

BUTLER CITIZEN.

JOHN M. & W. C. NEGLY, PROPRIETORS. Entered at the Postoffice at Butler as second-class matter.

Rev. Dr. WHITEHEAD has signified his acceptance of his election as Bishop of the Pittsburgh Diocese of the Episcopal church, of which the Episcopal church of this place is a part.

BRING a pleasant day for election yesterday, somewhat breaks the force of the argument against the change from "the second Tuesday in October," to "the first Tuesday following the first Monday in November."

ELECTIONS were held yesterday in Pennsylvania, New York, Virginia, Massachusetts, Colorado, Mississippi, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Maryland, New Jersey and Minnesota. Legislatures were chosen in four of the above Commonwealths and in five of them a full board of State officers. New York elected four Congressmen to fill vacant seats. Constitutional amendments were voted for in Nebraska, Wisconsin, Maryland and Minnesota.

THE old homestead of the late Hon. Joseph Cummins, near Murfreesville, this county, was the scene of a mirth and festivity on October 28th ult. The occasion was a reunion of his family and relatives, the first one since his death, in 1870, we believe. Some fifty friends were present. Mrs. Cummins, his widow, was the recipient of many handsome and useful presents. Mr. Cummins represented this county in the Legislature about 1842-3, and was afterwards elected an Associate Judge of the county for five years.

IN regard to the Cabinet re-act now the theme of general comment at Washington as elsewhere, Mr. Randall, the intelligent correspondent of the Philadelphia Times, (who is a Republican,) writes: "Secretary Blaine has been urged to remain for the present to tide the President over the November elections with as little shock as possible to the friends of Garfield."

IT will be a delicate position for Mr. Blaine to be placed in. He knows that he is not wanted and that he cannot stay, but he must avoid any unbecoming haste in retiring in the face of the President's request to remain."

MEMBER of Congress, Col. Bayne, of Pittsburgh, places Senator Don Cameron in rather a bad light relative to a recent change made in Postmasters at McKeesport, Allegheny county. In a letter to the Pittsburgh Dispatch, of the 4th inst., Col. Bayne charges the Senator with deception and falsehood, in representing to the Post-Master General that there was no opposition to a change in the office at McKeesport, while in truth and in fact a majority of the citizens of McKeesport, and Col. Bayne, their member of Congress, were opposed to the change. The member of Congress, in such local matters, is always consulted, as the proper party to advise the Department, but in this case it seems that Senator Cameron misled the appointing power by taking advantage of the absence of the member, Col. Bayne, and having the appointment made without his knowledge or consent. The affair has created a great deal of indignation among the Republicans of Allegheny county.

RAILROAD ITEMS. Work is progressing rapidly on the extension from here to Evansburg. Some hundred men, wagons, carts, etc. are now on the cuts and fills west of town. They look like an "army with banners" as they are coming this way through the Negley meadow. The route of this road, when all links are completed to Bradford, will be 140 miles nearer to Pittsburgh from that place than now. It will be 14 miles shorter from Butler to Pittsburgh than by the present route by Freeport, thus saving near an hour's time in travel from here to Pittsburgh. It will give us also a more direct western outlet, by way of New Castle, and without having to go to Pittsburgh. The object is a new line from east to west, under what is known as the "Wabash System" of railroading, in which every company pools its interest and shares in profits. This company was taken into the general company at a million six hundred thousand dollars, but have to make and complete all links between Pittsburgh and Parker.

DEATH OF MAJOR ADAMS. Major William C. Adams died at his residence in Fairview, this county, on last Thursday, the 3d inst., at the age of about 60 years. His remains were brought to this place and interred here on Sunday last. When a young man he was married here to Miss Anna Lena David, youngest daughter of the late Mr. Oliver David. She has been deceased for quite a number of years and the remains of her husband were brought here to be laid along side those of her. In the fall of 1841 the writer of this, in company with Major Adams, Thomas S. Leason, Charles M. Gilkey and Walter S. Welsh, left this place for Washington, Pa., to attend the college there. After leaving there Major Adams entered into to active business, for the most of the time in Fairview, where he died. Mr. Leason, who then went by the name of Sharpe Leason, studied for the Ministry and we believe is now, and has been for some years past, located in Jefferson county, this State. Walter S. Welsh studied medicine and removed from here to Franklin, Pa., where he has been in successful practice to this time. Mr. Gilkey went west

ELECTION.

