—The President has nominated Hon. Hiram Price, of Iowa, to be Commissioner of Indian Affairs, to succeed Commissioner Trowbridge. This is the position tendered to and declined by Hon. Thomas M. Nichol. The office is one demanding peculiar qualities for its successful administration—qualities that Mr. Price is said to possess in an eminent degree.

Bogus Certificates.
It is no vile drugged stuff, pretending to be made of wonderful foreign roots, barks, etc., and pulled up by long bogus certificates of pretended miraculous cures, but a simple, effective medicine, made of well known valuable remedies that furnishes its own certificates by its cures. We refer to Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines. See another column.—Republican.

—At this distance one gets but a faint idea of the trouble caused the railroads of the Northwest by the snows of the past winter. A gentleman who has just returned from a trip to that section of the country says that on portions of the Chicago & North-Western Company's lines not a wheel has been turned since the 15th of last November.

—Another attempt is about to be made to introduce the English sky-lark to our fields and skies. Last summer Mr. Isaac W. England imported two hundred birds, a considerable number of which have survived the winter and are now in excellent condition. They will soon be set free, probably in the neighborhood of Ridgewood, New Jersey.

Eight hundred dollars was taken from Mr. Passavant's, and three hundred from Mr. Summer's. The burglars are supposed to have come from the city. The safes were both blown open, and although in one of the stores a stove sitting near the safe was knocked over and shattered, persons who slept in an adjoining building, not twenty feet away, heard no noise.

—One of the quickest passages recorded between England and the United States has just been accomplished by the White Star Liner Britannic. This steamer, which is one of the finest vessels on the Atlantic service, sailed from Queenstown on Friday at 5:30 P. M., and arrived at New York on the following Friday morning at 2:30 A. M., having completed the passage in six days and ten hours.

—One of the largest passenger locomotives built in this country has lately been completed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, at Altoona. —Mr. C. M. Sloan, Limestone township, Indiana county has lost this winter all his hives of bees except one, the bees having died. The strongest part of it is that the bees are full of wax and brood. Their death was not occasioned by starvation, but possibly from the severe weather. Mr. Sloan has been keeping bees for twenty-five years past, and this is the first time he has lost any. He reports that a number of his neighbors have lost their bees in the same way.

—Progress has been reported in the work of constructing a railway tunnel under the Straits of Dover between England and France. The operations have so far been conducted with satisfactory results, and the managers of the scheme are hopeful of final success, although it is altogether too early to speak with any confidence, as the point where the real difficulties of the undertaking may be looked for have not yet been reached.

—The increasing tide of immigration to the U. S. is attracting the attention of European Governments. Seeing that Germany and other Continental States are pouring westward a larger contingent than Great Britain, English economists no longer account for the partially shown to America by the subjects of Queen Victoria by putting it upon the ground of community of language, laws and blood. These things exercise an influence, but they should determine the course of immigration quite as strongly toward English colonies as toward the United States. The fact is that 75 per cent of last year's emigration from Great Britain was to this country.

It is therefore the fashion now to ascribe the tendency of immigration to our shores to the condition of the American labor market. Possibly in the course of years, it may be drawn upon the minds of our brethren across the water that our free institutions and our cheap lands have something to do in attracting immigration. It comes favorable or unfavorable.

—No Justice of the Peace can marry individuals under 21 years of age, unless a certificate of consent from parents is first produced. Originally the penalty was imposed on him whether he knew the age of the parties or not. He was bound to ascertain it at his peril; but a case of great hardship in 1871 caused an amendment to the law, and he is not now liable for the penalty unless he knowingly or willfully disregards the law, or unless he knows or has reason to believe that the parties are under age.

—The cost to England of the Afghan war, when it was commenced, was estimated at $6,000,000. But now that the bills are pretty much rendered they foot up the astonishing aggregate of $100,000,000. Statesmen as a general thing appear to have little more knowledge of the cost of warlike undertakings than milliners are supposed to have of shipbuilding. There is no more amazing feature of our own civil war than the ridiculous estimates of the cost of it which were made at the outset by the most influential persons in charge of affairs.

—Innovators are regarded with special suspicion and aversion by the English people. The rejection of a motion in the Commons to adopt the decimal system of coinage, weights and measures is an illustration. Probably no one in England to-day doubts the practical advantages both of the decimal system itself, and of having a universal system. But it is the necessary change involved that is the difficulty. A large majority the Commons voted to go on with the old pounds, shillings and pence and all the rest of it.

