—Our exports of flour are steadily increasing, giving to our own people the employment and wages involved in converting our breadstuffs surplus into the manufactured commodity, and thus disposing of the excess of production to foreign nations in the most profitable form. From a total export of 1,300,106 barrels during the year ending in 1867 the aggregate increased to 5,629,714 in 1879, 6,011,419 in 1880 and 7,946,786 in 1881. The Chicago Heruth, in presenting these figures, remarked: "It was not until 1861 that England began to take from us, with any regularity, large quantities of our breadstuffs. Rev. Turner, the popular pastor of the church here, was returned to Brownsdale for his second year; Rev. T. J. Shaffer was appointed to the Harmony church, vice Rev. The northern half of the county belongs to the Eric Conference, which met at Meadville a few days ago, and the only change made that we have heard of being Rev. Lusher in place of Rev. International Review. NOVEMBER, 1881. The International Review for November has a table of contents of six articles of solid and enduring merit. The second part of M. August Langelys "Vistor Hugo" completes one of the best critical estimates of that great French man of letters that has recently appeared. Rev. Dr. William E. Boggs concludes his review of Mr. Edward Atkinson's "Solid South." A very acurate idea of the different views of candid and moderate men of both sections can be obtained from these three sticles. J. Brander Matthews is peculiarly at home in a critical article upon "The Plays of M. Octave Feuillet," and it is worth the while of all who believe in the total depravity of all French literature to read this article and endeavor thereby to entertain more just opinions of our vivacious neighbors over the water. The discussion by so high an authority as Dr. Wm. A. Hammond of the question of "The Punishability of the Insane" will be sure to attract attention from the medical profession and laymen alike. Dr. Hammond has made the subject of insanity a special study, and possesses the rare literary faculty of popularizing his research, and making his essays so free from strictly professional terms, and so entertaining withal that they easily take first The International Review for November has larizing his research, and making his essays so free from strictly professional terms, and so entertaining withal that they easily take first rank among magazine articles. "Our Exports of Bread Shiffs," by Richard M. Edmonds is specially timely in view of the discussion of the traig now going on in England and the United States. Mr. James Grant Wilson brings the number worthily to a close with a long and delightful historfe-memorial article upon that old-time "Acadian Governor," Samuel Veitch. The number as a whole has a more distinctively literary flavor than some of 'its predecessors, but is by no means the loser thereby.

History of Butler County. Messrs. Waterman, Watkins & Co. are now talking of publishing a history of Butler pounty, and will, if our citizens desire it, and give them sufficient encouragement. They have had much experience in this particular business, and if they undertake it will make no half-way work, but thoroughly and systematically compile and publish an elegant history. We have a very interesting history and unless published soon it will be next to impossible to obtain many, or in fact hardly any, facts concerning the early settlement of the county, for the pioneers are fast passing away. Let us all do everything in our power to encourage the work.

Hilliard's Mill. A prominent citizen of Washington township, in the northern part of which is Hilliard's Mill, writes us, under date of 17th inst., of the rapid growth and business now being done at that point. "Hilliards," as it is generally called, is the terminus of the Shenango and Allegheny Railroad, from which fact it has sprung up into quite a business place. Good coal being found there, and in that vicinity, in great abundance, has made Hilliards a central point in the mining and shipthis language in section four of the Fourteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United State: 'Neither the United States nor any State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebelling against the United States, or claim for the loss of cmancipation of any slave, but all such debts obligations and claims shall be held illegal and vold. The Congress shall have power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

Esquire Philip Hilliard holds forth there—has a store and, besides doing his share of business, is useful to the citizens of the place in many other respects. John L. Beatty has an extensive lumber yard and deals in all kinds of lumber. Others we might mention are carrying on a legitimate and prosperous business. But there are some who are not carrying on a legitimate or lawful business. What is called or lawful business. What is called "hard cider," and "rock and rye," is being sold by two or three persons in the place, and the result is that young men and boys are frequently found intoxicated. The manner in which this unlawful and injurious business is done, is, in part, through bogus pre-scriptions, alleged by the boys to have been got from the miners there and from the physicians. Some of the leading citizens have made up their minds to have a stop jut to this, and if the persons engaged in it soon find themselves in Court at Butler they must blame themselves, as they now have notice that they are known and that such proceedings so hurtful to the youth and damaging to the place, must

Bitters Without Obtaining a Retail Liquor License? NEW CASTLE, PA., October 7 -- A somewhat novel suit has been brought before Alderman Bowman, of this city, being no less than Mrs. Mary Ann Hague, of Neshannock township, charging Wm. Wood, of the same twp. with selling intoxicating liquor without license. The prosecutirx alledges that Woods frequently sold Hostetter's Bitters to her husband, from the effects of which he became intoxicated, and went home and abused his family. Recently, it is alleged, Hague went to Woods' store, purchased and drank a quantity of the bitters, became crazy drunk and threw Woods and the contents of his establishment out in the road, after which he disappeared and has not since been seen. Eminent counsel had been engaged on both sides, and the question of whether a man who sells Hostetter's Bitters without a license is violating the liquor laws will be decided. A hearing takes

A novel procedure in Pennsylvania jurisprudence and one that will doubt party. Thus it is evident from this among members of the legal fraternity arrogance and persistent stubborness is involved in an elaborate opinion filed on Monday by Judge Handley, of this were indirectly responsible for the shock. less excite considerable discussion city, in which he maintains that women are eligible to act as mambers of Boards of Arbitrators. In a case arbitrated here a few months ago lady was appointed a member of the Board, and for this reason Mr. Warren J. Woodward, counsel for the party against whom the case was decided took exception to the award on the ground that under the law of 1836 al and religious proclivities therefore. women could not act as arbitrators. The opinion of Judge Handley meets this objection by citing the act of William the Second of England, from whish the law of 1836 is copied, and under which women were originally permitted to exercise the office. The statute is silent as to sex, its precise language being 'person or persons,' which the Judge holds may mean men or women. In support of the position which he has taken he goes into English history at considerable length to show that as far back as three centuries ago women did not find it incompatible with the delicacy of their sex to act as sheriff, and that in one notable instance a learned lady was 'Chan-cellor.' While there would seem to be nothing so very startling in the fact that a lady acts upon a Board of Arbi-trators, when we find the fair sex prac-ticing in the United States Supreme Court, yet the innovation has in it a certain element of novelty, which it derives from the fact that this is the first instance in which the question was raised to Pennsylvania, and possibly the first time that a lady has acted in such a- capacity in this State .-Scranton Republican.