BUTLER COUNTY.

The election in Butler borough passed off quietly. There were only 569 votes polled at the Court House.

BUTLER BOROUGH. State Treasurer—1st ward: Noble, D. 108; 2nd ward: Wolfe, W. 119; 3rd ward: Wolfe, W. 119; 4th ward: Wolfe, W. 119; 5th ward: Wolfe, W. 119; 6th ward: Wolfe, W. 119; 7th ward: Wolfe, W. 119; 8th ward: Wolfe, W. 119; 9th ward: Wolfe, W. 119; 10th ward: Wolfe, W. 119.

DEATH OF DAVID DOUGAL. David Dougal, Esq., died yesterday, November 8th, 1881, at about 10 o'clock, a. m., in his 103rd year of age. He died at the house of the German people, named Protzman, in Summit township, with whom he had been living for some four years past. The farm they lived on was owned by Mr. Dougal and it is said he has given it to them for the care they took of him in his last years.

We have before us two photographic likenesses of Mr. Dougal, taken in August 1873. One of them was presented to us by the Hon. Wilson McCandless, of Pittsburgh, an intimate friend of Mr. Dougal and who was present in this place when the likenesses were taken. On the back of this picture we then wrote as follows: "Butler, Aug. 26th, 1873. Mr. Dougal informs us he would be 95 years of age on the 23d of September next, being born on the 23d day of September 1778." According to this Mr. Dougal was 103 years of age last September, being since then in his 104th year. We refer to the above memorandum from the fact, that subsequent to the above time Mr. Dougal is said to have informed some friends that he was ninety-one year in his age, and that his correct age now, September last, was 102, making him now in his 103rd year. On this we might add that L. Z. Mitchell, Esq., his law adviser, and perhaps his most intimate friend, informs us that Mr. Dougal, so late as last September, told him he was then but 102 years of age, and he desired Mr. Mitchell to so recollect. From Mr. Mitchell we also learn the following directions Mr. Dougal gave as to his funeral. He desired no persons present at the same except Mr. Mitchell, the family he lived with, and four neighboring farmers as pall-bearers. His coffin was to be a very plain, or rough one, and made by the sons of his old friend, the late George Miller, of this place. He desired to be buried in the clothing he died in, and that there should be no show of ceremony of any kind, whatever, at his funeral, but to be as quiet as possible. The place he had selected for some years past to be laid on his above farm, under a certain apple tree, at the head of an orchard. This arrangement, however, was recently changed, as Mr. Mitchell informs us, and through him a lot or burial place was purchased in the German Lutheran Church grave yard, of Summit township, where Mr. Dougal we suppose now rests, or will in a short time. This change in the spot he was to lay was made by Mr. Dougal from a worthy consideration for the people he had given his farm to, and in order that his remains upon it might not interfere with its value or use to them. He directed that he be laid in a north and south position. This position is supposed to have been chosen by Mr. Dougal from the Indian custom of so burying. In his early days, when quite a young man, he lived with the Indians for a while, somewhere in what is now the State of Ohio, and one came attached to their customs, one of which is to bury their dead as above stated. He often referred to his life with the Indians.

Mr. Dougal was one of the pioneers of this county, coming to this place about the year 1800. Being a surveyor, by profession, he done nearly all of the early surveying of lines and lands in the county, and had a remarkable memory as to the same. At one time he was a large land owner. He was present at the laying out and first sale of lots in the town of Butler, and his name is to be seen on many of the early sales or transfers of lots in the town. At one time he was clerk of the Commissioners of the county and afterwards one of the Commissioners. Although peculiar in his habits he was always a useful man to his fellow citizens. He was a very learned man in almost every branch of science—had read almost everything and could converse, with much interest, on almost all subjects. With even the fine arts, as music, he was conversant. His habits, as we have said, were peculiar, paying but little attention to dress and living all his life in the most humble and frugal manner. Of large frame, and a natural dignity, and most sterling honesty, and good common sense, he always commanded the respect of all, and all sought for and enjoyed his company, chiefly to be entertained by his wonderful learning and fine conversational powers.

