A LUMP of COAL -For years no one aupposed that a piece of soft coal, dug from its mine or bed in the earth, possessed any other quality than being combustible, or was valuable for any purpose than as fuel. It was next found that it would afford a gas which is also combustible. A chemical analysis proved it to be made of hydrogen. In process of time, mechanical and chemical ingenuity devised a mode of manufacturing this gas, and applying it to the lighting of buildings, and cities on a large scale. In doing this, other pro-ducts of distillation were developed, gredients or materials are extracted from it:

I. An excellent oil to supply light houses, equal to the best sperm oil, at lower cost.

2. Benzole—a light sort of etherial fluid, which evaporates easily, and, combined with vapor or moist air, is used for the purpose of portable gas-lamps, so called.

3. Naphtha—a beavy fluid, useful to dissolve gutta-percha, india-rubber, 4. An oil excellent for lubricating purposes.

5. Asphaltum, which is a black, solid substance, used in making varnish-

6. Paraffine, a white crystalline sub stance, resembling white wax, which can be made into beautiful wax candles; it melts at a temperature of 110 degrees, and affords an excellent light.

All these substances are now made

THE SUN FOR 1881,

Everybody reads THE SUN. In the editions Everybody reads THE SUN. In the editions of this newspaper throughout the year to come everybody will find:

1. All the world's news, so presented that the reader will get the greatest amount of information with the least unprofitable expenditure of time and eyesight. The SUN long ago d'scovered the golden mean between redundant fulness and unsatisfactory brevity.

11. Much of that fort of news which depends less upon its recognized importance than upon fulness and unsati-factory brevity.

II. Much of that tort of news which depends less upon its recognized importance than upon its interest to mankind. From morning the Sup prints a continued story of the lives of real men and women, and of their deeds, plans, loves, hates and troubles. This story is more varied and more interesting than any romance that was ever devised.

III. Goed writing in every column, and freshness, originality, accuracy, and decorum in the treatment of every subject.

IV. Honest commen: The Sun's habit is to speek out learlersly about men and things.

V. Equal cander in dealing with each political party, and equal readiness to commend what is paiseworthy or to rebuke what is blamable in Democratic principles. The Sun believes that the Government which the Constitution gives us is a good one to keep. Its notion of duty is to resist to its atmost power the cilotts of men of government in place of that which exists.
