ONE of the largest stocks of American Movements and American Cases, both Gold and Silver, ever offered in Butler, is to be seen at E. Grieb's, which were all purchased before the late rise in Watches, and will be sold at the old rates.

MESSRS J. & G. F. KECK, Merchant Tailors, have secured the services of one of the best cutters in the country.

IF it pays to purchase costly agricultural implements, it certainly pays to take care of them, now that they are to be laid by for a six months. The time to care for all farm tools is now. Put them in complete order that they may be ready for use when needed in the spring, and time presses. This is trite advice, readers, but we all stand in need of it.

A LOCOMOTIVE attached to a train on the Westchester railroad would not budge an inch at one of the way stations, notwithstanding the engineer worked at the throttle, and the indicator showed enough steam up. An examination disclosed the fact that an eel had got into the injector and caused the trouble. The slippery stranger was dragged out.

WILLIAM ALAND, Merchant Tailor, has just opened the largest line of woolens for men and boys wear ever offered in Butler.

BOB INGERSOLL says we are paying our preachers too large salaries. And yet Mr. Ingersoll coolly pockets his hundred or two of dollars for a single lecture, in which he attempts to shake the faith of the people in the only thing which robs death and the grave of their terrors, and has no idea that he is overpaid for that questionable sort of work.

THE "Denver Land Co." turned out to be a fraud. The Company had purchased for little or nothing a thousand acres of sand hills, located about forty miles north of Denver, and expected to make their money out of it by selling titles to lots for one dollar, the cost of making deed, etc. The titles are all right, but the lots are worthless, a fact that it took time to develop.

THE Rev. Thomas K. Beecher, of Elmira, N. Y., recently held in a discourse that if Elmira was not the Garden of Eden it at least deserved to have been. Mark Twain, who once wept at Adam's tomb, and whose summer residence is at Elmira, coincided with Dr. Beecher, and the two originated the project of erecting a monument to the great progenitor of the human race. It is to be a marble shaft seventy-five feet high, and is to cost $25,000.

CONRAD BATTENFELDER, of Saxonburg, this county, made up his mind a short time ago to run away from his creditors instead of paying them, and so packed up a two horse wagon with oats, corn, etc., and tied a buggy behind also, but leaving a wife and child. He got as far as Punxsutawney, Jefferson county, was then overtaken and brought as far back as Kittanning, where he succeeded in escaping from the officer, and that has been the last the good people of Saxonburg have heard of Conrad Battenfelder.

FROM the Rockport (Ind.) Banner. There is no medicine in the world which has gained such fame as ST. JACOBS OIL: this is, however, not in the least astonishing, when we consider its truly wonderful curative powers. Mr. F. Rodenberg, of Grandview, called at our office last week and related the following circumstance: "I suffered with Rheumatism for over six years; consulted many physicians and tried hundreds of remedies, but without avail. Having seen St. JACOBS OIL advertised in your paper, and heard of some most astonishing cures, I sent to Rockport for a bottle of the OIL, and used it according to directions. The relief I felt was almost 'electric.' I got better at once, and now there is not a trace of Rheumatism left in my body."

A QUESTION of interest to Roman Catholic fathers and mothers all over the country has just been brought to a sharply-defined issue in Massachusetts. A number of well-to-do Irish born citizens, of Cambridgeport, one of them an Alderman, have been sending their children to the public schools, alleging as a reason that the instruction given there is better than the parochial school affords. The priest of the parish has forbidden these persons to approach the sacraments so long as they persist in sending their children to the public schools; and it is now reported that the Archbishop of Boston fully sustains him. At latest advice the recalcitrant parishioners were still holding out.

BEFORE ordering your winter clothing call at J. & G. F. Keck's Merchant Tailoring establishment.

A GERMAN professor has, if we may credit the London Telegraph, after patient experiments with his nose, proved that organ to be the seat of his soul. "My researches," says the professor, "have assured me that the seat of the immortal part of man is his nose. More than this, I can, by going into a room, tell at once by sniffing whether those who were last in it were sad or mirthful." This apostle of the human nose brings the great theory which he has developed from his diagnosis down to the practical matter of the nose as the organ of smell; and he shows how different odors produce different emotions and aspirations of the soul—impulses toward love, hate, laughter, grief, religion, trade, patriotism or dinner. Thus through the nose we may mould the character and reach the soul. The Professor has also constructed instruments for registering the wave-motion of smells on the nose or soul, and showed his audience, in a recent lecture, on the blackboard, the curves taken by the scent atoms when striking on the soul nerves. Finally, he professes to have discovered "a smell-murdering essence, christened ozodone, with which I can soothe the angry man to mildness or infuriate a Quaker."

WM. MARDORF is paying more for Beef Hides, Kips, Calf Skins, Sheep Pelts and Tallow than any Tanner or dealer in the county.

ALMOST every day at this season of the year flocks of wild geese can be seen high in the air flying southward. These birds have about completed a long journey from the shores, perhaps, of the North Sea, and contiguous marshes and inland plains where they have passed the summer, rearing their young in safety, undisturbed by man or beast, and going through their dreaded annual crisis of pin-feather moulting, which deprives them every year for three weeks or more of their power to rise in the air. And this leads us to ponder upon the use and service which nature makes of these vast areas of land and watery waste in the circumpolar regions. It is certain that without some such nursery the countless flocks of water fowl that now delight man as a hunter and as an epicure would cease to exist within the short span of a season or two. And then what shall we say of the action of this immense expanse of frosty earth and chill water upon the atmosphere of the globe? It comes down upon the incandescent regions of the equator purifying and preserving, just as a stream of cold air travels through a refrigerator over the perishable articles placed therein during the dog days here. The great silent moors and rugged mountains of the far north may be indeed unfit for the settlement of civilized humanity, but they are indirectly perhaps necessary to the life and health of these settlements in more favored lands to the southward.

