Most of the insects that attack the most of the "secus that at ack the grapevine (says a correspondent of The County Gentlemen) can be best removed by hand-picking. If mildew comes, which may be known by its light patches on the under side of the leaves, it should be checked by dusting with flour of sulphor. This can be best done with a bellows, and should be used on a still, dewy morning.

The London Agricultural Gazetic of June 27th says with regard to the grain crops of United Kingdom that as to the wheat crop opinions are very various, but the impression of the reports is, on the whole, favorable, and there is a prospect of a fair yield. Barley is generally looking better than cats, which have suffered from the wire-worm, and are in many places

Agust and November are the best months for setting out potted strawberry plants, as they will, if set in good soil p oper make several lanners, and give a large yield of berries the following season.
