THE following is one of the articles we alluded to recently in a paper published in this place and professing to be Republican. We have been requested to publish it, and do so without any remarks of our own, further than to say that the sentiment it contains is as repugnant to truth, in some respects, as it is to the Republican feeling in this county. Conkling had no such "standing as one of the greatest legal lights of the Senate." Whatever other "standing" he had it was not in the "legal" line. His position on the Senate committees show that. And, "that he would shed lustre on any position he may be called to fill," the people o the United States know better than that. His recent course and the action of the Republicans of New York, his own State, show what his own people now think of him. The idea of asking President Garfield, if he lives, to appoint a man to one of the very highest places in the Government, who had been personally abusing him up to the day that Guiteau fired his shot, is something revolting to the feelings of all, and a paper printed in Butler has the exclusive honor of making the suggestion. Here is what the Eagle, of Aug.

3d. inst., says:

"ANOTHER JUDGE WANTED. "The death of Judge Clifford neces

THE SITUATION ON SUNDAY-THE PRES-IDENT'S IMPROVED CONDITION MAINTAINED AND HOPE RE-

VIVED. WASHINGTON, August 28.-The faint hope raised last evening by the reported improvement in the President's condition was hardly expressed by the few who shared it for fear that a change for the worse would occur during the night, so the unexpected announcement made by the physiceans this morning that the President had held his own during the night, and the favorable developments of the night, as related in the morning bulletin, caused a still more hopeful teeling to prevail at the Executive Mansion this morning. Doctor Bliss and General Swaim both of whom were at the President's bedside during the most of the night, feel much encouraged at his condition this morning. Dr. Bliss thinks the favorable symptoms of yesterday and the improved condition of throughout the night.

A Thrilling Scene.

LANCASTER, PA., Aug. 24 .- A thrilling spectacle that might have proved a terrible accident occurred at the Cad-well House, a large three story hotel, directly opposite the Pennsylvania railroad depot, in this city, about noon vesterday. The hotel is being painted, vesterday. and George Kreider, a workman, was upon the roof arranging the large iron hooks that support the swinging-ladders, upon which the painters work, when a loose brick, lying near the edge of the roof and in danger of falling upon the pavement below, attracted his otice. Kreider reached quickly forward to seize the brick and pre from falling, and the act caused him to lose his balance. Spectators upon the sidewalk were horrified to see the man plunge over the side of the roof. The hooks upon which the ladders are hung were adjusted, and as he fell Kreider, with great presence of mind, grasped surance not known. one of them. For a momend he suspended in this perilous position, when by a muscular effort he succeeded in drawing himself back and clambered on the roof without injury.