—According to Gladstone's budget announcement in the English House of Commons lately, the receipts and expenses of the British government amount to about four hundred millions of dollars annually and it seems strange to us that a nation having interest to pay on a debt larger than that of the United States, and which has a large pension list, a large army and a navy almost equal to that of all other nations of the Earth combined, can keep its expenses down to a figure but little more than a third larger than what it costs to run the United States government.

—Messrs. ELY BROS., DRUGGISTS, Oswego, N. Y.—For the past three winters I have been afflicted with catarrh and cold in the head. I applied several remedies without good results. Last winter I used your Cream Balm, and found it to accomplish all you represented. T. F. McCormick (Judge Common Pleas). Elizabeth, N. J. Aug. 22, 1880.—See advt.

—Since the introduction of Ely's Cream Balm my sales of it have daily increased, and are unprecedented. I confidently recommend it to all suffering from catarrh or kindred diseases who call upon me, with that pleasure and confidence that a personal knowledge of its curative powers afford. G. H. Kirwan, Druggist, Wilkesbarre, Pa.

—The number of persons killed or wounded in the earthquake at Scio is still estimated at the enormous figure of 5,000.—Four hundred persons as the best historians believe to have perished in the massacre of St. Bartholomew throughout France. The Greek Government is making some efforts to relieve the distress, but they are inevitably ineffectual. Ohio or Scio is the ancient Chios, one of the numerous cities that claimed to be the birthplace of Homer. The island belongs to Turkey, and lies on the west coast of Asia Minor. It is 32 miles long, 18 wide, and has an area of 400 square miles. The inhabitants are mostly Turks, and number about 50,000. Ohio the chief city, is on the east coast. It has a fine harbor defended by a castle, and manufactures silk, velvet, and cotton. The population of the city is about 15,000.

—The authorities of Lehigh County, this state, have only themselves to blame if the almshouse under their charge suddenly becomes the Mecca of tramps, and long lines of court-poorers are seen averaging upon that institution from all points of the compass. The announcement is made to the country that about nine weeks ago a miner in that county fell into a sleep from which no one has since been able to rouse him. He has removed to the almshouse afore said, where he has continued to sleep for over two months, it being sustained by soft coal, eggs, beef and other cast-off going waste, which are placed by his wretched wife's hands. If the tramp's ideal of paradise could be realized on this earth, it would be in a place where he could sleep without even having to wake up to eat and without having even the trouble of feeding himself. The prospects of Lehigh County as a resort for tramps are bright in the extreme.

—The bill introduced in the Legislature by Mr. Mapes of Venango, is a well intentioned measure. Its object is to prevent railroad companies and other carriers from discriminating between their customers by charging different prices for the same service rendered at the same time. The intent of the bill is to enforce an equality of rates, and if State legislation could accomplish this desirable object, there would be little objection to it in any quarter. But unfortunately, State lines and railroads are by no means continuous or coincident. Regulations adopted in Pennsylvania cannot be enforced outside of Pennsylvania, and serious injury may be inflicted upon trunk lines and upon Pennsylvania shippers by rules and regulations which put them at a disadvantage in the fierce competition for long-distance freight. The crippling regulations imposed by Pennsylvania upon the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in regard to contracts for the carriage of through freight, and the tax collected upon its tonnage, in former years led to most unfortunate results. The legitimate through business of the company was forced out of its hands into the hands of fast freight railroads. The freight line monopolized through freight, and the railroad company merely furnished the track over which it was carried and the motive power. The system was without advantage to the public, while it was disastrous to the stockholders of the railroad. Unchecked legislation at this time may lead to equally unfortunate results. If Mr. Mapes and other friends of anti-discrimination could mould their legislation into such shape as to protect local business without detriment to the larger interests of the State which are indissolubly bound up with the railroad system of transportation, well and good. But care must be taken in remedying one set of grievances not to create other and worse grievances. It is an excellent time to go slow.—Philadelphia Record.