We could write much more of David Dougal, but we have neither the time or the space to do so now. We have run off these few lines in haste, and may hereafter add something more to the memory of perhaps the most remarkable man in the history of our county. His death, so long looked for, has come at last. He came to his end by as natural degrees as a child grows up into its first years, and finally breathed his last without a perceptible struggle. He will long be remembered by all who ever knew him.

BOLD BURGLARS.

CAPT. DAWSON, CO. TREASURER, OF BEAVER COUNTY, KNOCKED SENSELESS, AND THE TREASURY ROBBERED OF BETWEEN $13,000 AND $15,000.

BEAVER, PA., November 3.

On last Friday morning our citizens were shocked and startled by the report that Capt. Dawson, our County Treasurer, had been assaulted in his office, knocked senseless, and the vault robbed of a large amount of money. Hastening to the Court House, we found the report too true. Capt. Dawson was sitting in the office, with his head bound up, surrounded by an eager, excited crowd of anxious onlookers, some of whom were endeavoring to do something for the assault and robbery, which for boldness and daring has not a parallel in the history of the county. Below we give Capt. Dawson's history of the affair, as related by him to a reporter of the Pittsburgh Leader:

"I left home at about a quarter after six, and arrived at the office probably five minutes later. After unlocking the door of the front office, I went to the cellar to get some wood with which to kindle a fire. After getting the wood and fixing up a fire in the front office, I unlocked the door of the little back room, where the vault is located, intending to open the vault and take out the cash box, in order to leave enough money in the safe in the front office to do the business of the day. The room next to the vault was quite dark, and I opened one of the window shutters just enough to let in sufficient light so that the combination on the door of the vault could be seen, and was in the act of reaching for the cash box when the door burst open, and a man came in, started, and turning quickly I caught a glimpse of two men, one of whom rushed forward and struck me on the head, I fell with my back against the inner door of the vault, which swings back against the side of the vault when opened, and slid to the floor. I was in a dazed condition, and can only remember that I saw enough money in the safe in the front office to do the business of the day, and a lot of $500 packages of currency, while the other attended to me. He must have struck me twice, as there are two bruises on my head. Dr. Serogus thinks one was made by falling against something, but I don't think it was, because I did not fall flat to the floor, but against the inner door. I did not hear the men approach, nor did I hear the slightest sound while they were entering the vault. When I came to my senses the men were gone, and I ran out on the street and called for help. Winfield McCoy and a number of others were standing in front of the National Hotel opposite, and they came over at once. This was about ten minutes before seven o'clock, so that making allowance for the time it took me to go to the cellar and back again to the vault, when I came out, I must have lain at least ten minutes on the floor of the vault after the robbers left. They got from $13,000 to $15,000, all in currency. As soon as I came to I called for help, but I supposed that in my weak condition I did not halloo very loud, and so nobody heard me. I then went out in the street and repeated the cry."

"I have not been in the office much during the day, but left it in charge of my deputy. For several days I have been going into the office early in the morning, unlocking the vault and getting out sufficient money to leave in the small safe in the outer office, so that the vault need not be opened while I am away."

"I believe the robbers got in during the night and were concealed somewhere waiting for me. As to how they got into the building I have no idea. They talk about my having gone to the office so early. It was my habit to go early. The time lock on the vault was usually set for half-past six o'clock. Sometimes, in order to accommodate the farmers, I get up very early in the morning, and again a very early hour in the morning. When I received money after office hours I usually deposited it overnight in the small safe in the outside office. The story that I intended taking it to Pittsburgh is untrue. We considered our vault one of the best in the State, and of much safer than the lions' den of the city."

"Set log chain and dead mouse in a state of rest under the laws of heat and cold, and in the course of many days the log chain still remains unchanged, but the dead mouse, if its solidity is tested by the nose, the advantage is evident, but time and observation prove log chain to be as much superior in solidity to dead mouse as the difference of power to resist cold and heat, which equals no mouse—log chain one."

