When General Belknap was allowed COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT CONVENTION. When General Belknap was allowed to resign as Secretary of War the country was justly indignant because he was not impeached instead. The offiense of selling post traderships, of which he was accused, was by no means of so enormous a character as the alleged outrageous frauds and robberies connected with the Star Route business. Nor were the facts developed in the expos-ure of the doings of the Whisky Ring, by which the internal revenue was de frauded of large sums, a particle worse, if indeed they were as bad. The raising of ninety-three contracts from a few thousand to several millions of dollars was not only a big steal but a direct one. It is silly to say there was no fire where there was so much smoke. The Administration owes it to itself and to the law to investigate the whole matter thoroughly, without regard to cost or consequences. If high officers of the Government are found corruptly implicated in it the virtue of impeachment, as provided by the constitution, should be brought to bear upon them. It was decided by the United States Senate sitting as a Court of Impeachment in 1799, by a vote of 14 to 11, that a Senator is not a civil officer of the United States within the provision of the fourth section of the second article of the Constitution.