WANTED to buy for manufacture, at Roessing's Tannery, a large stock of Beef Hides of every description and weight, at highest market price paid by any person in the county.

THE sudden and complete destruction of a large building in Kansas City with the loss of several lives, is believed to afford another instance of dust explosion. No other explanation appears tenable, judging from the particulars of the disaster as furnished by the press. There was no boiler explosion, and had there been, the disaster would have presented different characteristics from those which actually marked it. Four brick three-story buildings suddenly collapsed with a loud report, and were immediately enveloped in flames. No boiler explosion could have thrown down all these buildings at once and set them all on fire in an instant. The belief is that the buildings, which were occupied by an extensive cracker and candy works, had become filled with flour dust; that this dust became ignited in some manner not known, and which probably will never be satisfactorily explained; and that the dust-charged air of all the buildings took fire simultaneously, leveled the walls by the explosion, and then set everything combustible in flames. When the disastrous explosion and destruction of the Minnesota mills occurred, the theory of dust ignition and explosion was first broached, and was received with incredulity. There happened to be no other possible way of accounting for the disaster, and those concerned were induced to make thorough investigation into the possibility of such ignition and explosion. Before the question had been completely settled another explosion without apparent cause took place in the East, and the investigation into this case furnished additional evidence in support of the dust explosion theory. The destruction of a starch factory left no doubt remaining, and now it is an established fact that air charged with fine flour dust is highly inflammable; that it may even take fire from the electricity generated by the belts of the machinery; and that the resulting explosion is of terrifically destructive force. Whilst this discovery explains many disastrous explosions and fires that had previously been mysterious, it warns all those who are engaged in the manufacture or manipulation of flour, of hitherto unsuspected perils in their business.

"General Grant's Tour Around the World."

This is the title of a new book by L. T. REMLAP, and contains a full description of GEN. Grant's Tour. After an absence of over two years, the General has returned to our shores. During this period he has visited every European capital, and has seen with his own eyes the people of every nation. Everywhere, in England, Ireland and Scotland; in France, Germany, Italy and Austria; in Switzerland, as in Denmark, Russia and Egypt, India, Siam, China and Japan, he has been welcomed by rulers and people alike, in a manner and splendor and fervor of hospitality which have been rightly felt by the mass of the American people as not merely a compliment to the General and Ex-President, but as a gratifying evidence of good will toward us as a people.

The author's graphic pen-pictures of the places visited—receptions, banquets, dinners and invited guests—will prove of intense interest to every reader. The addresses of welcome and Gen. Grant's replies are given in full; and these in themselves are worth more than the price of the book. We earnestly advise every one to buy this book and read it. It is nicely bound in cloth, printed on heavy paper, and illustrated with twenty fine engravings, printed from stone, and contains about 400 octavo pages. Price $1.50. The publishers are EVANS & Co., 9 Murray street, New York. Book sent postpaid upon receipt of price.

Rod and Gun.

—Deer are reported very plentiful in Bradford county. Two nimrods lately killed nine.

—Bears appear to be plenty in Clearfield county. A few have been seen in the eastern portion of Indiana county.

—A Mifflin county hunter fired at and brought down a wild turkey, and on proceeding to the spot saw another one lying dead, and a few feet beyond a third, having killed all three. His gun was loaded with buckshot.

—Joseph Zengerle, of Germania, Pa., tried one barrel of a double-barrelled gun, and without testing the other barrel gave the gun to a little boy to play with. The boy pointed it at Zengerle, snapped the trigger of the empty barrel, then the other one. The charge of fine shot lodged in the victim's abdomen, and in two hours Mr. Zengerle was a dead man. This death was due to a violation of a gunning rule which is imperative and absolute, namely, "Never under any circumstances, whatever, point a gun at a human being."

BOILS, pimples on face, salt rheum, old sores, and all cutaneous eruptions disappear like magic when "Lindsey's Blood Searcher" is used.

All About Home.

"THE COMPLETE HOME." Mrs. Julia McNair Wright's new book, just published by J. C. MCCURDY & Co., of Philadelphia, has received the warmest commendations from the Press and Clergy in all sections of the country.

The following extracts clearly indicate that it is a work of sterling merit.

The Christian Advocate says:—A book of more practical utility will seldom, if ever, be found outside of inspiration.

The Presbyterian says:—The prevailing feature of the book is its good sense, and when we say this of such a book we pay it the highest compliment we can imagine. It is true everywhere to the Evangelical faith.

The Journal and Messenger, Cincinnati, O., says:—We believe that it would be of unspeakable benefit to every family in our land could it be read not only by fathers and mothers, but by sons and daughters as they are growing up. Its healthy tone, its common sense and truthfulness commend it, and can but render it of the highest value.

The New York School Journal says:—In this work we have all the lights and shadows that go to make up the picture of a real home. It imparts instruction in the whole range of domestic government in the most pleasing and effective manner.

The Mo. Republican says:—This is essentially a home book. It must have been dictated by a heart that has been baptized in the beauty of the holiness of home. * * * *
The sentiment of the book is lofty while the style is natural, cheerful, easy and fluent, and the pages are so many bright pictures of domestic quiet and comfort.

Rev. Dr. March says:—It is so well written that it cannot fail to be read, and it cannot be read without bringing sweetness and light into somebody's home.

From the above, it will be seen that this is a sensible, beautiful, and extremely valuable book. Its sphere is wide as the world itself and it will exert a powerful influence for good in every home into which it enters.

Agents for its sale are wanted everywhere.