After this Rev. W. Branfield made some remarks which were well received by the general hearing, and by scholars and teacher made a pleasing ending of the last day of school. There is considerable sickness here, chiefly sore throat. We admire your fair play practice in politics—your paper has the true ring of a free press. The Kerr House is renewed by a coat of paint. Chambers & Kerr's store is doing a flourishing business. We have an M. E. parsonage, the result of much labor by the pastor. W. B. $100,000.000 for Pensions. WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Col. Dudley, Commissioner of Pensions, has submitted to the Secretary of the Interior a recommendation that Congress be asked to appropriate $100,000,000 for disbursement by his office during the general hand-outing (June 30, 1883) in payment of annual and accrued pensions, and also that an immediate deficiency appropriation of $20,000,000 be requested for the purpose of paying all arrears of pensions.

THE PERSECUTION OF JEWS. BERLIN, November 1.—Jews here have instituted proceedings against Dr. Stoeker for the part he has taken in stirring up the people against the Jews. The Public Prosecutor began an action against the editor and publisher of the Reichsheld, a paper conducted by Henrici, a notorious "Jew hater," on account of a poem in it approving the persecution of the Jews.

A Village Conflagration. BRADFORD, Pa., November 7.—A fire at 5 a. m. today in the village of Four Mile, N. Y., twelve miles from here, destroying seven frame buildings, a hotel, three stores and three dwellings. The principal losers are Thomas Book and A. J. Barr, $1,000 each; insurance, $500 each. Total loss, $5,000.

Barn Raising.

EDITOR CITIZEN:—On Friday, October 28th, 1881, the citizens of Jefferson and adjoining townships, met at the farm of Charles Goebel in Jefferson township to help him raise his new barn, which is being built under the supervision of Messrs. Elliott and Armstrong, and the masonry by Messrs. Richier and Rabb of Saxenburg. The building, 35x50 feet, is a shanty barn with stable and wagon sheds in the basement, and for hay and grain above. At 12 o'clock the company were invited to partake of a sumptuous feast, which had been prepared by Mrs. Green and Miss Shipps, most pleasant, agreeable, and good looking young ladies, and their able assistants. About 50 persons were entertained in the most hospitable manner. The tables were laden with choice cakes of various kinds, delicious pies and various other eatables. The men ate as though they enjoyed their feast of good things, for which their appetites, sharpened by the arduous labors of the forenoon, had prepared them. Altogether the frolic was one of the pleasant affairs and reminded one of the old time hospitality that was the glory of the days gone by. Yours truly, Jefferson.

A Wedding. PROSPECT, October 7, 1881.

EDITORS CITIZEN:—Having been requested by several friends to give an account of the late wedding of our townsman, John C. Kelly, for your many readers, I will, even at this late hour, attempt a brief record of events for the benefit of many friends who were unable to "take in" and enjoy the festivity. In the far-off town of Cincinnati, the ceremony took place, on October 3, the Rev. J. G. Monfort, performing the nuptial rites which united in one J. C. Kelly, Esq., of Prospect, Pa. and Miss E. J. Blake, of Beaver Falls. Not being a witness of the tour to Prospect, I can give no record of the proceedings. It is safe, however, to say it was highly enjoyable—countenances beaming bright bespoke no squalls by the way.

The reception at home took place on October 7th. It was in every respect all that could be desired by those who were present to enjoy. Feasting and fun was the order of the hour. The order progressed well until the shades of evening began to deepen into the sombre gloom of night. It was then a new order began for the Prospect brass band had begun to add another tone to the affairs. Their symphonies were highly appreciated, and judging from the way in which the various members disposed of the "good things" the hospitality of the host was not a little appreciated.

Words of pleasure and tired of frolic the guests separated wishing the benedictus for the present peace, and for the future a happy and honored age. S. A. S.

From Farmington.

FARMINGTON, Nov. 5th, 1881.