—In view of the place-hunting delegations that have made daily pilgrimages to the White House, it must have been a refreshing relief to President Garfield to receive the colored delegation of fifty from Louisiana. They made neither demand for office nor race recognition. They said nothing about the rights of colored citizens. What they came to present was a hand-comely engrossed address, in which it was set forth that the colored people in Louisiana pay taxes on $25,000,000 of property, by their labor raise seven-eighths of the sugar and rice crops, and five-eighths of the cotton crop; and that they ask nothing but the enforcement of existing laws securing to them the advantages of the public schools and a free and fair vote. To this sensible presentment the President replied much as he did to the colored delegates who visited him at Mentor, standing by his well-known views in their interest, and urging upon them the importance of education, and of personal ownership of the soil on which they live and labor. But how strangely he must have felt, in dismissing so unique a delegation.

—It will no doubt surprise the great majority of our people to learn that such a thing as the virtual sale of men and women exists in the land to-day. It was supposed that the abolition of slavery and the reform of the poor-laws had done away forever with that species of inhumanity. But it appears that the supposition was wrong. A story comes from West Virginia that is really scandalous and shocking. If true, as there seems no reason to doubt, public sentiment has a plain duty in the matter. The story is simply this: That in Hancock County, W. Va., within one hundred miles of Pittsburgh, it is the custom in March of each year to collect the county papers in front of the Court House and knock them off at auction to the lowest bidder—that is, to the man who will agree to keep them during the year for the least money. It is said, as if there was no depth to the shamelessness of the thing, that the competition is generally lively, and often a father, brother or sister of the pauper will contend with the professional "sharps" as the bidders in general are expressly called, for the possession of his body and the State compensation for keeping life in it.

A sign success.
My wife had been ailing a long time with dyspepsia, nervousness and in bed two years with a complication of disorders her physicians could not cure, when I was led by reading a circular letter at my door to try Parker's Kidney Tonic. Having been so often deceived by worthless mixtures not being but my wife's dangerous condition could have led us to make any more experiments. It was a big success. Three bottles cured her, at a cost of a dollar and fifty cents, and she is now as strong as any woman, and regularly does her household duties.—R. D. Buffalo. See other column.

—When Dumas told in his famous novel how the imprisoned Count of Monte Cristo changed places with a dead man so as to be tied in a bag and cast into the sea, the chronicler probably considered that he was perhaps stretching the truth just a little. But a native American, of African descent, has just been casting Monte Cristo's performance entirely in the shade. He, like the Count, was a prisoner, a romantic case suspected but not specified, and had a companion in misfortune who died. The dead man was placed in a coffin, from which he was taken by one of the prisoners and placed in the bed of the latter, who then made himself at home in the coffin. In the course of time the lid was nailed down, but there were knotholes enough to admit air; a man put the box into the wagon and jogged off alone toward the Potter's Field, when suddenly, like Aaron Burr at his own funeral, as explained by Mark Twain, the corpse got out of his coffin and chatted with the driver. What he said is not reported, for the driver was too much amazed to be able to remember a word of it. He, however, conducted his own funeral, which he did so successfully that he, the horse and the wagon have since been sought in vain. After this let no foreign romance pride himself on improbable stories, for America can beat him with a stubborn kick.

Consumption Cured.
An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands, by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable preparation, for the speedy cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, he has decided to put it to the test of his suffering fellow-men. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will furnish the formula of this simple, yet powerful medicine, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail, enclosing stamp, naming this paper, W. W. Shearer, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

—According to recent report to the Sanitary Committee of Massachusetts, it appears that of 2,901 pigs examined during five months no less than 154, or nearly 5 per cent, contained trichina. The animals came from different and distant regions, but the majority were from the Western States. The same report affirms that rats are affected with trichinosis at Boston to a much larger extent than in Germany. Of fifty-one rats caught in a Boston slaughter house thirty presented trichina. On the other hand, twenty-eight fowls fed in the establishment were found to be healthy. Forty rats taken in another large slaughter house all contained trichina, but of sixty found in different stables only six were thus affected.

In France little consideration has, until lately, been given to the danger of trichina in imported pork. At Lyons, however, inspection has been commenced, and has quickly borne fruit. An enormous consignment of lard, amounting, it is said, to 120 tons, was lately received at Lyons from New York. Of fifty specimens examined immediately after arrival three were found to be infested with trichina. At Bordeaux six cases of trichina have been found in three months.

from trichinosis have occurred in three months.
