pierce!

A man, convicted of murdering a constable in St. Louis, has been sentenced to the penitentiary for ninety-nine years.

Littell's Living Age.

Extracts of letters from Judge Story, Chief Justice, and President Adams.

CAMBRIDGE, April 24, 1844.

I have read the prospectus with great pleasure; and entirely approve the plan. If it can only obtain the public patronage long enough, and large enough, and secure enough, to attain its true ends, it will contribute in an eminent degree to give a healthy tone, not only to our literature, but to public opinion. It will enable us to possess, in a moderate compass, a select library of the best productions of the age. It will do more: it will redeem our periodical literature from the reproach of being devoted to light and superficial reading; to transitory speculations, to sickly and ephemeral sentimentalities, and false and extravagant sketches of life and character.

NEW YORK, 7th May, 1844.

I approve very much of the plan of the "Living Age"; and if it be conducted, with the intelligence, spirit and taste that the prospectus indicates, (of which I have no reason to doubt,) it will be one of the most instructive and popular periodicals of the day.

WASHINGTON, 27 Dec. 1845.

In all the Periodical Journals devoted to literature and science which abound in Europe and in this country, this has appeared to me the most useful. It contains indeed the exposition only of the current literature of the English language, but this, by its immense extent and comprehension, includes a portrait of the human mind in the utmost expansion of the present age.

J. Q. ADAMS.

PROSPECTUS.

This work is conducted in the spirit of Littell's Museum of Foreign Literature, (which was favorably received by the public for twenty years,) but as it is twice as large, and appears so often, we not only give spirit and freshness to it by many things which were excluded by a month's delay, but while extending our scope and gathering a greater and more attractive variety, are able so to increase the solid and substantial part of our literary, historical, and political harvest, as fully to satisfy the wants of the American reader.

The elaborate and stately Essays of the Edinburgh Quarterly, and other Reviews; and Blackwood's noble criticisms on Poetry, his keen political Commentaries, highly wrought Tales, and vivid descriptions of rural and mountain scenery; and the contributions to Literature, History, and Common Life, by the sagacious Spectator, the sparkling Examiner, the judicious Athenaeum, the busy and industrious Literary Gazette, the sensible and comprehensive Britannia, the sober and respectable Christian Observer; these are intermixed with the Military and Naval reminiscences of the United Service, and with the best articles of the Dublin University News Monthly, Fraser's, Tait's, Ainsworth's, Hood's, & Sporting Magazines, and of Chambers' admirable Journal. We do not consider it beneath our dignity to borrow wit and wisdom from Punch; and, when we think it good enough, make use of the thunder of The Times. We shall increase our variety by importations from the continent of Europe, and from the new growth of the British colonies.

The steamship has brought Europe, Asia, and Africa into our neighborhood and will greatly multiply our connections, as Merchants, Travellers, and Politicians, with all parts of the world so that much more than ever it now becomes every intelligent American to be informed of the condition and changes of foreign countries. And this not only because of their nearer connection with ourselves, but because the nations seem to be hastening, through a rapid process of change, to some new state of things, which the merely political prophet cannot compute or foresee.

Geographical Discoveries, the progress of Colonization, (which is extending over the whole world,) and Voyages and Travels, will be favorite matter for our selections; and, in general, we shall systematically and very fully acquaint our readers with the great department of Foreign affairs, without entirely neglecting our own.

While we aspire to make the Living Age desirable to all who wish to keep themselves informed of the rapid progress of the movement—to Statesmen, Divines, Lawyers, and Physicians—to men of business and men of leisure—it is still a stronger object to make it attractive and useful to their Wives and Children. We believe that we can thus do some good in our day and generation; and hope to make the work indispensable in every well-informed family. We say indispensable, because in this day of cheap literature it is not possible to guard against the influx of what is bad taste and vicious in morals, in any other way than by furnishing a sufficient supply of a healthy character: The mental and moral appetite must be gratified.

We hope that, by winnowing the wheat from the chaff, by providing abundantly for the imagination, and by a large collection of Biography, Voyages, Travels, History, and more solid matter, we may produce a work which shall be popular, while at the same time it will aspire to raise the standard of public taste.

The Living Age is published every Saturday, by E. Littell & Co., corner Tremont and Bromfield sts., Boston; Price 12 1-2 cents a number, or six dollars a year in advance. Remittances for any period will be thankfully received and promptly attended to.

Postage Free.

To all subscribers within 1500 miles, who remit in advance, directly to the office of publication at Boston, the sum of Six Dollars, we will continue the work beyond the year, as long as shall be equivalent to the cost of postage—thus virtually carrying out the plan of sending every man's copy to him, Postage Free; placing our distant subscribers on the same footing as those nearer to us; and making the whole country our neighborhood.

We hope for such future change in the law, or the interpretation thereof, as will enable us to make this offer to subscribers at any distance.

Complete sets of the First Series, in thirty volumes, to the end of September, 1851, handsomely bound, packed in neat boxes and delivered in all the principal cities, free of expense of freight, are for sale at $60. Any volume may be had separately at $2, bound, or a dollar and a half in numbers. Any number may be had for 12 1-2 cents; and it may be worth while for subscribers or purchasers to complete any broken volumes they may have, and thus greatly enhance their value.

Binding.—We bind the work in a uniform, strong, and good style; and where customers bring their numbers in good order, can generally give them bound volumes in exchange without any delay. The price of the binding is 50 cents a volume. As they are always bound to one pattern, there will be no difficulty in matching the future volumes.

E. LITTELL & CO., Boston.