MR. EDITOR:—We are a little nearer to the north pole than you of Butler, but we are no less warm in sociability. The activity of our good nature on two occasions of late, has been manifested—at the exhibition given by the brass band, and many others who kindly aided in the exercise, to secure a literary and ingenious medal. The talent, tact, and ingenuity of several of our people was a credit of a high order. We appeared in a happy garb. The orators were interesting; the declaimer graceful; the tableaux were No. 1, and it would take a city editor to beat the paper, edited by Miss Eliza McCeney; in short, the exhibition, notwithstanding it was a wet and dark night, was a success.

Mr. Philip S. Hoffman, of Clintonville, closed a term of four months teaching this fourth day of November, and a worthy and successful teacher he has proved himself. Mr. Hoffman is also instructor of our newly organized brass band. We are glad that the young men are making progress in the musical art. Spectators who attended the closing exercises of our school were much amused by the answer of one of the visitors to a question in arithmetic. Q "How would you find the solidity of a log chain or a dead mouse?" A "Set log chain and dead mouse in a state of rest under the laws of heat and cold, and in the course of many days the log chain still remains unchanged, but the dead mouse, if its solidity is tested by the nose, the advantage is evident, but time and observation prove log chain to be as much superior in solidity to dead mouse as the difference of power to resist cold and heat, which equals no mouse—log chain one."

Gutten's Papers.

WASHINGTON, November 3.—On the opening of the Criminal Court this morning a motion was made by Mr. Leigh Robinson, counsel in the Gutten case, for the delivery to the Property Clerk of the District of certain papers, etc., belonging to the prisoner. He specified the letters written by Gutten at the time or near the time of the arrest, newspaper scraps, letters found in the possession of Byron Andrews and other communications from the prisoner. He desired them to be in the hands of the Property Clerk, so that counsel for the defense could have access to them. The District Attorney stated that these things were not property but were evidences of crime, and therefore they belonged to him. The Court said he would examine the statutes and make such order as might appear necessary; but it seemed to him that counsel for the defense should have access to the papers. At all events he thought the Property Clerk had nothing to do with them.

DELAJ AGAIN URGED. Mr. Robinson also applied for still more time to prepare for the trial, and stated the difficulties in the way of the defense being ready on the 14th inst., the day fixed. Among other things, he stated that it had only to be known that a person was to become witness for the prisoner for a clamor to be raised against him, and generally for the person himself, in a manner very disgraceful to him, to have a witness listed in order to "set himself right" in the community. The Court said he would consider the suggestion as to postponing the trial still further, and would give it due weight.

CORRECTING A MISREPRESENTATION. Mr. Robinson also stated that he had been misrepresented in the Washington papers on the last occasion that he was before the Court, as saying that he agreed with Mr. Scoville on the question of jurisdiction. He had simply stated that he was not to be considered as committing on a question which he had not examined. He did not consider himself precluded by anything said by Mr. Scoville at any time on any branch of the defense from availing himself at the time of trial of any defense that might seem in his power to make.

The Court.—That was perfectly understood by the Court. The District Attorney.—The prosecution so understood it. Embezzlements to the Extent of $2,000. NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The Post's Newark, N. J., special says: The Directors of the Mechanics' National Bank, the largest bank in Newark, this morning announced its suspension. A meeting of the Directors was held yesterday afternoon and the cashier, O. L. Baldwin, stated the bank was not in a condition to pay, and that its liabilities were so great that further attempts to carry on business would be useless. The Directors then offered to subscribe $500,000 to put the bank in a condition for business, but the cashier responded that $2,000,000 did not do it. The Directors then decided to suspend business at once.

The bank's last statement, issued in October, showed liabilities as follows: Capital stock, $200,000; surplus, $400,000; National Bank notes, $445,000; dividends unpaid, $3,962; deposits, $217,415; certified checks, $64,407; cashed checks, $7,366; due other National Banks, $134,532; due State Banks, $70,912. Jos. A. Halsey is President and Oscar L. Baldwin cashier. The last named officer is manager of the bank and is considered responsible for the trouble. The news came like a thunder clap on the community. There was no suspicion that the institution was not the strongest in Newark. The Directors have been considered the most trustworthy body of men in the city and the reputation of Baldwin, as a financier probably stood first in the State.
