Public Life and Civil Service.

In an address delivered in 1853 by Hon. Benjamin H. Brewster, Attorney General of the United States, before the students of Princeton College, he said: 'The time was, in the history of our country, when great men were wanted in public places to establish our institutions. Good men are needed now in all the walks of quiet life to strengthen them. All the world over the trade of a politician is the occupation of a gamester; it is the business of a man whose time is spent in cony and strife. Public stations can only be won by rank and bring no distinctions to men who run after them. All great public occasions command the men best fitted for the necessities of the time. The emergencies that excite great men to action having passed by, tranquility having been restored, or, if having been established, new men, in the stead of doubtful parts succeeded their masters, and managed with ease, if not with skill, the vast machine which wisdom created and industry set in motion. All history has afforded a constant example of this. Our history may yet do so. Sir Robert Walpole, in his times, with a mastery not rivalled, with a power mightier than the storm, the power that binds the storm—the calm—plucked up the crown of England from the hedge where contending factions had flung it, established the Hanoverian succession, suppressed conspiracy, quieted religious dissent, and secured that stability and dignity to public affairs, and to the private life which nurtured the strength of England and gave her the power to resist a world in arms. With inflexible purpose he resisted all attempts to embroil his country in a war, and for twenty long years, as the first Minister of the Crown, governed with heroic firmness. He was succeeded by infirm men; but when the exigencies of public life again required a man, the Pelhams gave way for a Pitt, as politicians and placemen must heretofore give way for patriots and statesmen.

The highest public distinctions in this country have not attraction for right minded men, unless they are the result of the most distinguished personal worth, of character, mental ability and a blameless life—obtained in any other way they disgrace those who hold them. They were intended to be great honors, not rich sinecures. The compensations attached to the best of them will not equal the income that any man can earn who is fit to have them and discharge the duties. If men are drawn to high places by craft and contrivance—if they hold them at the cost of all love of truth and practice of heroic virtue—if they accept stations which they are unequal to, from want of proper training, from want of information, and want of mental capacity, and usurpers, put up with vanity and meanness, and greedily for the pay of the place—they are in pillory.

Large importations of potatoes from Europe are a peculiar feature of this year's trade, the receipts at the port of New York amounting at times to 3,000 tons a week. The potatoes cost in Liverpool from $15 to $20 a ton, and are sold in New York at 30 cents to $1 per bushel, domestic potatoes bringing about $1.25 a bushel.

Catarth of the Bladder. Stinging, smarting, irritation of the urinary passages, diseased discharges, cured by Buchu. $1. at druggists. Prepaid by express, $1.25, 6 for $5. E. S. Wells, Jersey City, N. J.

Goats and Dogs. In some parts of the west goats are placed in sheep pens to drive away wolves, a service for which they are superior butting powers peculiarly fit them. The experiment has been tried in Hunterdon and Somerset counties N. J., with complete success, as a protection for sheep against dogs. Two dozen dogs, and two are about all that is necessary to keep with moderate sized flocks of sheep, as a dog enters the field at night the goats go at him, and send him rolling over and over in short order. A few doses of this heroic treatment prove quite enough for his dogship, and he is glad to limp howling away as best he can. Formerly, the farmers say, when a dog entered a sheepfold at night, the timid creatures would run wildly about and cry piteously. Since the goats have been used to guard them, they form in line behind their sturdy defenders, and seem to enjoy the fun.

A Remarkable Coincidence. It is a matter of journalistic record, that some years since, a schooner set sail from Baltimore, having on board a crew of thirteen men. By a most singular freak of nature, the entire force was attacked by a skin disease, which manifested itself in large ulcerated sores on the arms and hands, which incapacitated the men for duty. The result was that the vessel was towed back to the city where the men were placed in a hospital. Moral! Had Swayne's Ointment for skin disease been used in the first place, the crew would have recovered in from 12 to 24 hours.

The Medical News says that if a first-class surgeon were called from New York to Washington in a case his fee would be from $800 to $1,000, and $200 per day while he staid there, and argued that the President's advisers should be paid on a larger scale.

WELLS' HEALTH RENEWER. A true assistant to nature in restoring the system to perfect health, thus enabling it to resist disease, is Brown's Iron Bitters. The leading Celestial residents of San Francisco have sought the golden mean so dear to the disciples of Confucius by suggesting by cable that, as there is great excitement on the Pacific coast over the rapid influx of Chinese, the shippers at Hong Kong should prevent trouble by arresting the rush. There was a time when China raised an immense wall to keep the barbarian out; now Chinese commercial policy would seem to demand a wall to keep the natives in.
